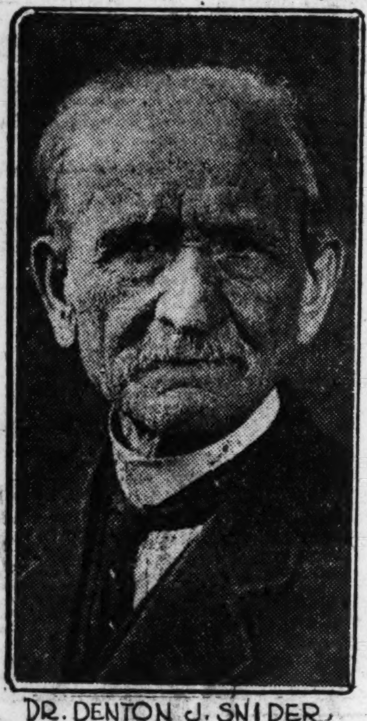
Story of the Era of "The Great St. Louis Illusion" Vividly Told by Dr. Snider in New Book

It Was the 20-Year Period When Everybody Thought St. Louis Without Effort Would Become World's Greatest City—Census of 1880 Smashed the Delusion, Finally Giving Chicago Supremacy—The "St. Louis Movement" Also Explained.

WHAT was the Great St. Louis Illusion?

The answer to this question will be of special interest to St. Louisans at this time, when the figures of the 1920 census are being awaited, with hope, but not without anxiety.



DR. DENTON J. SNIDER

The Great St. Louis Illusion is described as one of the most intense and picturesque episodes of this city's history, in "The St. Louis Movement," latest of the books of Denton J. Snider, philosopher and psychologist. The book is printed, as were Dr. Snider's former works, by the Sigma Publishing Co., 210 Pine street. His books now number 57.

Another question which may be raised by the title is "What was the St. Louis Movement?" The two questions may be answered together.

The Great St. Louis Illusion, as related in the Snider narrative, was the belief prevailing here in the late '60s and through the '70s, that this city would become the metropolis of the entire West, of the United States and eventually of the world, not so much by any communal effort as by the advantages of its location and the magic of its destiny. Out of this grew the catch phrase generally used by St. Louisans: "The Future Great."

This belief, which became an obsession and almost a religion with some persons, was shattered by the census of 1880, which showed that Chicago, nine years after her great fire, had decisively passed St. Louis in population. Snider believes Chicago was really the larger city in 1870, but he says the census here was padded in that year, giving the illusion another decade of life.

Dream Shattered by Census of 1880.

The St. Louis Movement was the cult, based on the teachings of the German philosopher, Hegel, which was headed here by William T. Harris, superintendent of schools and later national superintendent of instruction in the Department of the Interior at Washington. The name of Henry C. Brockmeyer, at one time Lieutenant-Governor of Missouri, and known as the father of the State's Constitution, is linked with that of Harris in the record of the philosophical movement.

The philosophical movement was of interest, in its time, only to the few, and its record will interest only the few at present. But the chapters of St. Louis history which Dr. Snider has embodied in his narrative are of a character to afford enlightenment and enjoyment to the general reader.

Some of these chapters, besides the one on "The Great Illusion," are those on "Carl Schurz," "Joseph Pulitzer," "The Eads Bridge" and "The German Era of St. Louis."

The author, who is in his eightieth year, has also made this work his autobiography, the story of his life appearing in connection with the "movement" here, in a period of similar work in Chicago, and at the School of Philosophy in Concord, Mass.

Faith in St. Louis' Future Fanatical.

Of the theme of the "Great St. Louis Illusion," in the period after his arrival here in 1864, Dr. Snider writes:

"I quickly found the one faith universal, that St. Louis could not help becoming the largest, richest, most influential city in the land, with all the gain and glory and domination resulting from such pre-eminence. In religion, politics and love, its multiracial polyglotic people might differ, but in one creed they were united or, rather, fused to a kind of fanaticism—the doctrine of the future supremacy of St. Louis.

"Looking backward we can see that such an anticipation of all-topping pre-eminence was a huge mirage, floating before the vision of a great population across the empty desert of the future. It was veritably a kind of civic megalomania, from which the levelest heads were not exempt—not even the solidest mind in the city, the river-spanning bridge builder, James B. Eads.

"The illusion began to show itself shortly after the close of the Civil War, and the spell was not completely broken until the census of 1880 smote the somnolescent city with the awakening thunder-words: Population of St. Louis, 350,000; of Chicago, 503,000.

"As late as 1876 Logan Uriah Reavis had issued his largest book, gilt-edged, morocco-bound, with title-page wafting to us the prophetic mirage. 'St. Louis the Future Great City of the World.' And he cited the lying census of 1870 as part of his proof.

Hopes Aroused by the Chicago Fire.

"In company with all St. Louis, I had been made to believe the fiery falsehood, truly infernal, which seemed to be proclaimed to us from above by the great Chicago fire of 1871. On an October afternoon Principal Morgan of the high school approached me, holding a newspaper in his hand and pointing to massive headlines, themselves aflame: 'Chicago Burning Up!'

"I hurried downtown for further information. Hundreds were reading newspaper office bulletins. The crowd was not boisterous, but wore the silent smile of self-gratulation; I thought it felt a secret awe at the providential catastrophe, yet not without an exultant hope. Reavis was there, puffing, limping through the mass, the central figure of the crowd. I heard drop from his lips one brief passage: 'I told you so; the Lord is on the side of St. Louis.'

"Of course, we, with some public display, sent money for the homeless and provisions for the hungry and even resolutions of sympathy for the unfortunate city. But privately everywhere could be heard, without unhappy tears, the pious Scriptural ejaculation: 'Again the fire of heaven has fallen upon Sodom and Gomorrah; may it complete its divinely appointed work!'

"I can still see the old lady jump up from her sleep at the bodeful figures of the 1880 census and challenge the correctness of the Washington enumeration. Not so easily would she renounce her long, sweet illusion; so she resolved to take her own census. The best mathematician of her university was called upon to oversee accurately the arithmetic of the thing and to insert all the omitted names, of which a number had been dug up in the slums and elsewhere.

"The result, however, was a practical confirmation of the first dream-destroying figures. Then followed a corresponding overflow of disillusion and dismay, at first running toward despair. The outside world, and Chicago especially, failed not to enjoy what they regarded as the denouement of a great civic comedy, funning and bemocking the disenchantment of the badly fooled victim at the end of the play."

The prophet of the illusion, L. U. Reavis, is the subject of a special chapter. Reavis, in 1869, printed a book: "The Removal of the Capital," in which he prophesied that St. Louis would supplant Washington as the seat of the national Government.

Wanted Nation's Capital Here, Too.

"The work won for Reavis the herculean title of the colossal capital-mover, and he became one of our chief celebrities. Skeptically today we are inclined to query 'Did the solid business heads of our town really support the fantastic scheme of the capital's removal?' A committee of leading citizens, headed by James B. Eads, our practical master mind, gave their unstinted approval in writing. The County Court voted a handsome appropriation for the distribution of his pamphlet, printed both in English and German. Reavis claimed that 150,000 copies of his various books passed into circulation. He voiced the city's illusive mania better than any other man. We were all the theme of a Cervantean comedy, for which the Don Quixote was the enthusiastic but fantastical idealist, L. U. Reavis."

Dr. Snider's chapters on "Carl Schurz of St. Louis" and "Joseph Pulitzer of St. Louis" are interesting and of biographical value.

"Schurz," he writes, "came floating into St. Louis some three years after my arrival, probably in response to the same strong undercurrent which was drawing the big and little fishes to the one whirling center of population, now lashed to strenuosity by the Great Illusion.

"Schurz at once became a chief editor of the Westliche Post, then probably the most influential German newspaper of the country. This step was only preparatory to the greater ambition, the Missouri senatorship, which was foreseen to lie in the hands of the Germans, could they but find the proper man. He was elected Senator by the Missouri Legislature in 1869, and his six-year term was the highest fulfillment of himself as well as of the German era of St. Louis.

How Schurz Wrecked His Party.

"In Missouri his was the hand that shivered into fragments his own party which had elected him Senator, and so completely did it drop asunder that it could not pull itself together again for a generation with force enough to win a victory in the State.

"He was right in opposing disfranchisement, which ought never to have been enacted, certainly not in the way that it was. Missouri had shown herself overwhelmingly loyal to the Union from the start, without disfranchisement, which thus could have no true meaning outside of hate and corruption.

"Accordingly, Schurz, the German interloper, as he was called, soon fell out with the old leaders, such men as Gov. Brown, Gen. Blair, the hero of Camp Jackson, and his fellow Senator, Charles D. Drake. Well might the returned Confederates erect a monument to Schurz, for through him chiefly they, a decided minority, won what they could never win on the battlefield—the political control of the State—and kept it for decades. To be sure, he cut his own throat in the process, and he witnessed his own triumphant self-negation when he was succeeded in 1875 by Cockrell, a former Confederate General.

"Still I hold that Schurz was the greatest Senator Missouri had in her nearly finished century of statehood, with the exception of Benton. He performed the very highest service of the time, courageous and almost single-handed, in his criticism of President Grant and the militaristic party, assailing corruption, nepotism and all sorts of insolent extravagance."

"Greatest Master of Journalism."

Joseph Pulitzer, founder of the Post-Dispatch, is the subject of Dr. Snider's next chapter.

"My first proposition, the writer says, "will rouse a bitter denial and probably some profanity, though my words may not be worth a curse when I say Pulitzer was the greatest master of journalism that has yet arisen in the United States.

"He saw its meaning and realized its power and place in American life more fully than any

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.

WHEN diplomatic relations are once more resumed with Germany one of the first acts of German officials in the United States will be to visit the Swiss consulate on the ninth floor of the building at No. 11 Broadway, New York, for the purpose of regaining possession of a ton of highly important secret German papers. These papers, including the German embassy files, were placed in the Swiss consulate by Germany for safe keeping at the time the United States entered the war.

To the astonishment and dismay of the German officials the papers will be missing. When the Germans open the doors of the safes and slide back the drawers in the various filing cases the documents and records they seek will be so conspicuously not there that the thing will be startling. From a non-German point of view the situation also will be amusing.

At the time the papers were deposited in the safes and strong boxes by the Germans every precaution was taken not only to safeguard the papers themselves but to make it impossible to molest them without leaving tell-tale evidence that would be immediately noticeable. Each drawer and each door was securely locked and besides that they were wrapped with ropes and voluminous folds of red, white and black. And the ropes and tape were carefully sealed with wax and the sealing was painstakingly imprinted with the official German seal.

Seals Intact, but Papers Are Gone.

When the Germans return the locks and ropes and tape and seals will still be intact and will show no evidence of having been touched. Nevertheless, the papers inside are all gone. Not only were the papers spirited away, but they eventually reached the possession of United States officials and they proved of inestimable value to the Government in the great task of locating the German agents within our gates and tracing their activities.

The papers included files from the German embassy at Washington, with hundreds of letters between Ambassador von Bernstorff and officials in Berlin, and both the official and personal files from the office of Dr. Heinrich Albert, the German financial agent. Among Von Bernstorff's and Albert's correspondents in this country were many German-Americans in high financial and social circles, whose real attitude toward the country of their adoption the public knows too little about.

There were stacks of letters between Albert and Von Bernstorff, as well as a mass of letters and copies of letters that passed between Albert and various German agents. A full set of official ledgers, personal account books, check books and canceled vouchers showed exactly the amounts of money disbursed to German agents, the dates of the payments and just who the agents were that got the money.

The correspondence with German agents included secret codes and a list of the false names under which each agent was to operate. Several of the agents had worked out an elaborate code for meeting places in New York City. If, for example, a certain German telephoned to one of his associates and suggested meeting him in front of Borough Hall in Brooklyn at 7 o'clock it meant that he would meet him in a drug store at Times Square at 8:30.

One set of correspondence and accounts related entirely to the purchase of "the New York Evening Mail," but both Von Bernstorff and Albert evidently were unwilling to have detailed information about this a matter of common knowledge to members of the embassy staff who might have access to the account books. Consequently "the Evening Mail account" was known simply as "Account X."

At the time Ambassador von Bernstorff was sent away and the Swiss Minister assumed charge of German diplomatic affairs in this country a hurried and excited effort had to be made to find a safe storage place for the vast files of German documents that it was impossible to send safely abroad. That was how they came to be stored in the office of the Swiss Consul of New York.

Documents Kept to Show Germans' Records

Why, one may ask, was so much damaging evidence allowed to remain in existence when it could easily have been placed in a furnace or even in a bonfire and destroyed forever by the simple application of so ordinary an article of every-day commerce as a safety match?

The answer is that Germany at that time had not the remotest idea of losing the war and in the event of German success the documents would have been of immense value not only to the German Government, but also to numerous individuals. Every hyphenated German living in America who had done something against the allies or against America in behalf of the fatherland would desire to have the proofs of his loyal service in his possession so that he might be in line for whatever reward or decoration the German chiefs might deem fitting and proper.

Indeed, among the documents were more than a dozen Iron Crosses which had been sent here from Germany for bestowal upon Germans living in the United States. There was also a Gold Cross of the Sixth Order of the Crown that the Kaiser had ordered sent here for someone, then in America. Just who was to have had this bit of grandeur has never, I believe, been definitely determined.

It is unlikely that the Swiss Consul had the remotest idea of the exact nature of the papers left in his custody more than that they were of the greatest importance and must be looked upon by no living creature until they were safely returned, after the close of the war, into German hands. As the representative of a neutral Government the Swiss Consul could regard his trust only as something almost sacred. Indeed, when a newspaper representative recently went to a chief Swiss official at the consulate and sought permission to photograph the room containing, as the Swiss official supposed, the German documents, the request was firmly though courteously refused on the ground that it would be a breach of official etiquette.

At the time the German papers were stored in the Swiss consulate there were at least two Germans connected with the embassy in Washington who relate that they had personal grievances against their chiefs and against the German Government. One of these is said to have been in love with an American girl and this if true, may have had something to do with his attitude toward his own Government.

It is well known that much friction and jealousy had existed between Von Bernstorff and Dr. Albert. Similar jealousies had arisen among minor officials. The German official group in this country, so it appears now, was far from being a harmonious unit.

Five Americans Seized Papers.

At any rate, one of these Germans talked rather freely about the nature of the papers that were being left in the Swiss consulate. There had, of course, been no particular secret about the fact that the Swiss Consul, as a neutral envoy, would act as custodian for a lot of German correspondence. But nobody had suspected that papers of such noteworthy importance, containing a mass of incriminating evidence, would be left behind in this country by the Germans. That knowledge first came from one of the disgruntled employes of the German embassy. The information was passed along until it chanced to reach the ears of two red-corpuscled Americans, adventurous spirits, who saw an opportunity to perform a service for their Government that the Government could not perform itself. Even if it had been aware of the existence and startling nature of the papers the United States Government could not have obtained them. There was no international law or precedent whatsoever by which the Swiss Consul or the Swiss Government, being neutral, could be forced into giving up such papers.

But the two American citizens, able-bodied, two-fisted persons, having picked up the valuable bit of information regarding the importance of the papers and their resting place, determined to let themselves in on a real adventure. They took into their project three friends, one of whom was familiar with locks and safe opening devices. It was this group of five who finally obtained the German papers.

Their plan from the beginning was to act on their own initiative and undergo whatever risk was involved as a matter of patriotic duty. If successful they would turn over a real prize to the Government as a personal contribution toward winning the war. If unsuccessful they were prepared to stand the consequences, even though this might include capture and arrest. Their task involved working by stealth in the nighttime, practically as burglars—but if burglars they were obliged to be, they became, indeed, glorious, exalted burglars. Except for what these five men accomplished their country would have been far less successful in coping with German attacks from within. Because of the important knowledge it gained from these records the Government was able to reach out and put its finger on German agents theretofore unsuspected.

As a preliminary to the big task they had cut out for themselves the five men obtained the use of an office in the same building, at 11 Broadway, where the Swiss consulate is. Fortunately one of the five was well acquainted with a man who had a suite of offices in the building. They needed an office for a sort of base of operations, for a place to which they might deposit temporarily any papers they captured. They also needed an excuse to be in the building night after night that they might learn the hours of the night watchman and thus contrive to avoid him.

First they had their lock expert fashion a key to the outer door of the consular offices and one night they went to look the layout over. To all appearances the German papers were stored in two large safes, several sections of metal filing cases and a steel trunk.

Seals Bore Official German Stamp.

Each safe and each filing case was bound around with rope and with red, white and black tape—in much the same manner that a shoe box is tied with a piece of string at a store. The knots in the tape or rope were invariably covered with sealing wax of a special kind not easily imitated and the wax was stamped with the official German seal.

Particular care had been given, apparently, to the sealing up of the larger safe. Pieces of sealing wax, bearing the official stamp, had been stuck at intervals all along the cracks at the edges of the safe doors. Official tape had been wound back and forth between the handles of the double doors of the safe and the knots were sealed and stamped. The tape was also fastened against the flat surface of the safe doors with sealing wax and this, too bore the official stamp.

Because the larger safe was the most carefully sealed up the visitors assumed that it must contain the most valuable papers. They determined, therefore, to try to open that safe first of all. But even aside from the problem of working the combination, it looked like an impossibility to open the doors without disturbing the tape and seals.

If these seals were noticeably marred it soon would be discovered that the safe had been tampered with. This would prevent later visits and, furthermore, if it became known that the papers were gone part of the value they might have in tracing German agents might be lost.

The visitors saw that if they were to open the safe and not have their work afterward discovered they would need several ingenious tools. When they returned a few night later they were equipped with such tools and devices as were required. The most noteworthy of these was an electrical contrivance which could be attached to one of the electric light sockets near the safe. The working part of this consisted of a Y-shaped instrument between the two prongs of which was stretched a fine wire. This wire, when heated by the electrical current, could be passed underneath the seals where they adhered to the flat surface of the safe. In this way the seals could be removed one at a time without disturbing the impression of the official stamp. Later the seals could be glued back to the same places from which they had been removed.

There was still the problem of getting the tape removed from the handles of the safe doors. But the callers chanced to hit on a plan for doing this that made the job absurdly simple.

Instead of trying to remove the seals and unwind the tape they removed the little invisible cotter-pin which held the grip part of each handle in place. Then the whole mass of tape could be slipped right over the knob of the handle. The handles showed slight blemishes where the pins had been removed, but this was quickly remedied by simply polishing the abrasion in the nickel plating and applying a little nickel plating solution.

Worked All Night Removing Documents.

The job of opening the safe, removing the contents and restoring the safe to its previous condition occupied the five men from about 11 o'clock at night until toward daylight. It was many days before they dared return to continue the search. While the nature of the papers in this safe was disappointing, the Germans, with typical German inefficiency, had left in the safe a great quantity of paper seals of exactly the same kind that they had used in sealing up the drawers of the metal filing cases. The possession of these seals greatly simplified the job of opening these drawers later on.

On a certain night while the Americans were at work on these files a man, now supposed to have been the night watchman, came along and nearly stumbled upon them. One of the five men had established himself as a lookout in a public washroom down the corridor a few paces from the outer door of the consulate.

It was arranged that if danger should threaten he would walk down the corridor and give two quick taps on the door. On the night mentioned he did hear someone coming up a stairway. Quickly he gave the alarm and then hastened back to his secret post. The men who had been operating on the filing cases flicked off their electric light, which was a specially arranged one that illuminated only a limited area. They gained hiding places under tables and behind desks barely in time to be out of sight when the watchman, if such it was, opened the door and peered inside. But he was there evidently just as a matter of routine, in the course of his regular rounds, and did not chance to notice anything unusual about the office—though one of the searchers was lying within four feet of him. After a moment or two he continued on his way.

Every detail of the plan of restoring the safes and filing cases to their usual condition was carefully thought out. One man was even assigned to the job of seeing to it that the dust on the filing cases was about as it had been. He swept up dust from the floor and placed it where finger marks might have showed.

The visits of the five men continued, beginning probably late in April, until the early part of July, and it is believed that in the early morning of the Fourth of July, by way of patriotic coincidence, the last of the German documents were removed from the consulate.

On this final visit the five men arranged to open a section of filing cases and also the steel trunk which was locked and sealed about as the safes had been. It had been left until the last because, for some reason, the men had an idea that the papers it contained might be of the least importance. The truth was that the Germans had intended this trunk to contain the most important documents of all. But when the men succeeded in opening the one remaining section of the filing cases and this steel trunk they had a surprise that left them breathless.

Both the filing case and the steel strong box were already empty. They had been carefully sealed up by the Germans without containing any papers at all.

It is now pretty well understood that the papers had been secretly taken away by one of the Germans who was intrusted with the job of storing and sealing them up. Just what personal use he intended to make of them never has been disclosed. They were found by the merest chance, so I have been told, in two large suit cases and a steamer trunk in an obscure storage warehouse some weeks later. The name under which they were recorded there proved to be a fictitious one and the true identity of the man who left them has not been established.

When discovered these papers were promptly turned over to the United States Government. It so happened that they reached the possession of Government officials at about the same time as the other papers taken by the five adventurers from the consular offices.

Identity of Five Unknown to U. S.

After the last sealed strong box at the consulate had been opened the papers, weighing more than 2000 pounds, are supposed to have been carried by automobile to a house in the Bronx. There they were packed in ordinary pine boxes. A teamster was then employed to haul these boxes from the Bronx down to the office of a Government department in New York. There the teamster deposited them and went his way, probably in accordance with instructions before the nature or importance of his burden became known.

Thus it came about that the United States Government does not know even to this day how, when or by whom the papers were seized.

Having once obtained the papers the Government set translators to work on them. The variety of information then acquired was really astounding, for the seized correspondences showed how intricately Germany had allied its industrial with its espionage system.

For example, there was a German-owned concern, the chief business of which was the manufacture and installation of what is known as "inside transportation"—railroad dump cars, traveling cranes and machinery of a similar sort, used in large industrial plants. This was the American branch of a great German house whose tentacles reached into all the great countries of the world. For 20 years they had put in bids for equipment for various plants in this country and throughout this 20 years the specifications, floor plans and elevations were regularly placed on file in the offices of one of the military departments of Berlin.

The Albert letters show that there were in this country 18 branches of German insurance companies which collected for their own use detailed plans of all property insured by them with special reference to the hazard from fire, explosives and other causes. Duplicates of these plans and drawings were invariably dispatched to the Berlin office.

From some of the voluminous correspondence of Dr. Albert and his associates the Government learned that three German-owned companies in this country had a practical monopoly on the ignition systems in America. Through this combination the files of the central office at Berlin were kept up to date with all plans and improvements in military trucks, gasoline boats and airplanes.

Here is the translation of a letter sent to Dr. Albert from the manager of one of these magneto companies:

"In connection with the obstruction policy upon which we agreed at the beginning of the war in matters concerning deliveries of our products, especially the special magneto apparatus, I should like in the following to make statements from which one will see clearly that the accomplished obstruction policy has in every way been successful.

How Magneto Firms Deceived Allies.

"In short, we had great difficulty at the beginning of the war in withholding the much needed airplane apparatus from the allies, and in preventing the allies, especially the English, from immediately attempting to manufacture them for themselves. Special apparatuses are involved in flying machines, airships and speed boats. These apparatuses are very different from the normal apparatus used on automobiles and motor cycles. We have freely supplied them with ordinary apparatuses, but, in accordance with our agreement, we have entered into apparent negotiations with the representatives of the allies, creating in their minds the impression that they would receive also the special apparatuses at the present time. These negotiations began immediately after the first declaration of war and it was possible, on account of their technical character, to extend them many months into the war. Our policy lulled them into the certainty that they would receive the special apparatus and only now have they realized our duplicity."

Other letters indicated that the real permanent head of the German espionage system in the United States had been the late Dr. Hugo Schweitzer. He is believed to have led the espionage work here down to the day of his sudden death, in November, 1917.

It was Schweitzer, so various of the stolen letters indicated, who originated the idea of the purchase of "The New York Evening Mail" for purposes of German propaganda. When Dr. Albert was about to return to Germany in 1917 he turned over to Schweitzer the sum of $1,178,882.08 and a trifle later an additional $800,000, all to be spent by Schweitzer for work of espionage and propaganda.

Among the more pretentious plans of Germany in the United States, as revealed in these papers, was the organization of a mammoth marine insurance combine which, while German-owned and organized with money furnished through Dr. Albert, by the German Government itself, was to be cleverly disguised as an American company. All the stock was to be held by directors bearing American names. Among those mentioned in the correspondence as persons who could be dealt with in such a project

Women's Voters' League.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am a very humble member of the League of Women Voters, but I could not repress a "grin" on reading Mr. W. H. Hays', chairman of the G. O. P. National Committee, statement to the effect that the league harbored an ambition to create a separate women's party. That is exactly what the league is endeavoring not to do. The statement is very transparent for it is self-evident that if the women should form a party it would certainly be a formidable opponent—such as would cause both parties to watch their steps carefully.

However, the league's expressed purpose is to prevent women from too hurriedly affiliating themselves with either party and thereby making the candidate and the measure the paramount issue rather than merely supporting a candidate because he is of some certain party, regardless of his qualifications.

I am by birth and inheritance a Republican, but by training and inclination a "bolter," and I regard the potency of women's votes to be effective just so long as they remain an unknown quantity.

If we expect to accomplish reforms along the lines of education, social welfare, laws concerning women and children in industry, etc., etc., we must bring our whole force to bear on the candidates who promise to support our measures regardless of party.

Dollar-a-Day Bonus.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Last week the Globe-Democrat published a report to the effect that one of the Senators had presented a bill to issue every former service man a bond calling for $1 for each day he was in the service.

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of that Senator; every service man should write to his Senator or Representative, calling him to do what he can to get the measure put through very soon.

An Interpretation of Tolstoi.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In the issue of Saturday, Jan. 17, you ask: "Where is the superman who was to emerge at a critical juncture of the war and ultimately impose his will upon a kingless, recast Europe? Who is he? The man of the Tolstoian prophecy?" It seems strange that anyone could ask, who has read Tolstoi's vision and who has followed the course of events since 1912, the date when Tolstoi saw beginning the change of Europe's fortunes.

As the war progressed and Woodrow Wilson came more and more into prominence and influence, I became surer in my mind that this was he. If you will recall that he is a writer of wonderful clearness, and a marvelous speaker and thinker—that, in spite of the fact that previous to his election to the presidency he was not generally known in national affairs, his notes to the various Powers during the war were powerful factors in aid of the allied cause, and that his work for the league of nations was so predominant as to give him the title of its founder—if you remember these things and all of his work during these late years, you will see that he is so far correctly interpreted as the person Tolstoi had in mind. His influence was undeniably great abroad in all the warring nations, and the powerful aid of America given at the most critical time of the war did change the fortunes of the Governments of Europe.

When we are too near to a mountain we cannot realize its greatness. So it was with great men like Washington and Lincoln. So it will be, no doubt, with our great President. At the end of 50 to 75 years hence, we will look back to now and see with the future historian the wonderful part he has taken in the recent world drama.

As for Lenine, he is, like Attila, a scourge, if the dreadful reports of the Bolshevik occupation are true. There is a prophecy in Ezekiel, in chapters 38 and 39, which is believed to refer to Russia and the surrounding territory, especially in the Near East. The terrible picture it paints is like the press reports of recent events in these regions, including the late war, the verse 21 of chapter 38 showing the state of civil war now present: "Every man's sword shall be against his brother." When these shall have been fulfilled, we may hope also that the later, happier time there spoken of will usher in the years of hope, of peace and brotherhood for which the world longs.

The Bank Clerk's Trouble.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Your editorial of Thursday: "For the adventurous youth seeking a career of excitement, there is the job of clerking in a bank."

You know that bank clerks, such as paying and receiving tellers, are getting the enormous salary of $100 and $115 a month and supposed to be dressed neat and up-to-date with the price of eats gone up 75 per cent, but salaries only about 3 per cent. I'd like to rub this under their noses.

"ONE OF THEM."

SIGNS OF POLITICAL INDEPENDENCE.

Following the news that union labor will go into politics on its own account, comes the report that the farmers will submit a questionnaire to the presidential candidates and as a body take an active part in shaping platforms and selecting candidates.

The questionnaire of the farmers will be interesting. Their industry is the greatest basic industry in the country and united they could wield a tremendous power. Uniting them, however, for political action is a difficult and doubtful task—more difficult and doubtful probably than the task of uniting labor, which is concentrated in industrial centers and is largely organized, or any other numerous element of the population. Farmers are scattered through wide districts, with diversified crops and local interests. Nevertheless, they have common interests, apart from the general interest in good government and farmers organizations are rapidly multiplying and growing. Farmers' club are numerous in the more thickly settled districts and the telephone and automobile have brought the farm houses and meeting houses in close touch.

The significance of the movement of labor organizations, farmers' organizations and other elements of the people, organized and unorganized, to question candidates and party leaders lies in the evidence it offers of the tendency towards independent political action. The fact that these organizations and elements are inspecting and questioning candidates and preparing to scrutinize platforms, with a view to solidarity of action in the elections, proves that their individual units do not feel longer bound to parties. They refuse longer to wear party labels and be herded by politicians, regardless of candidates and policies. It is a sign of widespread recognition of the bankruptcy of the old parties and disgust with their partisan maneuvers to catch votes for the sole purpose of gaining the spoils.

The movement for the nomination of Herbert Hoover, who is affiliated with none of the old parties, which has gained extraordinary support, supplies proof corresponding with the action of organizations whose members usually divide up in politics of the strength of the independent political tendency of voters. It is the most encouraging sign in American politics. While class dictation would be an evil influence, yet independent thought and action on the part of the people is a factor rich with promise of better things.

MISSOURI AND FRANCE.

The France of Joffre's heroic hour, the France that met the German onrush at the Marne, the France of bleeding body but flaming soul that routed Von Kluck's legions and saved for free men everywhere the precious things of life—we have not been hearing much about that France lately. And after the first Marne there came another, grimmer test. The Marne was dramatic. It was an occasion supremely suited to the French temperament, furnishing, as it did, the opportunity for the flashing genius of France to risk all on one splendid throw. Verdun was different.

That dreadful winter of Verdun was a sheer test of endurance. It was a contest such as German generalship would have chosen. It was a battle in which the imponderable seemingly counted not at all. Eventually the victory would go to the heavier battalions. In this issue, German discipline, training, strategy must prevail. Brute force must win. Yet France met that with surpassing fortitude, with resourcefulness, with the perfervid imagination of the Celt that found expression in the immortal "They shall not pass." But we have not been hearing much of that France lately.

The France we have been hearing of from such Senators as Mr. Hiram Johnson and Mr. James A. Reed is a France collecting the spoils, demanding the loot, and getting it, thanks to the bargaining skill of the canny Clemenceau, with which our impractical Wilson could not cope. However, a message of that France of the high heart, in whose Gethsemane we took such pride, has just been brought to us. The bearer is Miss Anne Morgan of New York. This messenger, engaged in the hard work of reclaiming devastated France, speaks a practical language. She tells us, among other things, that 57 per cent of the men of France, between the ages of 18 and 34, were killed in the war.

Such words as "spoils" and "loot" as applied to France merely dishonor the Senators who give them utterance. But we need not waste time or indignation on such ingratitude. The point is that Miss Morgan is here in behalf of France. She wants money to help to restore murdered and mutilated France to life. In subscribing to that restoration fund we are only paying a debt we owe.

UNCLE SAM AS A REALTOR.

In contemplating the manifold activities of the Federal Government and the varied and extensive fields in which it is now operating, one would think the limit of sound policy had been reached. But whatever the people may think, our Federal officials are always ready to plunge into new enterprises, requiring, of course, additional offices with additional revenues.

The very latest proposal comes from the Department of Agriculture, with the object of embarking the Government in the real estate business in the several states.

By the provisions of Senate bill No. 3477, sponsored by Senator Smoot, the Government is authorized to enter into contracts with any and all private owners of arid, cut-over or swamp lands, to put such lands in condition for sale and to sell the same at an agreed price.

Ostensibly, the object of the measure is to increase the available supply of tillable land in the United States, although in fact its result will be to convert the Federal Government into a vast contractor, engaged in making surveys of private lands, dividing them and disposing of them to the public. In support of the measure it is contended that the Government will be put to no expense, since all private owners desiring to avail themselves of the services of Government engineers must make a deposit covering the cost of necessary work. It is not proposed, however, to include the cost of engineers' salaries, since they are mere public employes supported by general taxes.

Aside from the present urgent demand for economy in the public expense there are two fundamental objections to this measure. The first is that there is already too much interference on the part of the Federal Government in the internal concerns of the states; that this constant enlargement of the Federal power is utterly destructive of the essential balance of our political system and is creating an intolerable bureaucracy. The second objection is that the real estate business is wholly foreign to the proper functions of any Government, state or Federal. It is distinctly a private business and can be handled with far more efficiency by private initiative.

The people are being more and more criticised in Washington for their constant appeals for aid and relief on all kinds of subjects, but the blame for the grandmotherly attitude of the Government primarily rests upon Congress itself.

UNHAPPY KANSAS CITY.

Kansas City is not very happy right now, on her seven-and-seventy hills. Her claim, officially bugled by her Chamber of Commerce Bulletin of Jan. 6, 1920, has aroused the ire of a number of cities. That bulletin declared that Kansas City's bank clearings for 1919 exceeded the combined clearings of Minneapolis, Cincinnati, St. Paul, Omaha and Denver as evidence that indicated the comparative business of the cities named. This was a statement of fact, but not the truth.

The slandered cities show their pique in different ways. Minneapolis, with uplifted eyebrows, remarks that "Kansas City sounds like J. Rufus Wallingford's own home town." Cincinnati, winner of the world's baseball championship, is curious to know "In what bush-league circuit, pray, is Kansas City?" St. Paul is chastely silent. Omaha dashes off a neat quip to the effect that "Kansas City is a liar." "And a horsethief, too," observes Denver, casually dangling a significant rope.

But Kansas City didn't pause with maligning the worthy communities already mentioned. Her notorious bulletin, subtly claiming greater business, declared that Kansas City bank clearings last year were greater than St. Louis by more than $3,000,000,000. What shall St. Louis say in retaliation? Not a word. Another has spoken. St. Louis leaves its case with the Federal Reserve Board. On Jan. 7, the day following the deplorable Kansas City bulletin, the Federal Reserve Board's report of actual commercial transactions for 22 weeks ending on that date showed:

St. Louis, $3,305,000,000.
Kansas City, $2,173,000,000.

The Federal Reserve Board had another interesting report on that same day—the debits to individual accounts for the week ending Jan. 7, 1920—as follows:

St. Louis, $178,999,000.
Minneapolis, $88,359,000.
Kansas City, $79,946,000.

It may be worthy of mention, too, that the total resources of St. Louis at the close of business Dec. 31, were $637,615,811, as against Kansas City's $433,150,946. Also that St. Louis' banking capital is $77,663,402 to Kansas City's $33,053,035. It may be remarked, also, that bank clearings are not an audit of a city's commercial transactions, that they are not accepted as such by the Federal Reserve Board.

Kansas City's bank clearings are interesting, but they don't mean anything. They are a mountain of paper. Yet St. Louis cannot subscribe to the harsh verdict pronounced on Kansas City by other cities. Kansas City is not a liar or a horsethief. And, certainly, Kansas City is not a shrinking violet.

MANUFACTURING COTTON AT HOME.

As a result of the English embargo on American cotton, Texas is seriously discussing the manufacturing of cotton. True, the discussion is not new. Indeed, it may be classed as one of those hopeful perennials, fair to contemplate as a mirage, and as unsubstantial. But the embargo has furnished a new impetus, a new necessity, for undertaking the project. It is manifest that the welfare of so important an industry as growing cotton should not be dependent upon the whim or interest of a foreign enterprise. That such is the case is disquietingly revealed by the embargo which has temporarily paralyzed a supposedly healthy market and left many a cotton planter holding the bag.

And along with the necessity of putting itself in possession of its own industry, so to speak, the proponents of manufacturing cotton in Texas can file a persuasive brief. Other Southern states have done it. Why not Texas? For example, South Carolina, with almost 5,000,000 spindles, is now our second largest cotton manufacturing State. North Carolina is a close third. Georgia is fifth. Those three states manufacture practically all the cotton they grow—say 2,500,000 bales a year.

The importance to Texas of manufacturing her own cotton can be appreciated when we consider that Texas alone produces about as much cotton as North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia together. And the Texas production of 2,500,000 bales would doubtless be increased if there was a home market for the staple. Moreover, Texas has a million-bale neighbor in Oklahoma, which also, under the incentive and assurance of home spindles, could materially raise that figure.

There is nothing fanciful in assuming that Texas and Oklahoma, jointly, would produce 4,000,000 bales if they manufactured the cotton they grow.

It is an appetizing project, of vast possibilities, and it should appeal to St. Louis. Much of the finished product from Texas-Oklahoma spindles would be marketed through St. Louis.

by Clark McAdams.

SOCRATES AND HIS PUPILS.

SOCRATES: Doubtless you young men have seen the different suggestions for limiting the powers of the President.

Glaucon: Yes.

Socrates: What do you think of them?

Glaucon: They have impressed me as not being very well thought out.

Socrates: That is, we must rest great responsibility with someone.

Glaucon: Certainly.

Socrates: In war, where leadership by a debating society would be fatal, we have a commander whose powers are much of the time absolute.

Polemarchus: Precisely.

Socrates: We would not think of sending an army out in charge of a committee.

Polemarchus: Certainly not.

Socrates: Imagine the army we sent to France advancing upon the Germans under the command of a board of directors.

Thrasymachus: One cannot imagine it.

Socrates: Let us take a warship. Who runs a warship?

Polemarchus: The captain.

Socrates: What would become of a warship operating under the direction of a debating society?

Glaucon: It would be sunk.

Socrates: Why do we repose such responsibility in the commanders of armies and the captains of ships?

Thrasymachus. Our experience has taught us that there is no other way.

Socrates: So it has. We have given the President great power because to do less would, so far as we know, impair our effectiveness as a nation.

Glaucon: The world was not young when the men who came to that conclusion fixed the powers of the President.

Socrates: No. There had been a great many experiments.

Polemarchus: Don't you think if we could agree that the President cannot be a Democrat the agitation to limit his powers would cease?

Socrates: It probably would. It is not so much the powers of the President, I am afraid, as the powers of Wilsonus.

Polemarchus: As a matter of fact, all Presidents are too powerful in their second term.

Socrates: By Jove, yes.

Polemarchus: There has by that time arisen against them an opposition which makes it seem extremely unsafe for them to have powers which were safe enough before that opposition arose.

Socrates: You are a philosopher, my dear Polemarchus. The thing for us to do, if the present arrangement is no longer practicable, is not to limit the powers of the President, but to limit his reign to a single term.

Thrasymachus: That settles that.

Socrates: Good! Now let us consider whether there is anything else needs straightening out.

H-TWO-O.

It would take somebody who lives in a tub to tell us what constitutes the charm of the automobile show, since going there we see chiefly only what we see every day on the streets and in the showrooms of the sales agencies. Yet no other show that we have in St. Louis attracts the public as the automobile show does. Is it that all of us who go expect in the near future to have an automobile and go there to see what it shall be? Or is it possible—and this is too much for one who lives in a house—that this has become our earthly dream, with which association is joy enough, whether we ever possess it or not? We are told that only one in every 15 persons in the United States has an automobile, but that cannot be anything like the number of people who pick their machines out every time the new models are displayed.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

FROM the banks of the broad Potomac
  Came a soldier, straight and true,
To lead the men in homespun
  And in the buff and blue.

Right manfully he bore his share
  Of hunger, cold, defeat!
And in the end the British flags
  Were rolled with muffled beat.

He helped to frame our nation's guide,
  The charter of the free.
And as our Chief Executive
  He served both you and me.

The father of his country wide,
  The servant of his State,
His place unchallenged in our eyes,
  A great man 'mong the great.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

REMOVING RUSSIAN BLOCKADE.

Editorial in New York "Struggling Russia."

THE only good in removing the allied blockade is, as Mr. Herbert Hoover explains in his splendid statement on the subject, that "it will take from the Bolsheviki one of their greatest props." Mr. Hoover points out justly that during the last year the Bolsheviki have laid every failure of their regime to the blockade. "The Bolsheviki daily and hourly blamed the allied blockade for the shortage of food, clothing and agricultural implements, and the misery that has arisen therefrom, and they have succeeded in impressing this upon ignorant people. They have also used it as a stimulus to raise armies under the contention that they are fighting to save themselves from starvation. These shortages and this suffering is not due to the blockade, but is due to the total industrial demoralization and bankruptcy in production, which will continue as long as the Bolshevist rule lasts."

The decision of the supreme council does not present a solution of the Russian problem. It is rather an endeavor to evade the only solution possible—meeting the Bolshevist challenge of democratic civilization in the open, by military force. The Bolshevist armies released from the interior Russian fronts represent a danger which threatens the world's safety and which will have to be met sooner or later. Bolshevism and modern democracy can no more stay together than flame and water. The sooner the democratic nations realize the situation the less sacrifices will be needed for the putting down of Bolshevism, the new deadly foe of democracy.

OUR TRADE WITH CANADA.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

Canadian wholesale grocers to the number of 100 or more have unanimously resolved in favor of discontinuing purchases in this country unless they can pay their bills in Canadian currency. This stand, if adhered to, will raise a lot of interesting questions. Canada is a large and valued customer of the United States and is now, as always, buying of us far more than we buy from Canada. Canada being solvent, normally had no trouble in making payments, as she sold to Great Britain—and still is selling—far more than she buys from them and could pay us in drafts on London. But we do not want drafts on any country of which Canada is an important creditor.

As a result of this situation, Canadian exchange has been steadily sagging in this country. For a time Canada fought to maintain the par by shipping gold or floating war loans here, but now appears to have given up the fight, and exchange on Canada has fallen to around 16 per cent discount. Canada is perfectly solvent in the sense that she has great resources with which to ultimately make good, but is temporarily hard up. Like ourselves, Canada has outstanding credits of very doubtful value. Canadians, however, are proud as well as thrifty, and her wholesale grocers say that if we will not take Canadian money they will not buy of us.

But our people can do nothing with Canadian paper money, except to sell it to someone who can use it in Canada, and owing to the situation that involves a discount just now around 16 per cent. The demand of the Canadians, therefore, is that they shall buy in this country 16 per cent below the prices which our own people pay. The dispatch says that many American manufacturers have accepted those terms.

But when the American people hear that our manufacturers are selling to Canada 16 per cent cheaper than they will sell here at home the rage at profiteering will go stronger than ever. The Federal Trade Commission will doubtless be asked to decide that such sales constitute "unfair dealing," which is strictly forbidden. Canadian competing manufacturers will accuse us of 'dumping" and demand higher duty on imports, and if there are no Canadian competitors Canadian consumers will demand to know why they cannot get the products to which they are accustomed if willing to pay the price. It looks as if there were real trouble ahead.

Events in the Social World

Luncheons and Teas Are Leading Social Diversions as Preparations Are Under Way for Several Drives to Raise Money for Worthy Causes.

MANY people may think that the life of St. Louis' social elite is a continuous round of entertainment, and this may be true during a very short part of the year, but right now an occasional luncheon or small informal tea is about all that is being given in the way of social functions.

But debutantes and matrons are not idle—far from it; they have turned their attention toward more worthy things and are working hard with their usual energy and enthusiasm to raise money for various interests. One of these, The Housing Campaign which is to be launched next month by the Y. W. C. A. and the Letmar Club, is of particular interest to society, inasmuch as preceding the actual drive, a moving picture called "No Address" is to be shown at a number of the moving picture theaters, the Chamber of Commerce and as many other places as possible to advertise the drive.

Mrs. Willard Bartlett will have the star part in the all-St. Louis cast of "No Address," playing the part of Susie Wood, the Elmwood girl, who comes to the city in search of work. Opposite Mrs. Bartlett will be Winston Jones, as Donald Warren, Susie's childhood friend. Others in the cast will be Mrs. Everett W. Pattison, Misses Nancy and Dorothy Walker, Arthur Crunden, Mrs. Herbert Cost, Mrs. Ford Thompson and Miss Eppes Hawes, who will be the Diving Girl and leader of a group of students of Miss White's school in the big swimming pool scene of the film.

Another campaign for a similar purpose has already been launched, and is being conducted by the Women's Christian Association to raise money for The Katharine Springer Home. Mrs. Leland Chivvis is chairman of the drive, and a number of prominent women are working for its success.

The shops along the "Board Walk," which is to be at the Coliseum Easter Week are to be conducted by society matrons, who are more than busy planning and making hats, lingerie and many other pretty things to go on sale at their shops.

The Junior League will soon start rehearsals for its play to be given at the Odeon the middle of April, and the members have been busy visiting downtown offices soliciting advertising for their programs. There is also the Smith College campaign, the Near East Relief and many other things that matrons and maids are working for, and it may well be said that it is a busy time for St. Louis society, even though large balls and parties are nowhere to be found.

THE marriage of Miss Isabel Virginia Lowe and Frank N. Goerner will be solemnized at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, Feb. 25, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Post Taylor, 5811 Bartmer avenue. After a simple ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Goerner will depart for the South, and on their return will be at home after April 1 at 3 Polo Drive, Clayton, Mo. Miss Lowe attended the University of Wisconsin for two years, where she was a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority. Mr. Goerner is the son of H. G. Goerner, 5836 Julian avenue.

Cards have been received announcing the marriage of Miss Jessamyn Ferguson, daughter of Mrs. J. J. Ferguson of 720 Westgate avenue, and George R. Dorrill, which took place Saturday, Feb. 14. Mr. Dorrill and his bride are spending their honeymoon in the East and will be at home after March 1 at 720 Westgate avenue. The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and has been very popular in the younger set.

Mrs. Ralph Marshall Davis, wife of the pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Sarah and Washington boulevard, will be at home every Tuesday afternoon and evening at 4114 Washington boulevard.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Ruf, 5868 Cabanne avenue, who have returned from a several weeks' visit in New Orleans and other points in the South, will depart soon for a trip to California.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond B. Griesedieck, 3847 Flora boulevard, entertained Tuesday evening with nine tables of bridge. The guests included Messrs. and Mmes. Victor Klein, Paul E. Conrades, Edward E. Griesedieck, William Koopman, R. E. Husgen, George Gessler, Robert Brown, Alvin Griesedieck, Oscar Goebel, William G. Drosten; Misses Frances Griesedieck, Amy Leschen, Marie Grone, Tillie Thomson, Ursusa and Fanita Griesedieck, Anna Knapp, Hilda Hellmich, Charlotte Gerhard, Irma Hellmich; Messrs. Clarence Gerhard, Henry, Robert and Anton Griesedieck, William Kollenbaum, Otto Thomson, Roy Frye, Malcolm McMenamy and Mrs. Allen Hunter.

The engagement of Miss Delphene Mittelberg, daughter of Arthur Mittelberg, 432 West Big Bend road, Webster Groves, to James L. McQuie of Montgomery City, Mo., was made known Saturday afternoon at a Valentine party given by the Misses Mittelberg. She is a graduate of the University of Missouri and did post-graduate work at the University of Wisconsin. Mr. McQuie received his education at William Jewell College. Mrs. Clay E. Jordan of the St. Regis Apartments has been appointed chairman of the Box Committee for the coming production of Bossi's "Paradise Lost" by the St. Louis Pageant Choral Society and the St. Louis Symphony orchestra. This performance will be the third given in America of the magnificent composition, and will be given with all possible elaboration. An augmented chorus and the entire Symphony Orchestra will present the piece, under the direction of Frederick Fischer, conductor of the Pageant Choral Society and assistant conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, and there will be three eminent grand opera stars as soloists. The latter are Arthur Middleton, bass-baritone; Lotta Madden, soprano, and Ellen Rumsey, contralto. So many persons have asked for tickets already that the Pageant Choral Society has decided to place them on sale at once, and have opened the sale at 1111 Olive street.

Mrs. Arthur Newton Fath of Humphrey street entertained last Saturday with a bridge party at which the engagement of Miss Helen Fishell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Fishell of 3124 Geyer avenue to G. H. Hofflander of Minneapolis, Minn., was announced. The wedding will take place in June.

One of the interesting affairs of yesterday was the mass meeting of Mary Institute students of the senior and junior classes held yesterday at the St. Louis Woman's Club. The meeting saw the completion of arrangements on the part of the girls of the two classes for their participation in the orangeade shop at the Atlantic City board walk.

Miss Marion Wilson of Windermere place presided at the gathering. Mrs. Thomas L. Anderson and Mrs. Blasdel Shapleigh, will have charge of the shop.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Magid of 5424 Cabanne avenue, entertained about 200 of the younger set with a formal dance in honor of their daughter Gladys Magid, at Olga Bates' dancing studio, on Saturday, Feb. 14. Novelty dances were given by guests at intervals.

The engagement of Miss Kathryn Agnes Schaaf of 3855 Shaw avenue, daughter of Paul A. Schaaf, to Dr. J. D. EAT

What You Will—When You Will—Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Help Digest the Meal.

Good food in itself is harmless. The usual reason stomach troubles arise is due to faulty digestion brought about by overwork, sickness, overeating, late hours, etc.

The best way to correct faulty stomach troubles due to digestive mistakes is to do what nature wants. All that nature usually needs in such cases is a little assistance to do this work. This is why doctors tell you to diet. Nature is then compelled to aid herself. You do not then overwork her when she is already exhausted.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets go into your stomach just like food. They help digest food, and thus, when the next meal is eaten, the system is better prepared to do its work without assistance.

By following this practice many have corrected their stomach troubles, and have conquered the old "bugbear" of indigestion.

Always take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after meals or just before bed time. By doing this you will be acting wisely and playing safe.

Go to your druggist anywhere and buy a box now. Price, 50 cents.

TRY THIS IF YOU HAVE DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

ARCHBISHOPS' LETTER TO BE READ TODAY

Document Issued to Catholic Church Is First of Kind Since 1884.

The pastoral letter of the Archbishops and Bishops of the United States, to the clergy and laity of the Roman Catholic Church in this country, will be read today in the pulpits of all St. Louis Catholic churches. The letter is the first of its kind to be issued since 1884. It is dated from Washington, and is signed James Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop of Baltimore, on behalf of himself and the 100 other Archbishops and Bishops in active charge of dioceses in this country.

Sections of the letter treat of the progress of religion, Catholic education, negroes and Indians, Catholic societies, Catholic war activities, the present world situation, and the teachings of the war as to the necessity of religion.

"If we are to build anew," the letter says, "we must build on a sure foundation, not on quicksand. The stone which the builders of the modern world rejected must become again the head of the corner. In the teaching and example of Jesus Christ, mankind must learn the way of salvation. There is no other."

Marriage and Divorce Discussed.

Justice and charity, marriage and divorce, and industrial relations are the themes of three of the longest sections. Under the second heading, the letter says:

"The Catholic church does not and will not sanction divorce in the absolute sense which permits either of the separated parties to remarry during the lifetime of the other. The ease and frequency with which divorce of this kind is granted, make it a national scandal. The bond, which ought to be most sacred, is regarded by too many as a trivial circumstance, as something of less importance than an ordinary business agreement. So far as this idea prevails, it removes the one safeguard of decency and purity in the sex relation. In a permanent union, that relation possesses a human character; in a temporary arrangement, it falls to the level of animal impulse.

"If the obligations assumed through marriage can be so lightly cancelled, it is hard to see what value shall attach to other covenants when these are not enforceable by law."

On Industrial Relations.

Of the subject of industrial relations, the letters says, in part:

"It is an error to assume that the issues involved are purely economic. They are, at bottom, moral and religious. Their settlement calls for a clear perception of the obligations which justice and charity impose.

"The failure to reach an agreement is due, in large measure, to the supposition that class is naturally hostile to class. In truth, each needs the other. Capital cannot do without labor, nor labor without capital. This is obvious; but the more important point is that capital and labor are bound by mutual obligations, not simply by mutual needs or interests.

"The right of labor to a living wage, with decent maintenance for the present and provision for the future, is generally recognized. The right of capital to a fair day's work for a fair day's pay is equally plain. To secure the practical recognition and exercise of both rights, good will, no less than adherence to justice, is required. Animosity and mistrust should first be cleared away. When this is done, when the parties meet in a friendly, rather than a militant, spirit, it will be possible to effect a conciliation."

Reorganization, foreign missions, needs of the Holy See and the national shrine are other topics. The Pope, it is pointed out, gave without reserve for war relief, and is not now receiving funds from countries which formerly made large contributions to the Holy See. American Catholics are called upon to supply these needs. The plan for a national shrine, to be erected in Washington, has received the Pope's commendation.

COMMUNITY RECREATION PLANS

The Community Service department of the Board of Religious Organizations, under direction of Mrs. W. H. Hudson and Miss Rosa Scott, Y. W. C. A. representatives on the board, and the Y. M. C. A. will cooperate with the Clifton Heights community in opening recreational activities for boys and girls of this section

A Martha Washington tea will launch the enterprise tomorrow evening. Mrs. Gale Fefler will give Hawaiian musical numbers. Miss Scott will give a humorous reading. Miss Mary Baker of the Y. W. C. A. and Miss Marie Hoffman will organize a young girls' club. Miss Harris of the Y. W. C. A. and Mrs. John G. Scott will supervise a dinner club for boys and girls together.

J. A. Wolfe of the Y. M. C. A. will help the Clifton boys to organize for sport.

LAST MEETING OF AUXILIARY

The 138th Auxiliary will hold its final meeting before disbanding, tomorrow night, at the Cabanne Branch Library, Union boulevard and Cabanne avenue. The meeting has been called by the president, Mrs. John Hoffman, to hear reports on the activities of the organization and to determine what disposition shall be made of the funds still remaining in the treasury.

Following the routine business the members will be asked to discuss forming a 138th Infantry Auxiliary to the American Legion. Col. Robert Burkham, chairman of the St. Louis Executive Committee of the American Legion, and other prominent members of that body will speak.

GEN. WEYLER AT 90 ONE OF SPAIN'S ACTIVE MEN

Officer, Much Caricatured in 1898, Now Senator and King's Valued Adviser.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Feb. 27.—Gen. Valeriano Weyler, who during the Spanish-American war was the most caricatured and headlined man in the United States, is still, despite his 90 years and the serious illness that he suffered last year, one of the most active and energetic men in Spain.

His automobile, taking him from his residence near the Royal Palace, across the city to the Ministry of War, where he, as chief of the general staff, presides over the daily sessions of that body, is invariably the first to be seen on the streets of late-rising Madrid. With the little figure in a worn uniform, or later in the year, wrapped in a great coat, the car makes a quick dash through the empty streets bringing the aged Captain-General to his office long before his younger, but not more active colleagues.

Cannot Be Retired.

Being a Captain-General, Gen. Weyler cannot be retired according to Spanish military law, having in this respect one contemporary, the aged Captain-General Primo Rivera. Since the Spanish-American war Weyler has held many offices in Spain and even now, is always called into consultation by the King and Government in times of crisis or impending crisis.

As chief of the general staff during the world war, he saw to it that the army was kept up to strength in case of emergency and that the arsenals were full, so that if Spain should be drawn in, she would not be found unprepared.

Gen. Weyler pays very strict attention to his work as a senator, and he is one of the most regular attendants at the sessions of that body, defending always the prestige of the monarchy, his country and the army.

General Is Wealthy Man.

This little man, whom all Spain respects, saved a good deal of money while doing duty in Cuba and the Philippines, which he invested in Madrid residential property and, with his well rented residences and apartment houses, the General is now a wealthy man. He lives in one of his own houses with several of his sons. He is separated from his wife, and within these four walls he is a gentle and kindly old man, dropping altogether the role of the strict disciplinarian, which he is when on official duty, and dispensing charity with a liberal hand. He brushes aside criticism and even ridicule.

The newspapers sometimes caricature him in costumes of 40 or more years ago, which he sometimes wears. His sons resent this and have often threatened to "call out the authors," but the General, who is credited with having fought many duels in his youth, has always replied, "Leave them alone: public men must expect these things."

Gen. Weyler has a number of sons. One is a Senator, another a Deputy and a third recently joined the Jesuits.

ANOTHER "ORIGINAL" FOURTH EDITION OF "VENUS AND ADONIS"

Discovery Recalls Recent Purchase of Similar Volume for $75,000 by New York Millionaire.

(Copyright, 1920.)

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—George D. Smith will have to come to England again, says the Daily Telegraph. It recalls Smith's recent purchase for a sensational price, £15,000 ($75,000 normally), of the fourth edition (1519) of Shakspeare's "Venus and Adonis" and of the first edition (1199) of "The Passionate Pilgrim."

Then the Daily Telegraph declares another wonder has appeared. Richard Burton has found at his home, Longner Hall, near Shrewsbury, a little volume which contains: 1. Another first edition of 1599 of "The Passionate Pilgrim," with additions made up, from either an unknown earlier edition, or from a portion of that 1606 edition of which no other trace exists. 2. A fifth edition of "Venus and Adonis," now proved by its title page to be of the same year's issue as the fourth, 1599. 3. Another third edition, 1600, of "Lucrece," therefore again disputing the Bodleian Library's claim to possess "the only one perfect copy." 4. A rival to the Lamport Hall copy of the 1595 of the Sonnetts, and 5. A completely unknown continuation of "Lucrece," written in 1600 by Shakspeare's admirer, the versatile Thomas Middleton, under the title of "The Ghost of Lucrece."

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—George D. Smith acted as agent for Henry E. Huntington of this city, when he gave $75,000, the highest price ever paid for a single volume, for the fourth edition of "Venus and Adonis" and the first edition of "The Passionate Pilgrim," which are bound together. The volume, which measures two by three inches, and weighs exactly four ounces, is in Huntington's splendid library.

Use Coco nut Oil fo. Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

OUCHI LAME BACK

Rub Backache, Lumbago, Soreness and Stiffness Away—Try This!

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

Prominent society and business women of St. Louis have assumed the task of raising $90,000 for the adoption of 500 Armenien orphans. The contributions will be made through the Near East Relief, an organization chartered by an act of Congress, and formerly known as the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief. This amount is figured on the basis of $180 required by the organization to provide food, clothing, housing and industrial education for one child for one year. Under the leadership of Mrs. M. Hayward Post as chairman of the St. Louis Women's Organization Division, plans have been perfected for raising this amount of money by the women of the city.

Plans for the campaign took definite form at a luncheon meeting, attended by 100 women in the ballroom of Hotel Statler at noon Friday. The co-operation of various women's organizations, including Catholic, Jewish, Protestant, patriotic and political, was pledged in the support of the movement. Letters of indorsement from Archbishop John J. Glennon, Rabbi Leon Harrison and Bishop Daniel S. Tuttle were read.

A series of functions are being planned by the various women's organizations to raise the goal set by the Women's Committee.

Mrs. Fred D. Gardner, wife of the Governor, is honorary chairman of the Women's Organization Division. In a recent pamphlet Mrs. Gardner appealed to the women of the State to support the campaign.

STORY OF "THE GREAT ST. LOUIS ILLUSION" IS VIVIDLY TOLD

other man of his guild, indeed, if America has produced the greatest newspapers in the world, as is sometimes declared, Joseph Pulitzer must be acclaimed the world's greatest journalist.

"He was a familiar figure on our streets during many years, in fact, during the whole period of the Great Illusion, in which he deeply shared blowing gaudy journalistic bubbles of the Future Great City of the World.

"'Pulitzer was professionally born in St. Louis, serving here his earliest apprenticeship and rising gradually to mastership, which he bore with him to New York. Thus he too, along with many others, fled from the Great Disillusion, when he found it out, to try for a new reality under other skies. And it must be confessed that he more fully realized himself than any other St. Louis man within my horizon except possibly the great bridge-builder, Eads, who was rightly the Supreme Pontiff (Latin, pontifex, bridge-maker) of our river city.

"I first roundly observed Pulitzer in 1868, and had a brief dialogue with him when he came as smooth-faced reporter to the old Central High School, where I was a teacher. It was commencement time and he wished to drum up an item for the Westliche Post.

"He stepped into my classroom unheralded, whipped out his notebook, clutched his pencil and asked me: 'What study is this?' I answered, 'mental philosophy.'

"Philosophy, eh! What good can you get from that?'

"'Some knowledge from the human mind, we hope to have gained,' I replied; 'come, examine us, and perhaps you will be kind enough to show us a sample of your own mind.'

"His Stride Strikingly Aggressive."

"From wide-open eyes, through huge glasses, he flung a stare which made us all wince a little. Then he put up his notebook and started for the door. I followed, saying: 'Glad to know you.' His curious reply was: 'I know you already.'

"Note him as he marches out of my room; his stride is strikingly aggressive, he knows just what he is going for and how to get it with some hurry. In every motion he pushes out as a man of prime initiative, giving a kind of ideal knockdown to any obstacle.

"The first appreciation of Pulitzer I ever heard was thundered from the lips of Brockmeyer: 'That young fellow,' he said, 'cinches the future; he is now engaged in the making of a greater man than Editor Daenzer or Editor Preetorius or even Schurz.'

"To understand this we must remember that Pulitzer never could win the respect of those high-toned German editors, who made fun of him while exploiting his talent, until he set up for himself in an English newspaper.

"On the other hand, I was with Judge Woerner on a hot day, taking a sip of philosophic Germany's cool beverage at Tony Faust's, when Pulitzer came up to us and began quite an oration in praise of Brockmeyer's work in the constitutional convention of 1876, of which Pulitzer, too, was a member. He, like me, had gone to school to Brockmeyer and had learned even his peculiar scream-like vociferation, when becoming a little eruptive. That was at least my view, though he might not have thought so himself.

Politics and City Life His Element.

"Thus Pulitzer, in spite of himself, took up into his composition a strain of the St. Louis Movement, of whose training he was probably unconscious. That secret, subtle demiurge, Brockmeyer, laid his spell upon the young receptive genius—there being some 20 years of life-experience between their ages. Pulitzer quit his own political party and finally joined that of Brockmeyer, where he stayed for the rest of his life. I heard Brockmeyer claim (I know nothing of the matter myself) that through his influence Pulitzer was appointed Police Commissioner.

"Pulitzer, however, never showed any turn, as far as I am aware, for Brockmeyer's other supreme endowment, philosophy. The immediate sense-world of politics and city life was his chosen element, being the prime material for journalism, in which he must have already felt his great career throbbing toward fulfillment. In 1883 he quit St. Louis for New York, after a stay of some 17 years. He chafed against his journalistic limits on this ever-narrowing spot. St. Louis lost in him a great man, who had the insight and the power to seize and exploit more fully than ever before the possibilities of the mighty social weapon, the Newspaper."

Watching Building of Eads Bridge.

Dr. Snider gives a finely written and diverting chaper to "The Eads Bridge." He records that while in the high school he "went to school to the Eads bridge" for seven years, the period of its erection. He studied the bridge, not as a work of engineering, but "as an expression of the time, uttered by a master mind. "I came to understand," he says, "why the old Romans made their bridge-builder (Pontifex) a divine person or high priest, communing with Jupiter for a structure to cross over even a little Tiber. And their chief one in this business was called the Supreme Pontiff. This office with its name descended into the Christian Church, whose highest functionary is held in veneration as God's own vicegerent, and bridge-maker from earth to heaven for men."

The Rev. Dr. Robert A. Holland, rector in his day of St. George's Episcopal Church, and Miss Susan E. Blow, an educator of established reputation, are two St. Louisans of recent times who receive extended mention in Dr. Snider's book. Dr. Holland opened his guild-room to Dr. Snider's literary classes at a time when other church folk were not so liberal. Miss Blow, whose religious orthodoxy was earnest, became deeply interested in the philosophical movement and in the study of Dante and other great authors, whose works Dr. Snider classes as "literary Bibles." She broke sharply with him, he relates, on an issue which seemed to her to involve her religious belief, which arose in his discussion of the philosophy of Goethe's "Faust" before the philosophical kindergarten class, which Miss Blow conducted. This break was a lasting one, as Miss Blow later refused to be reconciled with Dr. Snider.

intendent of schools, appears in the narrative as a student of the "literary Bibles," particularly of Dante, and a speaker before the class which, for a time, Dr. Snider conducted in Chicago. He did not acquit himself well on his first appearance, the writer relates, not having expected to address so large a body as confronted him, but in a second appearance he spoke with distinction.

Brockmeyer, the author relates, became soured with politics when he failed to attain the United States senatorship and left Missouri for the Indian Territory, where he lived for years among the less advanced Indian tribes. Dr. Snider once went to the territory to help him start kindergarten classes for Indian children.

In the opening of his work Dr. Snider treats of the capture of Camp Jackson, which took place before his arrival in St. Louis, but which he regarded as "The Great St. Louis Deed," of incalculable effect toward the preservation of the Union. He considered the leader of that time, Francis P. Blair, as "The St. Louis Hero," though he chronicles his later comparative eclipse by Schurz. The ascendancy gained by the German element in St. Louis, through the Camp Jackson victory, is also discussed in its various phases.

HOW CRIMINAL GERMAN WAR SECRETS WERE GIVEN TO U. S. GOVERNMENT

in perfect safety was the name of a former high Government official.

Purpose Far Reaching.

The purpose of this German marine insurance combine was far reaching. In the first place, it would underbid all British and other companies and try to gain a monopoly on the marine insurance business in the United States. How, one may ask, could they afford to underbid all other companies?

Simply because the German Government could well afford to pay large premiums for the information it would thus get regarding sailing schedules, cargoes and manifests of all shipments to the allies from the United States. This vastly important knowledge was to be promptly passed to the commanders of submarines. Then they could be told not only which cargoes it would be particularly desirable to sink, but which ones it would be for Germany's interests to spare.

A report of the proposed operations of this combine was submitted some time ago to the Senate investigating committee known as the Overman committee, by Charles F. De Woody then superintendent of the New York office of the Bureau of Investigation.

In that report is a letter from Dr. Albert to one of the heads of the German insurance pool, which shows how Albert was striving to use the insurance companies as a means of obtaining the information needed by German submarine officers. The letter follows:

"Dear Sir—Inasmuch as the pool arrangement specifies that risks shall be underwritten only with my approval, it is essential that I be acquainted with the risks to be underwritten, and that I authorize the underwriting of same before the business is concluded.

"I have no desire to create any hardship for you in the handling of the insurance business for the pool. My approval, however, is a part of the pool arrangement, and a way should be found which will enable me to dispose of my duties in connection with the pool satisfactory to the German interests and to myself.

"I would therefore request that when a steamer to Scandinavia starts loading a request be sent to me from your office for my authorization for an open insurance line for the steamer in question. I presume you will find a way to present to me the details for approval before risks are actually undertaken, and not after."

Leaders Still in America.

The German at the head of this insurance scheme and some of his associates are still in the United States. Unless proper governmental action is taken it may become, even yet, an important factor in connection with Germany's hopes to wage a successful fight against American commerce.

Many of Dr. Albert's personal letters revealed much of the treacherous streak that was found to exist in various Germans living in this country. For example, there was the case of Mr. H., a prosperous business man having offices in lower Broadway. H. had come, years previous from a part of Germany near the home of Dr. Albert. Having prospered here and gained much wealth, his personal vanity led him to hope that Albert might go back to the home town and tell about how well he was doing.

As Albert was looked upon as an intellectual and he himself, on the other hand, was of comparatively humble origin, he thought it would make a great impression upon his relatives in the old country to have Albert say that they had become acquainted here in the United States. So he began to pursue Albert with dinner invitations. Albert seemingly paid little attention to these and so H. felt obliged to adopt more drastic measures for ingratiating himself upon Albert. He began to write letters in which he volunteered the information that, though he had been living in the United States for nearly a quarter of a century and had been naturalized for most of that time, he had only profound contempt for all Americans.

In other letters he spoke at length of his views on the Lusitania disaster and declared that the Americans whose lives were lost got no more than their just deserts. After this letter had been translated H. was sent for by Government agents and asked casually about his acquaintance and relations with Albert. He, of course, denied ever having written to Albert. Then a letter in his handwriting and bearing his signature was shown to him and it was suggested that inasmuch as he had profound contempt for Americans he probably held his citizenship rather lightly, in which case he would not object to having his papers taken from him.

It was further pointed out that if he were no longer a citizen he could be interned, and when interned his property should be sold and later he might be deported from these shores. This whole prospect, particularly the danger of losing his property, so stirred his emotions that he began to wail and scream like a madman. He was ready to betray his mother if only by so doing he could save what he termed his "family honor."

Arrest of Clever Woman Spy.

Here is a letter that was typical of a large number found in the captured German correspondence relating to the activities of the various German agents, and which led to the arrest of a great many such agents:

"Imperial German Consulate, Chicago, Ill., Sept. 8, 1915. According to a confidential communication just received by me, an order for 500,000 rifles for the London armory was received by wire by the Winchester Arms Manufacturing Co. of New Haven, on Aug. 5 last from London.

"A woman who is in the service of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Co. in New York, is said to have given out the telegram in question. Her name is Wanda Kreutsinger (Postal Telegraph Co.), New York City. If the occasion should arise she will be there ready to give further verbal information. My confidential man asks that this matter be treated strictly as a secret, so that the said lady may not lose her position.

"The Administrator of the Imperial Consulate,

"VON RAISWITZ."

"To the Imperial Ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, Excellency, Washington, D. C."

(A note in pencil on this letter says: "To the Military Attache." Below, in ink, is the note: "To Herr von Igel.")

This letter alone was not sufficient to convict the Kreutsinger woman and it was necessary to have her caught in the act of trying to give out such information to the Germans. A Government agent was sent to "rope" her and a clever trap was successfully laid for her.

LIFE BELTS CONTAIN WHISKY

Revenue Agents Discover New Scheme to Beat Dry Law.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—A dry land life preserver is the latest device to be tried as a means of circumventing prohibition. Two men were stopped early today by a customs guard as they were leaving the Portuguese ship Mormugao, and their waists were found to be completely surrounded by whisky contained in tin life preservers.

Each of the tin belts contained about a gallon of whisky. The liquor was seized but the men were permitted to go their way.

FRENCH MEMORIALS OF ARTISTIC NATURE

Certificates to Kin of War Dead to Be Distributed at Armory This Afternoon.

Memorials from France to the nearest of kin of soldiers who died in France will be presented at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the First Regiment Armory, Grand avenue and Market street, under the auspices of the American Legion.

About 1300 copies of the memorial will be distributed in St. Louis, this including all counties included in the St. Louis recruiting district.

The ceremony here will be simultaneous with those held throughout the United States. It will be public, but seats will be reserved for relatives of those who made the supreme sacrifice.

Committee in Charge.

Col. E. J. Spencer, chairman of the Memorial Day Committee of the American Legion, is in charge of the arrangements, assisted by Col. Robert Burkham, chairman of the St. Louis branch of the American Legion, and Maj. S. R. Goodwin of the army recruiting office here.

In bestowing these memoriam certificates France pays homage to America's dead in the world war. The certificates are typical of the artistic nature of the French and contain an engraved group figure on which is the signature of Raymond Poincare, President of France at the time they were awarded. Above this is the sentence "To the memory of a soldier of the United States of America who died for liberty during the great war, the homage of France." Above the group figure is a quotation from Victor Hugo: "The people should come to pray at the graves of those who died for their country."

The group figure has been interpreted as follows:

The principal figure symbolizes the soul and spirit of the American army, the sword is not in the scabbard but ready at any moment to protect the weak and oppressed, symbolized by a mother holding her babe to her breast, and to insure freedom and justice to the coming generation, symbolized by the figure of a kneeling boy, praying. At the right is the figure of a man shackled and chained.

Archbishop to Speak.

This symbolizes the spirit of evil and the victory over the enemies. Covering the figure representing the spirit of America stands "Glory," who rejoices with the world war veteran standing at the left of the principal figure and symbolizing the armies ready to fight for the good of humanity.

Introductory patriotic music will be furnished by the Jefferson Barracks Band. This will be followed by the singing of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," by the band and a chorus. Rev. H. L. Reader, chaplain of the 110th Engineers, will give the invocation.

Addresses will be delivered by Archbishop Glennon, Rabbi Leon Harrison, Dean Carroll M. Davis, chaplain of Base Hospital No. 21, and Marc Seguin, Consul for France in St. Louis.

There will be several selections by the Overseas Quartet and national anthems of France will be sung by Mrs. Karl Kimmel, accompanied by the Jefferson Barracks Band.

AFTER-WAR PLAY AND "BETTER 'OLE" HERE

Courtenay and Hopper Head Casts—Hyams and McIntyre on Orpheum Bill.

William Courtenay, one-time matinee idol, heads the company which will appear at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater tonight in "Civilian Clothes," a comedy by Thompson Buchanan. The company, it is announced, represents a consolidation of the cast which presented this play in New York with the one which appeared in Chicago. Courtenay headed the latter cast. Some of those to appear here are Dorothy Dickinson, Frances Underwood, Isabel Irving, William Holden, Flo Murray, Lloyd Neal, Ray Walburn, J. K. Murray and Frank Sylvester.

The story of "Civilian Clothes" dates from the marriage, near the front in France, of Capt. Sam McGinnis, winner of the Distinguished Service Cross, to a Red Cross worker who comes from a family of wealth and social prominence. War parts them, a week after the wedding, and there is a false report of Capt. McGinnis' death before the Captain returns, in "civies," at his wife's home.

In France, and in uniform, Sam McGinnis looked as fine as any other wearer of a Sam Browne belt. At home, in the clothing he had left at his home in Racine, Wis., before the war, he is a different-looking person. The wife, who had been mourning his supposed death, now mourns his return, and in the succeeding episodes she has to lose some of her snobbishness, while he acquires social polish. "Treat 'em rough," is the plan which he follows in solving the situation.

'Ullo, 'Ere's 'Opper!

De Wolf Hopper (or 'Opper) will be at the American Theater tonight in "The Better 'Ole," the musical play made from the Bairnsfather war cartoons by the artist and Capt. Arthur Eliot, with music by Herman Darewski and Percival Knight. This attraction, with Hopper in the leading role, was here late in the last season.

Two stars of established reputation are to be here next week. Mme. Bertha Kalich will be seen at the Jefferson Sunday night, Feb. 29, in "The Riddle: Woman." Frances Starr is to open at the American Monday night, March 1, in "Tiger! Tiger!" The succeeding attraction at the American will be the Ziegfeld Follies, opening Sunday night, March 7, and for this engagement an extra Friday matinee has been announced on March 12.

John Hyams and Leila McIntyre, who have in the past been seen here at the head of a musical comedy organization, have returned to vaudeville, and will be the chief performers at the Orpheum tomorrow. They appear in "Maybloom," by Frank Stammers.

Other features of the Orpheum bill are Eva Shirley and her group of singers and dancers, Sybil Vane, called "the Galli-Curci of vaudeville, "The Man Hunt," with Isolde Illian, and Clark and Verdi, comedians.

Rialto Changes Policy.

The Rialto Theater, on Grand avenue near Olive street, has anounced a change of policy, and hereafter its vaudeville performances will remain for a week, instead of following the split-week plan. This new arrangement will begin tomorrow, with Singer's Midgets as the headline attraction.

The Grand Opera House will have 14 vaudeville and picture attractions, headed by a musical comedy, "Rolling Along." The Columbia, for the first half of the week, will have Regay and Lorraine Sisters and other stage and film attractions.

Lew Kelley and company are at the Gayety this week, and "Follies of Pleasure" at the Standard.

At Melsheimer's "The Review of 1920," a musical melange, which was presented successfully last week, will be continued nightly at 7 and 11.

JUNIOR PLAYERS WILL PRESENT JACK AND BEANSTALK SATURDAY

Children's Production at Artists' Guild Will Be Played Again a Week Later.

"Jack and the Beanstalk" will be presented by the Junior Players next Saturday afternoon at the Artists' Guild, and also on the following Saturday. There will be a prologue of Spring awakening the sleeping fairies, who have spent the winer under the flowers to aid Jack.

How Jack fights with the giant and escapes with his treasures, cuts down the beanstalk and hurls the giant to destruction, then reforms and takes care of his mother are told in the fairy play, which will have a big cast of children under the direction of Miss Alice Martin and Joseph Solari.

Costumes are designed by Miss Marguerite Breen and stage settings by Laurence Ewald.

Late Edwardsville Street Superintendent Took Out Every Volume in Library.

Henry Langwisch, who died Friday at Edwardsville, Ill., was said to have read every one of the 6000 books in the Edwardsville library. He was formerly Superintendent of Streets and put in all his spare time reading.

Death resulted from revolver wounds self inflicted several weeks ago. His act was attributed to grief over the death of his grand-daughter, Miss Cecile Langkisch.

Eczema Caused Years of Intense Agony

"I have suffered intense agony from eczema on my leg and other parts of my body for years, and received only temporary relief from other preparations. It is only a month since I started to use PETERSON'S OINTMENT, and there is no sign of eczema or itching. You can refer to me."—Geo. C. Talbot, 27 Penfield Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I've got a hundred testimonials," says Peterson of Buffalo, "just as sincere and honest as this one. Years ago, when I first started to put out PETERSON'S OINTMENT, I made up my mind to give a big box for 60 cents, and I am still doing it, as every druggist in the country knows.

"I guarantee PETERSON'S OINTMENT because I know that its mighty healing power is marvelous. I say to every one who buys a box that it is rigidly guaranteed for eczema, salt rheum, old sores, blind, bleeding and itching piles, ulcers, skin diseases, chafing, burns, scalds and sunburn, and if not satisfactory any druggist will return your money." A 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent

Make This Free Test

For the Sake of Whiter, Safer Teeth

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

The dealers named below have been supplied with 10-Day Tubes of Pepsodent. This week a tube will be handed free to anyone who asks. Simply present the coupon. The purpose is to urge a test of this film-removing tooth paste, which leading dentists nowadays advise. Prove the results for your own sake and your children's sake. Learn what they mean to your teeth.

It Is Film
that causes men's teeth to discolor, and that holds tobacco stains.

It Is Film
that clouds women's teeth, spoils their glistening beauty and is the basis of tartar.

It Is Film
which is responsible for decay in children's teeth. It is the source of most tooth troubles.

See How Your Teeth Look When the Film is Gone

There is on your teeth a slimy film. You can feel it with your tongue. It clings to the teeth, gets between the teeth and stays.

The tooth brush doesn't end it. The ordinary dentifrice does not dissolve it. So it clings and, night and day, it may do ceaseless damage.

The Tooth Wrecker

That film is the great tooth wrecker. Most tooth troubles are now traced to it.

The film is what discolors — not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of many other troubles, local and internal.

That is why well-brushed teeth so often discolor and decay, why tartar forms and pyorrhea starts. You leave much of that film.

Tooth troubles are constantly increasing, as statistics show, despite the wide use of the tooth brush. And the reason lies in that film.

Now We Combat It

Dental science, after years of searching, has now found a way to combat film. Able authorities have proved it by convincing clinical and laboratory tests. Thousands of dentists have proved it, and at least a million people.

The results are seen everywhere in cleaner, whiter teeth. Some of your own friends have them.

For home use, this method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. And this week you can test it at our cost.

Based on Pepsin

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to constantly combat it.

Pepsin long seemed impossible. It must be activated, and the usual method is an acid harmful to the teeth. But dental science has discovered a harmless activating method. And that method, used in Pepsodent, enables all to daily use this efficient film combatant.

Watch the Results

We urge you to present the coupon. Get the 10-Day Tube and use like any tooth paste. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how the teeth whiten — how they glisten — as the fixed film disappears.

Compare the results with your old methods. Then let your own teeth decide the method best for you and yours.

This is of lifetime importance. Don't neglect it. Cut out this coupon so you won't forget.

Baby Shunned Because of Eczema!

John M. Shonting, 601 Main St., Lancaster, Ohio, writes:

"My baby boy contracted a severe case of Eczema which covered his face and head. Visitors to our home would shun my child because he looked so terrible. I procured a bottle of D. D. D. In an incredibly short time my boy was cured."

Thousands of letters from grateful users of D. D. D. prove its wonderful results in healing torturing skin disease. The very first application allays the itching and burning. Why not try a bottle at once and be convinced? Your money back if the first bottle does not bring relief. 35c, 60c and $1.00. Try D.D.D. Soap, too.

COL. POTTER HEADS RIVER COMMISSION

New President Familiar With Work—Will Reside in in St. Louis.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Hispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21,—Secretary of War Baker has approved the recommendation of the Chief of Engineers that Col. Charles L. Potter be made president of the Mississippi River Commission to succeed Col. Curtis McD. Townsend, retired, and that Lieutenant-Colonel Harry Burgess and Col. Herbert Deakyne be made members of the commission to fill other vacancies.

All these appointments are subject to presidential approval and to confirmation by the Senate. The approval by Baker, however, is generally regarded as final.

Appointment of these three officers will mark the inauguration of a new policy of linking the work of the district and division engineers stationed permanently on the river with the work of the commission.

Col. Potter will be made a division engineer at the same time that he becomes head of the commission and thus will be in charge not only of channel work on his section of river but also of the levee work that is carried on by the river commission. As president of the commission the law requires that he shall live in St. Louis.

Lieutenant-Colonel Burgess will be stationed permanently at Rock Island, Ill., both as district engineer and as commissioner, while Col. Deakyne at New Orleans will combine the functions of division engineer and commissioner.

Col. Potter is described by his associates as having had more experience in river work than any other high ranking officer of the corps. This experience dates back to 1886. He is said to be thoroughly familiar with the Mississippi, having served as district engineer at Memphis from 1899 to 1903 and as secretary of Mississippi River Commission at St. Louis from 1910 to 1912. For the last two years he has been at San Francisco as engineer of the Pacific division, where in the direction of flood control projects on the Sacramento he has done work similar to that confronting him on the Mississippi River.

FRANCIS READY TO SERVE PARTY AS CANDIDATE FOR ANY OFFICE

Ambassador Announces Attitude in Reply to Inquiry Proposing Race for Vice President.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JOPLIN, Mo., Feb. 21.—A Francis-for-Senator Club organized here by former Judge Haywood Scott, has been unsuccessful in its efforts to induce David R. Francis of St. Louis, Ambassador to Russia, to become a candidate for senator, and has now changed its purpose to an effort to induce him to become a candidate for Vice President.

In reply to a telegram asking him whether he would accept second place on the national ticket, Francis wired:

"I am in no sense a candidate, but if the Democratic party should nominate me for any office, my interest in Democratic success and my sense of party duty would impel me to accept."

Francis has refused to be a candidate for senator unless assured he would have no opposition. His friends have been unable to give that assurance.

BOONVILLE, Mo., Feb. 21.—Fire destroyed the furniture stock of George & Goodman and wrecked the building here early this morning, causing a property loss of $35,000. It is believed that burglars broke into the store in the night and ransacked the office, leaving a lighted cigarette near something inflammable, starting the fire. A Splendid Hair Grower and Beautifier

Found at Last—Shows Results in Few Days or Nothing to Pay.

Parisian Sage Surprises and Delights—It Positively Does Not Change the Natural Color of the Hair.

Here is good news for all men and women whose hair is faded, dry, streaked and scraggly—is falling out badly and whose scalps are covered with dandruff and itch like mad.

Our local druggists can now supply you with the genuine Parisian sage (liquid form), which is guaranteed to quickly and safely abolish every sign of dandruff, stop itching scalp and falling hair and promote a new growth, or money refunded.

Thousands can testify to the excellent results from its use; some who feared becoming hairless now glory in their abundant hair, while others who suffered for years with dandruff and itching head got a clean, healthy scalp after just a few days' use of this simple home treatment.

No matter whether bothered with falling hair, matted, stringy hair, dandruff or itching scalp, try Parisian sage—you will not be disappointed. It's a scientific preparation that supplies hair needs.

The first application should make your hair and scalp look and feel 100 per cent better. If you want thick, lustrous hair, and lots of it, by all means use Parisian sage. Don't delay—begin tonight. A little attention now helps insure abundant hair for years to come.

A STUBBORN COUGH LOOSENS RIGHT UP

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c.

GOOD WILL INDUSTRIES TO HAVE $150,000 STORE

Factory and Clothes Repair Shop to Be Operated to Provide Work for Poor.

Construction of the new store and church building of the Good Will Industries of Tyler Methodist Episcopal Church, which will be built on the southeast corner of Thirteenth and Tyler streets, opposite the church, at a cost of about $150,000, will begin about March 1. The money was supplied by the Methodist Centenary. Eighteen thousand dollars was alsa given for maintenance.

The Good Will Industries is a nonsectarian organization, which provides work for poor and incapacitated women, by operating a store and factory in which old clothes, shoes and furniture, collected from well-to-do people are thoroughly cleaned, repaired and remodeled, and sold to the people living in the neighborhood of the church at very low prices. The present location of the factory is in the rear rooms of the church.

Homes Called Up for Clothing.

At the present time two girls, employed by the organization, work all day calling up homes in the better residential districts, and asking the occupants if they will permit them to send one of their bags to the home to be filled with discarded wearing apparel. If permission is given, the bag is sent and remains in the home until filled, when an automobile calls for it and takes it to the factory.

The contents are then sorted. Anything soiled is sent to the laundry, where four women are employed. The other articles are sent to the workroom, where six women are engaged in sewing up tears, sewing on buttons and even manufacturing new articles from pieces. Finished articles are sent to the tailor shop, to be pressed, after which they are priced and offered for sale in the store. Shoes are sent to the very modern shoe shop, where they are put in first-class condition. Furniture is sold in a separate building at Ninth and Warren streets. Hats are sent to the hatroom, where they are cleaned and reblocked.

Every conceivable article of wearing apparel for men, women and children is offered for sale in the store at very low prices. Suits, dresses, shirts, underwear, socks, overcoats shoes and hats of all sizes may be had. The prices are plainly marked on the articles. The different kinds of apparel are in separate bins and customers are allowed to look through them and select suitable sizes.

The new building will be a five-story brick and stone structure, measuring 100 by 60 feet, well supplied with light by an abundance of windows. The entrance will be on the corner. Elevator service will be provided.

Factory on Second Floor.

The store and offices will be on the first floor. The factory, where the women will work, will be on the secon dfloor. A tailor shop, equipped with power machines, electric irons, pressing and clothes cleaning machines, will be on the third floor. A printing shop, where all church publications will be printed, will also be on this floor. A completely equipped gymnasium for the young people of the church will be on the top floor. A craft school, in which manual trades will be taught young boys, is being planned for the basement which will also contain a storeroom and receiving room.

The Rev. Thomas E. Greene, pastor of the church, and superintendent of the Industries, said yesterday that he expects to be able to employ about 150 women a day when the organization is established in its new quarters, about June 1. About 20 a day are employed at present. He also expects the business to increase from $10,000, the figure last year, to $60,000 a year. About 4500 bags are in St. Louis homes, now, he said, but he wants to see 25,000 in them.

MEALS AT OPEN AIR SCHOOLS NOW COST 22 CENTS A DAY

St. Louis Tuberculosis Society Has to Meet Increase, Which is 5 Cents in Last Year.

Because the price of foodstuffs has increased 65 per cent in the last year, and the price of dining-room and kitchen help has increased 23 per cent, the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society has been obliged to meet an increase in the price of the meals furnished to children at the open-air schools to 22 cents a day, as against 17 cents a day a year ago.

Two years ago the children in these schools were fed for 13 cents a day each. Last year the soaring prices caused an advance to 17 cents a day, and six months later to 20 cents. Now it is impossible to give the children the food they require, according to the system of dietetics, which is part of the special school plan in all open-air schools, for less than 22 cents a day each.

The Board of Education operates the lunchrooms at these schools at cost, and 180 children receive three meals a day six days a week at the two day open-air schools. Children who can afford to pay for their meals do so, but those who cannot pay receive their meals from the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society. About 71 per cent of the children cannot pay for their own meals, and are fed by the Tuberculosis Society.

The two schools are at 1540 South Grand avenue and 5436 Natural Bridge road, and are special schools of the regular public school system of St. Louis.

"Diamond Dyes" Make Shabby Apparel Stylish and New.

Don't worry about perfect results. Use "Diamond Dyes," guaranteed to give a new, rich, fadeless color to any fabric, whether it be wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods—dresses, blouses, stockings, skirts, children's coats, feather, draperies, coverings.

A Splendid Hair Grower and Beautifier

Found at Last—Shows Results in Few Days or Nothing to Pay.

Parisian Sage Surprises and Delights—It Positively Does Not Change the Natural Color of the Hair.

Here is good news for all men and women whose hair is faded, dry, streaked and scraggly—is falling out badly and whose scalps are covered with dandruff and itch like mad.

Our local druggists can now supply you with the genuine Parisian sage (liquid form), which is guaranteed to quickly and safely abolish every sign of dandruff, stop itching scalp and falling hair and promote a new growth, or money refunded.

Thousands can testify to the excellent results from its use; some who feared becoming hairless now glory in their abundant hair, while others who suffered for years with dandruff and itching head got a clean, healthy scalp after just a few days' use of this simple home treatment.

No matter whether bothered with falling hair, matted, stringy hair, dandruff or itching scalp, try Parisian sage—you will not be disappointed. It's a scientific preparation that supplies hair needs.

The first application should make your hair and scalp look and feel 100 per cent better. If you want thick, lustrous hair, and lots of it, by all means use Parisian sage. Don't delay—begin tonight. A little attention now helps insure abundant hair for years to come.

A STUBBORN COUGH LOOSENS RIGHT UP

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molosses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c.

GOOD WILL INDUSTRIES TO HAVE $150,000 STORE

Factory and Clothes Repair Shop to Be Operated to Provide Work for Poor.

Construction of the new store and church building of the Good Will Industries of Tyler Methodist Episcopal Church, which will be built on the southeast corner of Thirteenth and Tyler streets, opposite the church, at a cost of about $150,000, will begin about March 1. The money was supplied by the Methodist Centenary. Eighteen thousand dollars was alsa given for maintenance.

The Good Will Industries is a nonsectarian organization, which provides work for poor and incapacitated women, by operating a store and factory in which old clothes, shoes and furniture, collected from well-to-do people are thoroughly cleaned, repaired and remodeled, and sold to the people living in the neighborhood of the church at very low prices. The present location of the factory is in the rear rooms of the church.

Homes Called Up for Clothing.

At the present time two girls, employed by the organization, work all day calling up homes in the better residential districts, and asking the occupants if they will permit them to send one of their bags to the home to be filled with discarded wearing apparel. If permission is given, the bag is sent and remains in the home until filled, when an automobile calls for it and takes it to the factory.

The contents are then sorted. Anything soiled is sent to the laundry, where four women are employed. The other articles are sent to the workroom, where six women are engaged in sewing up tears, sewing on buttons and even manufacturing new articles from pieces. Finished articles are sent to the tailor shop, to be pressed, after which they are priced and offered for sale in the store. Shoes are sent to the very modern shoe shop, where they are put in first-class condition. Furniture is sold in a separate building at Ninth and Warren streets. Hats are sent to the hatroom, where they are cleaned and reblocked.

Every conceivable article of wearing apparel for men, women and children is offered for sale in the store at very low prices. Suits, dresses, shirts, underwear, socks, overcoats shoes and hats of all sizes may be had. The prices are plainly marked on the articles. The different kinds of apparel are in separate bins and customers are allowed to look through them and select suitable sizes.

The new building will be a five-story brick and stone structure, measuring 100 by 60 feet, well supplied with light by an abundance of windows. The entrance will be on the corner. Elevator service will be provided.

Factory on Second Floor.

The store and offices will be on the first floor. The factory, where the women will work, will be on the secon dfloor. A tailor shop, equipped with power machines, electric irons, pressing and clothes cleaning machines, will be on the third floor. A printing shop, where all church publications will be printed, will also be on this floor. A completely equipped gymnasium for the young people of the church will be on the top floor. A craft school, in which manual trades will be taught young boys, is being planned for the basement which will also contain a storeroom and receiving room.

The Rev. Thomas E. Greene, pastor of the church, and superintendent of the Industries, said yesterday that he expects to be able to employ about 150 women a day when the organization is established in its new quarters, about June 1. About 20 a day are employed at present. He also expects the business to increase from $10,000, the figure last year, to $60,000 a year. About 4500 bags are in St. Louis homes, now, he said, but he wants to see 25,000 in them.

MEALS AT OPEN AIR SCHOOLS NOW COST 22 CENTS A DAY

St. Louis Tuberculosis Society Has to Meet Increase, Which is 5 Cents in Last Year.

Because the price of foodstuffs has increased 65 per cent in the last year, and the price of dining-room and kitchen help has increased 23 per cent, the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society has been obliged to meet an increase in the price of the meals furnished to children at the open-air schools to 22 cents a day, as against 17 cents a day a year ago.

Two years ago the children in these schools were fed for 13 cents a day each. Last year the soaring prices caused an advance to 17 cents a day, and six months later to 20 cents. Now it is impossible to give the children the food they require, according to the system of dietetics, which is part of the special school plan in all open-air schools, for less than 22 cents a day each.

The Board of Education operates the lunchrooms at these schools at cost, and 180 children receive three meals a day six days a week at the two day open-air schools. Children who can afford to pay for their meals do so, but those who cannot pay receive their meals from the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society. About 71 per cent of the children cannot pay for their own meals, and are fed by the Tuberculosis Society.

The two schools are at 1540 South Grand avenue and 5436 Natural Bridge road, and are special schools of the regular public school system of St. Louis.

Two thousand special invitations have been sent to citizens and future citizens to attend the pageant and reception tonight in honor of Washington's birthday, at the Community Service Hall, Grand and Vista avenues, at 7:30. The hall will accommodate about 1600 persons.

Seven hundred of these invitations have gone to citizens receiving naturalization papers during the past two years. Although tickets of admission have been issued it is not necessary to have one of these tickets in order to gain admittance. Admission is free.

A specially arranged tableau will be given by the following groups in native costumes: Jugo-Slavs, Czecho-Slovaks, Ukrainian Societies, Scottish Clans, Hungarians, Rumanians and Lithuanians.

Croatian Girl to Sing.

One of the attractive features of the entertainment will be the singing of Miss Mileva B. Svast, a Croatian girl, who will appear in the native Croatian costume.

Harry ter Braak, industrial secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will be chairman of the meeting; James R. Dunn. Chief Immigration Inspector, will extend a word of welcome, and John B. Edwards will deliver the principal address.

The program will be opened with a representation of Columbia and other patriotic figures, followed by the singing of America by the audience. An invocation then will be delivered by Father J. J. Butler. James R. Dunn, Immigration Commissioner; J. B. Edwards and Dr. John W. McIvor will be the speakers.

Slavs to Give Dances.

The Slavic societies have charge of most of the program and their members, dressed in native costumes, will present the dances and songs of their country. The Scottish Order of Clans will give the highland fling, accompanied by pipers. The closing tableau will depict Uncle Sam, the Statue of Liberty, President Wilson and two soldiers in uniform as the audience sings the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Among those on the Reception Committee are Mrs. N. A. McMillan, Mrs. B. M. Bass, R. M. Bevington, Dr. John W. Withers, F. C Rand and Vincent Budrovich

The purpose is not only to fittingly celebrate the birthday but to extend to new citizens and potential citizens a welcome to American fellowship.

"ROVING MARINES" TO BE AT ARMORY TOMORROW NIGHT

Company Also Will Give Free Show at Knights of Columbus Hall Tuesday Evening.

"The Roving Marines," a detachment of enlisted men of the United States Marine Corps, will give a free entertainment at the Armory tomorrow night and at the Knights of Columbus Hall Tuesday evening.

The company is touring the Middle West in an effort to show the young men of the country the type of men who make up the peace-time corps. The performance is along the lines of the soldier shows of the A. E. F. in France.

There are 60 men in the detachment, including a military band, a jazz band, a double quartet, several soloists and comedians, a lariat thrower, who used to be a cowpuncher before he enlisted in the corps, and half a dozen boxers.

There will be two reels of Marine motion pictures, showing life in the Marine Corps in the West Indies, where Marines are on duty in Hayti, San Domingo, Cuba and the Virgin Islands. One of the features is the panorama of Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, known as the "Paradise of the Tropics." Other views show the work of the Marines of the aviation force and a chase through the jungle in pursuit of Haytian bandits.

W. U. MUSICAL CLUBS IN CONCERT AT ODEON TUESDAY

Jazz Music and Solos by Well-Known Musicians to Intersperse Program.

Jazz music and solos by well-known musicians will intersperse a program of choruses and instrumental numbers at the annual St. Louis concerts of the Washington University Glee and Mandolin Clubs, which will be given at the Odeon Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. Dan Bartlett, a returned officer of the A. E. F., and former member of Thyrsus Dramatic Club, and Fred Pavey, said to be the only man on the university campus who does not grin at a Pavey joke, will appear in blackface as "A Coupla Duds."

Forty-eight men, the largest number ever participating in an annual tour, will appear.

Herbert Hausman, vocalist, and Henry Arthur, pianist, will render several numbers. "Madelon," popular song of French soldiers, will be sung by the Glee Club. A final touch of university color will be given when the program ends with the Alma Mater song.

Just Yellow Mustard for Backache, Lumbago

Grandmother's old mussy mustard plaster or poultice generally brought relief allright even in the severest cases, but it burned and blistered like blazes. "Heat eases pain," reduces the inflammation and scatters congestion, but you'll find that while Begy's Mustarine, made of true yellow mustard and other pain destroyers, is just as hot as the old-fashioned plaster, it is much quicker, cleaner and more effective and cannot blister.

It's a great external remedy—just rub it on wherever aches, pains, inflammation, congestion or swelling exists and in a very few minutes the relief you have longed for surely arrives because "Heat eases pain." 30 and 60 cents at druggists or by mail. S. C. Wells & Co., LeRoy, N. Y.

ST. LOUIS TO GET OKLAHOMA OIL BY PIPE LINE IN YEAR

Western Refiners' Association Executive Committee Announces Plan to Cheapen Transportation.

Believing that an increase in freight rates is impending, the executive committee of the Western Petroleum Refiners' Association, meeting Friday night in Kansas City, announced that it had determined to build a pipe line to carry gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil from the mid-continent field in Oklahoma through St. Louis to Chicago, serving customers enroute. The method of transportation now is by tank cars over railroads.

The estimated cost of such a pipe line is $7,000,000. It is said that the needed capital has been obtained and that the line will be in operation within a year. This will be the first pipe line to carry light oils from Oklahoma. Several lines now carry crude oil.

It is proposed to further obtain cheaper transportation by establishing, at the point the pipe line crosses the Mississippi River, facilities for transferring the refined oils to river carriers for transport to customers as far north as St. Paul, as far south as New Orleans, and to points on the Ohio and Tennessee Rivers. It further is proposed to build a pipe line from Oklahoma to New Orleans for the transport of gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil for export.

E. E. Shock, president of the Indiahoma Refining Co., which has its main offices in St. Louis and refineries in East St. Louis and Okmulgee, Okla., is chairman of a committee named to establish the pipe line.

"This pipe line will enable the independent refineries to more closely follow the competition of the Standard Oil Co.," Shock said. "The Standard now has several pipe lines through which it sends crude oils to refineries scattered in various parts of the country, where it refines the oils and ships to customers at a minimum freight charge." Recently the rates on light oils in tank cars from Oklahoma were advanced, while the Standard escaped a raise on its pipe line carrying costs. The delivery of gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil to customers of independent refineries by pipe line will tend to reduce the advantage enjoyed by the Standard."

Eleven independent refineries are concerned in the pipe line. They are the Indiahoma Refining Co., Constantin Refining Co., Phoenix Refining Co., Empire Refineries, Inc., Cosden & Co., Shaffer Oil and Refining Co., Marland Refining Co., Ardmore Refining Co., Producers and Refiners' Corporation, Lake Park Refining Co., Kansas City Refining Co.

MISS MORGAN PLEASED WITH SUCCESS HERE

Daughter of Late Financier Departs After Making Several Addresses for French Fund.

Miss Anne Morgan of New York, daughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, who had been in St. Louis since Thursday awakening interest in a campaign to raise funds for aiding the people of France to rebuild their devastated farms and cities, departed last night for Nashville, Tenn. She will visit New Orleans, Memphis, Houston, Dallas and San Antonio before returning to New York and on April 8 expects to return overseas.

She told a Post-Dispatch reporter she met with splendid success in arousing interest in the French people during her stay in St. Louis. No attempt was made to raise funds at this time, and no date was set for the opening of the campaign, that being left entirely with the local committee, of which Paul Bakewell is chairman and Ambassador David R. Francis, honorary chairman.

"I quite realize," said Miss Morgan, "that there have been so many so-called 'drives' that the people of St. Louis and the nation are heartily tired of hearing of them. The people of this city have responded so nobly to all of these that it seems almost a shame to ask them for more money and I do not want this campaign to ge known as a 'drive.' It will not be. There will be no begging, no solicitation, the funds must come voluntarily and whole heartedly.

"There will be no set quotas here nor elseyhere. Whatever is given the people of France will be thankful for, you may be sure of that, end I feel that in my brief visit in St. Louis I have succeeded in arousing a remarkable degree of interest not through any ability of my own but merely because I have been able to tell the people just what conditions exist over there."

While in St. Louis, Miss Morgan delivered several addresses, speaking at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon Thursday, at the St. Louis Club that evening, at the Credit Men's luncheon Friday and at the City Club yesterday.

How Many Pounds of Red Blood Corpuscles Have You in Your Body?

You Are Weighed In the Scale of Life Every Day

And It Is the Iron in Your Blood That Tips the Beam Up or Down. Is Your Blood Rich in Iron? Physician Says That the Men and Women Who Are Full of Life, Vitality and Endurance Have Plenty of Iron in Their Blood, While Those Who Lack Iron Are Often Weak, Nervous, Worn-out and Unhappy—

HOW NUXATED IRON HELPS MAKE RICH RED BLOOD—

Steadies the Nerves, Puts Strength Into the Muscles—and Keeps the Body Active and Tingling With Energy.

You Should Have Between Four and Five Pounds of Red Blood Iron-Containing Corpuscles and about 11 pounds of blood in your body—if you weigh 150 pounds.

Are you up to the Mark?

4 TO 5 POUNDS OF RED BLOOD IRON-CONTAINING CORPUSCLES

Study This Picture Carefully

It is a striking and pathetically true illustration of the unfortunate position in life of tens of thousands of men and women whose blood lacks the necessary iron to give them health, strength and happiness. Are you one of them? Do you know where you stand in the scale of life? Read the statements of the physicians quoted below.

Whether you realize it or not you are tested in the scales of life every day—and it is the iron in your blood that tips the beam up or down. If you weigh around 150 pounds you probably have about 11 pounds of blood. But what kind of blood? Is it pure, strong and full of red corpuscles, vibrant with iron? Or is it pale, weak, and colorless? Your blood should contain between 4 and 5 pounds of red blood iron-containing corpuscles busily building health, strength, and energy for you. But you cannot have this life-giving, stamina-supplying force within you if your blood lacks iron. When the iron in your blood runs low your red blood corpuscles die by millions, and the aggressive conquering vigor goes from your body, the color from your face, the strength and endurance from your muscles and the keenness from your brain. Blood tests have often shown that thousands of people who are sick, ailing and run-down are suffering from nothing more nor less than lack of sufficient iron in the blood.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "Modern methods of cooking and the rapid pace at which people of this country live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women that I have often marveled at the large number of people who lack iron in the blood—and who never suspect the cause of their weak, nervous, run-down state. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their weak, anaemic, run-down patients. But in my opinion you can't make these strong, vigorous, successful, sturdy iron men by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a digestive process to transform them into organic iron—Nuxated Iron—before they are ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original package and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package. If you have taken preparations such as Nux and Iron and other similar iron products and failed to get results, remember that such products are an entirely different thing from Nuxated

Dr. H. B. Vail, formerly Physician in the Baltimore Hospital and a Medical Examiner, says: "Throughout my experience on Hospital Staffs and as a Medical Examiner, I have been astonished at the number of patients who have vainly doctored for various diseases, when in reality their delicate, run-down state was simply the result of lack of iron in the blood. Time and again I have prescribed organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and surprised patients at the rapidity with which the weakness and general debility was replaced by a renewed feeling of strength and vitality. I took Nuxated Iron myself to build me up after a serious case of nervous exhaustion. The effects were apparent after a few days and within three weeks it had virtually revitalized my whole system and put me in a superb physical condition."

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Weipert Drug Co., Pauley's Drug Stores, Enderle Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Merker's 3 Stores, East St. Louis, and all other druggists.

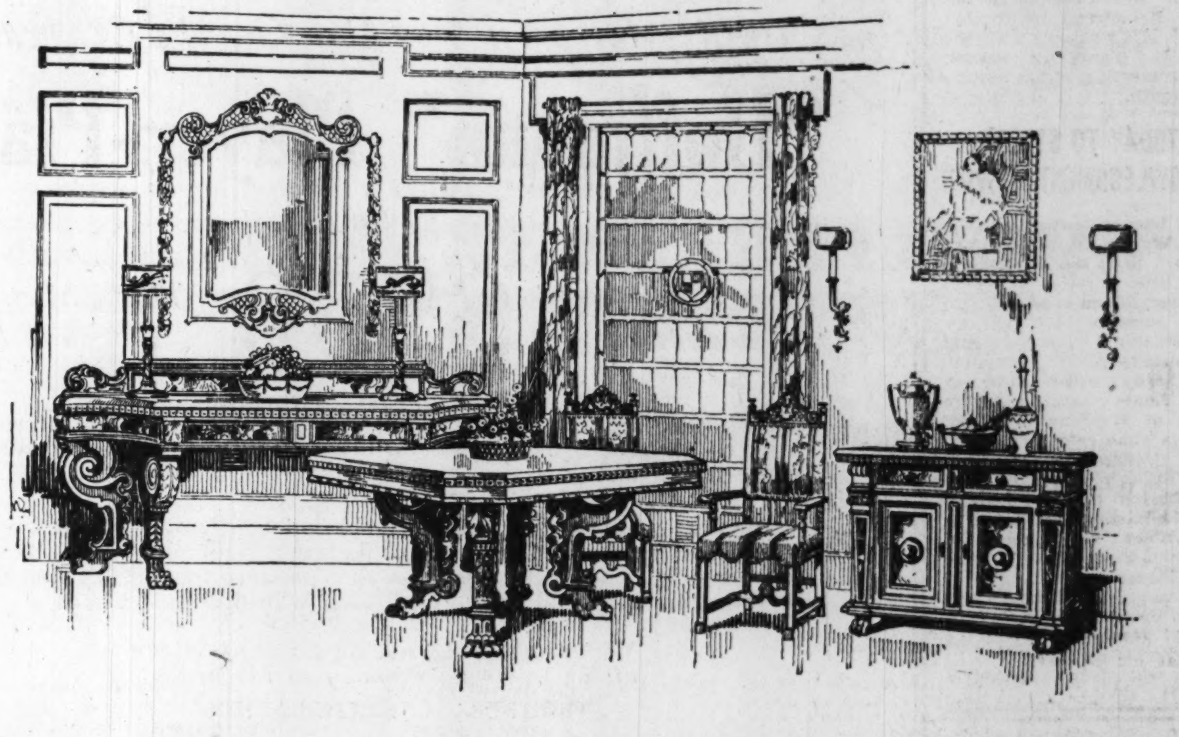
Dining-Room Suites of Character & Individuality

THERE is a very definite satisfaction in the possession of things that are good: They never pall—their splendid worth is proof against the feverish fancy for change, that is ever supplanting the old with the new. Keep this well in mind when you are considering furniture with which to surround yourself; rightly chosen, it is immeasurably conducive to abiding content.



THE gradual transition of the dining room from a mere utility to a plane of beauty and consequence is a happy result of the skill of artists and artisans alike. For its greater embellishment they have united in creations of arresting charm, awakening in their subject a warmth of response that proves it well worthy of their exceptional genius. The unusual merit of the Period adaptations we are showing is readily apparent. We commend them to your inspection.

To Wash Away Those Wrinkles and Crowsfeet

If your face is disfigured with wrinkles, no matter what the cause, you can quickly dispel every line, even the most obstinate, by using a simple, homemade wash lotion. Merely dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel—ingredients found in any drug store. Bathe the face in this, and—presto!—you scarcely believe your own eyes when you look into your mirror and behold the marvelous transformation!

The remarkable astringent action of the saxolite so tightens the skin, wrinkles are literally pressed out. Best of all, this result is not purely temporary, for the lotion also has a healthful tonic action, which tends to strengthen and tone up the weakened tissue, and added benefit may be expected with continued use. Use this once a day for awhile; it cannot injure the most delicate skin. The treatment itself leaves no trace—no one guesses the secret of your increasing youthful appearance.

PRINCIPALS ASK THAT BONUS OF $88 INCLUDE ALL TEACHERS

Principals of the elementary schools, meeting yesterday at Central High School, passed resolutions suggesting to the Board of Education that the $88 salary bonus, recently awarded to teachers, be made to include all members of the teaching staff, instead of only to those receiving less than $3000 annually. About 70 principals were in attendance.

There was no criticism of the bonus voted, all who spoke taking the position that increases must still be made, but that at this time it was advisable to fix the number who would benefit rather than the amount which each would receive.

"This meeting felt that we are in no sense pressing the claims of the principals of elementary schools," said Philo Stevenson, president of the Elementary School Principals' Association. "We feel that teachers in all schools and with whatever salary should participate in any increase given. Salaries must continue to be increased until they meet the present conditions of living. That is unquestionably true. All other cities are taking cognizance of this, and with the splendid school system St. Louis has, it cannot afford to be backward in such a vital matter affecting so closely the efficiency of its system."

Committees were appointed on Professional Relations, Instruction and Relations of Principals with the Superintendent. These will submit reports at the meeting of the association next month.

CHURCHES TODAY TO STRESS "ACKNOWLEDGMENT" GIVING

Today has been set apart by the Interchurch World Movement as "Stewardship Acknowledgment Sunday," at one service of which pastors have been asked to preach a sermon on "Christion Stewardship," emphasizing the "acknowledgment" principle of giving. The day will be observed in many St. Louis churches, where the example of Washington giving himself to his country will be used to become Christian stewards will be enrolled in a number of the churches. During this month a campaign of education on the consecration of means is being carried out throughout the country by the Interchurch Movement.

An intensive evangelistic campaign will be opened in March, culminating with Easter Sunday as the "National Ingathering Day."

New Way to Wave the Hair Becomes Popular

That most women are quick to appreciate anything that will enhance their attractiveness is shown by the greatly increased demand for liquid silmerine since its remarkable hair-curling properties became known. Druggists everywhere report large sales for this product.

Women are enthusiastic over liquid silmerine, particularly because it enables them to acquire a curliness which is so beautifully natural in appearance, and not have to burn the life out of the hair with a hot iron. Also they find it a beneficial dressing for the hair. The liquid is so agreeable to use, being neither gummy nor greasy, and it is so easy to apply with a clean toothbrush at night when the hair is down. The pretty wavy and curly effect in the morning is most delightful. As it takes only a little silmerine to produce the re[illegible] effect, a few ounces will last for [illegible]

200 CHAUFFEURS TO GET SAFE DRIVING CERTIFICATES

Closing Exercises of First Traffic School Ever Held in U. S. Set for March 25.

The closing exercises of the first school for chauffeurs held in any city in the United States on safe driving and observance of traffic regulations will be held March 25 at 8 p. m., at Union Electric Hall, Twelfth and Locust streets. Certificates will be issued to about 200 chauffeurs.

The course just concluded covered the traffic ordinances, traffic rules and regulations, the importance of reporting correctly and truthfully any accidents which may happen; the use, necessity and construction of the brake and magneto and kindred subjects.

The idea of a course of instruction for chauffeurs originated with the Safety Council of the Chamber of Commerce, and the course of lectures was worked out by men interested in the automobile traffic. The course was in charge of P. J. Kelleher, general superintendent of the Columbia Transfer Co.

The National Safety Council is now projecting a course of like nature in almost every large city in the country, and in preparing this course the verbatim reports of the St. Louis addresses are being used.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel backachy or have bladder trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

Influenza, Colds, Sore Throat

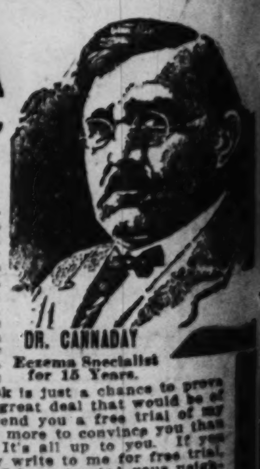
Said to Yield Quickly to Antiseptic Oil Treatment.

Many are finding relief from Influenza, Colds, Sore Throat and perhaps preventing pneumonia, it is said, by the use of Miller's Antiseptic Oil (known as Snake Oil), which contains Turpentine, Camphor, Capsicum, Oil Eucalyptus, Coal Oil and other valuable oils. Its great penetrating pain relieving qualities insure almost instant relief when applied freely on the chest and throat, well greased when first symptoms arise. The oil penetrates through to the affected parts and tends to open up the air passages, making breathing more easy, relieving the pains. And for the cough, a few drops on a little sugar usually bring prompt relief. Don't fail to have a bottle on hand when the attack comes on, and if used according to directions results are assured.

Keep liver active by taking Lifsey's Never-Fail Liver Pills. They are different: "they never fail." 25c bottle, leading druggists. On sale by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and Enderle Drug Co.

ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.



DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

George Moore, Interviewing Self, Says He Is a Public Benefactor Despite High Cost of His Books

English Novelist Declares People Will Keep His Works for Sake of Paper and Printing and Later Sell Them at Profit.

By JOSEPH GOLLOMB.

Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
Published by Arrangement With the New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Feb. 1.

IT needed only the setting of our turbulent world of crashing thrones and privilege shaking before the stir of angry masses to complete the picture of George Moore as he is today. Aesthete and aristocrat to his finger-tips; delicately contemptuous not only of the herd but also of the herdsmen; shutting out the clamors of the times from his quiet retreat; not only disdaining to write for the many but even putting his books out of their reach by publishing only limited editions for private circulation at prohibitive prices, he is a quaint phenomenon.

The street in which Moore lives—for some reason he calls it a "slum"—is in the borderland between Belgravia, the roofs of which you glimpse from the corner, and the sedate bohemia of the Chelsea of today. The houses are like Moore's, neat three-story buildings of smoke-darkened buff brick. Each house is exactly like its neighbor, except that Moore's is distinguished by a small mansard roof, their faces making one continuous wall, prim and well satisfied to appear exclusive. There are a few shops at the corner, meekly aware that they are merely tolerated there—a little antique furniture store with a table outside displaying colored wine-glasses of a past period; a Japanese tid-bit shop; a small pastry cook's establishment, "by appointment to H. M., the King." A fruit peddler's wagon lags speculatively through the block with little success. A girl with a japanned tin painting box and a young man carrying a well-worn portfolio stroll past. A smutty-faced youth drags a small wagon full of firewood and shouts his peddler-cry intermittently. But he doesn't belong there, and the street looks distinctly relieved when he goes and a shiny little automobile with a chauffeur in livery draws up before one of the undistinguished brick houses.

An Interview De Luxe.

From the point of view of work on my part it was an interview de luxe. Moore had chosen his own subject; had his stenographer there to take down shorthand notes of everything he said; supplied his own questions; and promised to have the typewritten notes mailed to me, stipulating that I use the interview in the form in which it reached me. He dictated slowly, feeling for his phrase and stopping to repeat a fortunate one. There were several—"Palestine folk lore," in referring to the common conception of Christ as compared with Moore's own in "The Brook Kerith;" a capital parody of the opening of a society novel; a daring but effective figure for the popular sex-novel. And above all there was the play of delicate irony.

It was entirely a performance in extemporizing. The stenographer had her silent part in the performance; the interviewer none. Once in a pause I asked a question, with disastrous results. Moore's mind became caught in an eddy and circled several times before it was able to flow on again. At the conclusion of the interview he turned to his secretary.

"I wasn't very good today, was I?"

"No, Mr. Moore," she said frankly, "not so very good."

Which should have prepared me—but did not—for the letter from him which I got with the draft of what I supposed was the "interview" I had witnessed:

The dictation I did on Saturday in your presence did not turn out well, and I dictated another this morning, which I enclose, and I hope that the Evening Post' will print it practically as it stands. You will notice that I have left out some things that amused you, but I left them out for the sake of unity; I left out the piece about "The Brook Kerith" for the same reason. . . . .

Own Interview With Himself.

In the new version I recognized neither myself nor the man I had listened to. But the result is interesting as Mr. Moore's own interview with himself, carried out in the manner in which were composed the "conversations" with Edmund Gosse that make up his "Avowals," recently off the press.

Mr. Moore is now engaged on his next book, "Heloise and Abelard," which he expects to finish in about

THE REASON IS PLAIN

ANOTHER SIGNAL COMPLIMENT IS PAID THE HOUSE OF FINKELSTEIN—THE INSTITUTION OF CREATIVE DRESSES THAT HAS FOR 20 YEARS SERVED WITH ENTIRE SATISFACTION THE NEEDS OF THE WOMEN OF ST. LOUIS AND THE ENTIRE UNITED STATES.

I am proud of this honor. I am proud that in connection with the greatest exhibition of motion pictures ever given in St. Louis MY dresses have been exclusively selected to be displayed on the stage of Kings Theater this week in the massive pageant of youth, beauty and grace, to be shown in connection with the presentation of the Paramount-Artcraft picture of "Everywoman," which begins today.

When the thousands who will visit this gigantic exhibition and see perfect living models displaying the last word in practical dress creations realize that these same dresses are MY dresses and can be purchased at the better stores in St. Louis, or in any other part of the United States, I know they will share with me this feeling of appreciation.

The label in my garments IS MY guarantee. It means that the utmost care and skill have been put into every stitch of MY dresses. Nothing has been spared. The best material obtainable is in every garment.

The better stores will have on sale all of the garments that you see exhibited by the models at Kings Theater this week.

Today is the first day, and I know that many thousands will be on hand to review MY dresses.

I am ready for criticism. I am prepared to stand by anything I say in my guarantee.

I personally select all of my materials. I personally supervise the cutting of each pattern. I see the completed garment on a model, and then if any new idea can enhance the value or style of the dress, that idea is put into execution immediately.

Nothing, I say, is omitted to keep up the reputation I have established by 20 years of honest, faithful dealing with my thousands of customers.

YOU KNOW ME—I AM PROGRESSIVE—I now own and manufacture the PREMIER WAIST, which is known by all women throughout the United States as the highest class STRICTLY TAILORED waist produced.

Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co. (The Grand-Leader) maintain, in St. Louis, an exclusive department for the sale of these waists.

THAT IS PROOF.

And now comes the crowning compliment.

MY dresses and frocks have been selected from among all the rest and will be shown exclusively on the numerous live models at Kings Theater this week.

Bear in mind, dear reader, that you do not have to go outside of St. Louis to purchase any of these gowns that might appeal to you when you see them this week. They can be purchased at the better stores right here in this city.

But if you happen to be away from St. Louis the better stores in any of the largest cities will be able to supply your needs.

THE HOUSE OF FINKELSTEIN is at your service always.

Sincerely yours,
M. FINKELSTEIN.

GEORGE MOORE IN INTERVIEW WITH HIMSELF ON BOOKS

a year; and which is to appear in "a limited edition, for private circulation only, and consisting of 1000 copies, each copy numbered and autographed by the author. After printing this edition the type will be broken up. The price to the trade is £3, 3s ($15.75), net. There is no fixed price to the public."

Interviewer: I think, Mr. George Moore, that you will be glad to hear that whenever English literature is talked about in America, your name is one of the three or four that we usually speak of.

Mr. George Moore: You need not mention the names that are on the tip of your tongue, for they would lead us into bye paths, away from the subject. You have come to speak about literature, I understand.

Interviewer: Yes; certainly I have, for the American public would be interested to hear why you do not intend to offer your books to the general public, and have made arrangements——

Mr. George Moore: That will exclude us from my circle of readers who regard literature as a mere distraction, like cinema shows and cycling. Have you seen any of my private publications?

Interviewer: Yes; they are most beautifully printed; and the paper is quite extraordinary in texture; real English hand-made rag paper. But the price, two guineas! Do you think that this limited edition of a thousand copies at two guineas a volume is a form of publication that is quite fair to the general public? There are many who would like to read you but cannot afford to pay two guineas for a book. I put it to you, is it quite fair?

Under No Obligation to Public.

Mr. George Moore: I am not aware that I am under any obligation to the general public in England or America to supply cheap literature. To put it simply, the general public has never done anything for me, and I should like to hear from you, why should I spoil my literature by addressing myself to the general public?

Interviewer: You need not spoil your literature by publishing your works at a price that work-a-day people can afford to pay.

Mr. George Moore: There I join issue with you.

Interviewer: Do you make more money by limiting your circulation?

Mr. George Moore: No; I do not make more money, but to make money has never prompted me to write a book. I have three reasons, three excellent reasons, for wishing to limit the circulation of my books. But in setting these reasons forth I shall have to speak at some length.

The writers of prose narrative are divided into two classes: the first class is by far the most numerous, and the procedure of all belonging to this class is to consider before writing a book if the subject they have in mind is likely to attract a hundred thousand buyers; and when the novelist is satisfied that he is on the trail of a popular subject he writes it, determined to omit everything that will limit the sale and to include everything that will increase it. If there is a war going on, he writes patriotism, heroism and the sacrifice of self. I have not read any of the war novels, but there can be little doubt that they are combined in this way, heroism abroad and anxiety at home.

If there is no war, the novelist is divided between the evil of the white slave traffic and the evil of inadequate cleanliness in the industry of pork packing. The suicide of a packer into the boiling liquid and his subsequent conversion into sausage is a subject that will interest millions! If there be no white slave trade in the public mind and no pork packing scandal to be utilized, well, then he writes about duchesses and politicians, and the novel begins: "Lady Cecilia and her aunt, the Duchess of Colchurch, were sitting in one of the large windows in Carlton House Terrace, taking the evening air. Lady Cecilia was finishing an embroidered cushion, and both were waiting for the Prime Minister." It seems to me that the popular novelist with his eye and heart on the best seller of the season cannot do else than to consider the public taste in the many various changes.

Detective Stories Play Big Part.

Detective stories play a large part in literary industry, and the result of the commercialization of prose narrative is that the public may be looked upon as the author of nearly all the novels published in England, the novelist being a mere go-between, a sort of general secretary to the public who writes the jargon the public speaks and about the subject in the public mind.

I stop without having said all, and will turn to another type of novelist, to whom who would relate the immortal instincts rather than the mere passing spectacle of contemporary life.

The man who is interested in mankind rather than with prejudices and conventions finds himself beset by all kinds of enemies. When he is asked why he does not write for the general public and answers that he does not find himself under any obligation to spend his life trying to live up to public taste, that he is not a clown, nor a low comedian, trapezist or trick bicyclist, the librarians begin to look upon him as a dangerous man, and refuse to circulate his works on the ground of morality.

Interviewer: But if no sex problem is introduced?

"Public Does Not Think."

Mr. George Moore: The general public cannot forgive a man for the vice of not wishing to make money. Not to wish to make money is a sort of challenge. Society is impugned. The home and the chapel have their roots in money, and, aloud, this man is not like us! The general public cannot express itself clearly, but that is how it thinks or rather that is how it feels, for the general public does not think; it feels, however.

Interviewer: I think, Mr. George Moore, that you are rather hard on the general public, and if I may venture an opinion I would say that it is not as gross as you seem to think it is. I can assure you that——

Mr. George Moore: When you are as old as I am, sir, and have written some beautiful books and have heard your books argued about in a police court and in the higher courts——

Interviewer: Forgive me for interrupting you, sir, but the applicant in the case of "The Brook Kerith" was invited to go about his business. And the libel suit brought against you for the use of the name Lewis Seymour was also dismissed by the jury.

Mr. George Moore: Quite true, but the desire to insult literature was equally apparent in both of these cases.

Interviewer: But do you think that people would spend their money merely for the somewhat abstract pleasure of insulting literature?

Persecutions For 40 Years.

Mr. George Moore: There was nothing abstract in these prosecutions. But we will leave the unsavory for time to deordorize, and if I mention these cases it is only to make plain to you my reasons for withdrawing from the public arena of letters. The persecutions began with my first book, "Flowers of Passion," published something like 40 years ago, and have never ceased. Even the publication of "Esther Waters" did not bring them to a close; a book which is now looked upon as a beautiful development of the beautitudes was refused by three of your most eminent publishers, Appleton, Harper and Scribner, and Mr. Smith's librarian, Mr. Faux, declined to admit it into his library, in his own words, "on account of its pre-Raphaelite nastiness and his successors." The librarians still refuse to circulate "A Mummer's Wife," not because they look upon it as an immoral book, or as a book that anybody would object to, but because they refused it through ignorance and prejudice 30 years ago. So it would seem that like many other people the librarians think that on the whole it is more dignified to walk firmly in the wrong road than to turn into the right one. And now, sir, since you have heard in partial outline some details of my literary journey, do you not think that I did well to take my leave of the general public with its librarians and law courts, police and high courts, and to limit my editions to a thousand copies each, fixing the price of each volumne at two guineas? For by doing this I have purchased my freedom from the dungeon in which democracy and its librarians have imprisoned literature, and am now free to follow the current of my own literary taste—

Interviewer: But you have always done that.

Made No Concessions.

Mr. George Moore: True, I have made no concessions; not even when times were hardest. But I was always fighting a battle, and after 30 years one wearies even of fighting. But now the battle is over and in perfect calm and serenity of mind I am writing with a freedom that none has enjoyed since Elizabethan times; no publisher worries me: the books are sold before they are written; no newspaper writings appear to tease me with superficial opinions; briefly, I am writing as Homer, Aristophanes, Catullus and Apuleius wrote; and if the work I am engaged upon, "Heloise and Abelard" (in which not only the love story, but the life of the middle ages is related), falls short of my hopes and those of my small circle of readers, still, my book will remain for some little while as an exhortation

Eye Specialist and Medical Author Report on Wonderful Remedy to Strengthen Eyesight

Say It Strengthens Eyesight 50% in One Week's Time in Many Instances

New York.—Dr. Smith, a well-known eye specialist, and Dr. Judkins, a Massachusetts physician and medical author make the following reports after a thorough test of a popular remedy for the eyes:

Says Dr. Smith: "When my attention was first called to it I was inclined to be skeptical. But it is a rule of mine to give every new treatment a chance to prove its value. Having specialized in eye work for many years, I feel qualified to express an intelligent opinion on remedies for the eyes. Since this one has created such a sensation I welcomed the opportunity to test it. I began to use it in my practice a little over a year ago and I am frank to say that some of the results I have accomplished with Bon-Opto not only astonish myself, but also other physicians with whom I have talked about it, and I advise every thoughtful physician to give Bon-Opto the same careful trial I have and there is no doubt in my mind that he will come to the conclusion I have, that it opens the door for the cure of many eye troubles which have heretofore been difficult to cope with. I have had individuals who had worn glasses for years tell me they have dispensed with them through the use of Bon-Opto. In my own practice I have seen it strengthen the eyesight more than 50 per cent in one week's time. I have also used it with surprising results in cases of work-strained eyes, pink eye, inflamed lids, catarrhal conjunctivities, smarting, painful, aching, itching eyes, eyes weakened from colds, smoke, sun, dust and wind, watery eyes, blurred vision, and, in fact, many other conditions too numerous to mention in this report. A new and striking case that has just been brought to my attention is that of a girl 12 years old. Two prominent eye specialists, after a thorough examination, decided, according to her father, that in order to save the sight of her right eye, the left must be removed. While awaiting an opportunity for the operation and still undecided as to its wisdom, her father was told it would do no harm to use Bon-Opto. In less than three days a marked improvement was noticed. At the end of a week the inflammation had almost disappeared, and at the end of six weeks the eye was pronounced saved. Just think what the saving of that eye means to this little girl! Another case is that of a lady 93 years old. She came to me with dull vision and extreme inflammation of the lids and the conjunctiva was almost raw. After two weeks' use of Bon-Opto the lids were absolutely normal and her eyes are as bright as many a girl of 16."

Dr. Judkins, Massachusetts physician and medical author, formerly chief of clinics in the Union General Hospital, Boston, Mass. and formerly house surgeon at the New England Eye and Ear Infirmary of Portland, Maine, says:

"I have found occulists too prone to operate and opticians too willing to prescribe glasses, while neglecting the simple formulas which form the basis of Bon-Opto, which, in my opinion, is a remarkable remedy for the cure and prevention of many eye disorders. Its success in developing and strengthening the eyesight will soon make eye-glasses old-fashioned and the use of Bon-Opto as common as that of the toothbrush. I am thoroughly convinced from my experience with Bon-Opto that it will strengthen the eyesight at least 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances."

Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses and many who wear glasses will be glad to know that according to Drs. Smith and Judkins there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable remedy and many who once wore glasses say they have laid them aside. One man says after using it:

"I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eyestrain, caused by overworked, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years, both for distance and close work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long-distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited in this easy manner. Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Dissolve one tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and use from two to four times a day. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little, it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or misfit glasses. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto referred to above, is not a patent medicine or a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It is dispensed under guaranty by all good druggists in this city, including The Enderle, Johnson Bros., Pauley, Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson Stores.

McKEESPORT, PA. NATURAL GAS FIELDS

Not since the great oil discoveries in Western Pennsylvania, in the early 80's, has anything occurred that has created such a sensation and offered such possibilities for acquiring wealth as the discovery of the natural gas fields at McKeesport, about 20 miles from Pittsburgh. The deposit of natural gas in the McKeesport district has been pronounced by geologists the largest and richest in America. Fully 96% of the wells drilled in this field are producers. The story of developments in this field during the last few months reads like a fairy tale. With the knowledge that such a prolific source of wealth exists, the question, from the investor's standpoint is: "What company shall I go into?"

Honest Management

In considering any company, the first question is: "Who are the men behind it?" This project has been organized and is being directed by

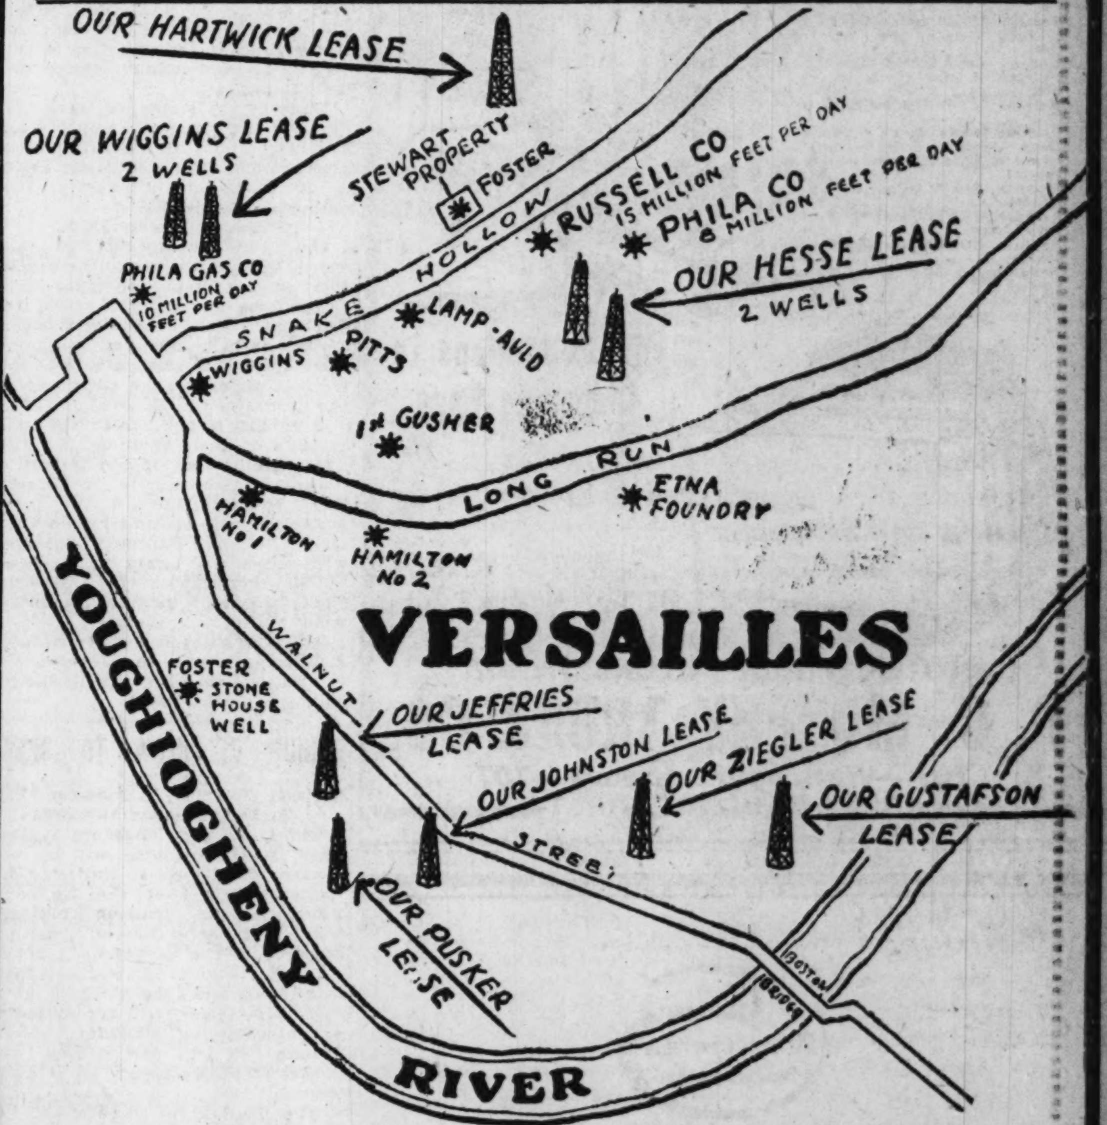
of the Ruben Furniture Co., McKeesport, Pa.
LEO LEHMAN,
Manager May, Stern & Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.

You have only to ask any bank in McKeesport or Pittsburgh to learn that these men have a reputation and standing in their community which they could not afford to jeopardize even if they were so disposed.

Ten Valuable Leases

This company has acquired TEN leases in the very heart of the proven fields—some of them only a few hundred feet from big gushers. To develop these leases, this enterprise has been organized with a capital of $375,000—shares $100 each, full paid and nonassessable. Our project is a partnership in which each shareholder will have a voice in the management, will share in the profits of all ten wells and also in the ownership of the leases.

See How Our Leases Checker the Whole Field



No Salaried Officers

There are no salaried officers in this company, nor will there be any. Every dollar invested in this enterprise will be spent honestly in the development of ten wells. Aside from the actual cost and maintenance of the wells, every dollar received from gas will be distributed in dividends to our shareholders.

Study the Map

It shows the ten locations owned by the McKeesport-Standard Gas and Oil Enterprises. It will, we believe, leave no doubt as to the value of our locations in this wonderful field. While drilling for oil or gas is, of course, a matter of speculation at any time or place, we have thrown about this enterprise all possible safeguards.

An Assured Market

This Company has made a five-year contract with the Peoples' Gas Co. of Pittsburgh to purchase all the gas we can offer them at 15c per thousand feet—thus assuring us of an immediate market for every foot of gas that we can produce—and at a price that assures us a most substantial profit.

Prompt Action

While we were securing our leases in proved locations, we were also making arrangements for drilling and equipment and placing our orders for casings. There will be no delay on this score. In fact, the work has already started.

No. 1 Well is now drilling on the Hesse Lease.

No. 2 Well has started drilling on the Jeffries Lease.

Derrick is being erected for No. 3 Well on Gustafson Lease.

The other seven wells will be started in rapid succession.

CHANCES FOR BIG PROFITS

We have the leases—TEN of them in the very heart of the greatest natural gas field in America. The gas is there—that is certain. It is proven by the fact that out of 21 gas wells recently drilled in the McKeesport fields, 20 of them are producers. The total daily production of these 20 wells is, conservatively, 160,000,000 feet, representing a cash value of more than $25,000 per day—or better than $1000 per day per well. A five million-foot gas well earns $750 a day—$22,500 a month. A forty million-foot gas well earns $6000 a day—$180,000 a month.

Shares—$100 for an Interest in Ten Wells

Decide at Once

If you are going to share in this enterprise, it is necessary that you decide quickly. Nearly three-fourths of this stock has already been subscribed by the officers and the public in Pittsburgh and the McKeesport districts—people who are acquainted with this gas field and know the money-making opportunities it offers. The balance of this stock is offered at $100 a share.

GEORGE MOORE IN INTERVIEW WITH HIMSELF ON BOOKS

to others to walk in the thorny rather than the primrose path; "Heloise and Abelard" will remain, after the interest in the story has subsided, as an example of beautiful printing, an art once practiced with genius, but which lately has fallen under the rule of democracy which requires cheap books. You tell me, sir, that you have seen "Avowals." I should like to hear you say that you have not met with any other book in modern times that compares with it.

Interviewer: I think that both in America and in England your books have been beautifully printed—but the price!

Mr. George Moore: My books are in one sense the only cheap books. The dollar and a half book is such an ugly thing that it is thrown away. My book is kept if not for the sake of the contents, at least for the sake of the paper and printing, and if the possessor wishes to make any money, he can always do so, for in six months the book can be sold for twice as much as the subscriber paid for it. So you can see I am in the last analysis a public benefactor.

Low Rates, Good Service, Liberal Management and Assured Income make Union Electric 7 per cent preferred stock an ideal investment for the savings of wage earners, and for the surplus capital of business and professional men and women.

As you all know, Union Electric's voluntary rate reductions during ten years past have exceeded those of any other electric utility, corporate or municipal, in the United States. OUR AVERAGE PRICE PER KILOWATT HOUR OF ENERGY SOLD TODAY IS LESS THAN IN 1914.

Prompt, courteous good service helps low rates satisfy old customers and win thousands of new ones each year.

Liberal management enables the Company to get and hold active ambitious workers in every department of the business.

These factors, under State regulation, assure Union Electric's investors regular payment of interest and dividends, and of ample protection for their principal. For example, here is Union Electric's earning record for 1919:

Revenue from electric and steam operations		$8,153,407.50
Ordinary operating expenses	$4,692,773.77
Reserved for depreciation	669,771.83
Taxes	754,092.35
Total operating expenses	$6,116,637.95	6,116,637.95
Net operating revenue		$2,036,769.55
Net revenue from other sources		277,544.76
Gross income		$2,264,314.31
Interest on bonds and notes		1,128,979.96
Net income for dividends		$1,135,334.35
Preferred stock dividends		143,781.85

1919 dividend earnings were nearly EIGHT TIMES the sum needed to pay preferred stock dividends. Cash received for the $1,000,000 of preferred stock now being sold is being invested in additional income-producing property. When this third $1,000,000 of preferred stock is all sold, preferred dividends will be at the rate of $210,000 a year. The Company's dividend earnings today are at the rate of over FIVE TIMES $210,000 a year. During the ten years 1910 to 1919, inclusive, Union Electric's dividend earnings have totaled $8,029,230.24, or over $800,000 a year.

Seven dollars a year in cash dividends on each $100 share—payable $1.75 every three months—with safety such as this, makes Union Electric preferred stock in our judgment the most desirable investment security now on the market. It is offered only to Union Electric's customers and members of their families, as a form of profit-sharing for those who make Union Electric's business grow and prosper.

TERMS: $100 a share for cash; $102 a share on a ten-payment plan, under which buyers draw 5 per cent interest on installment payments, and can withdraw all payments, WITH INTEREST, any time before final installment is paid.

SALES OFFICES: Room 201 Union Electric Building, 12th and Locust Streets, St. Louis, and Union Electric's offices in Franklin, Jefferson, Perry, St. Charles and St. Louis Counties.

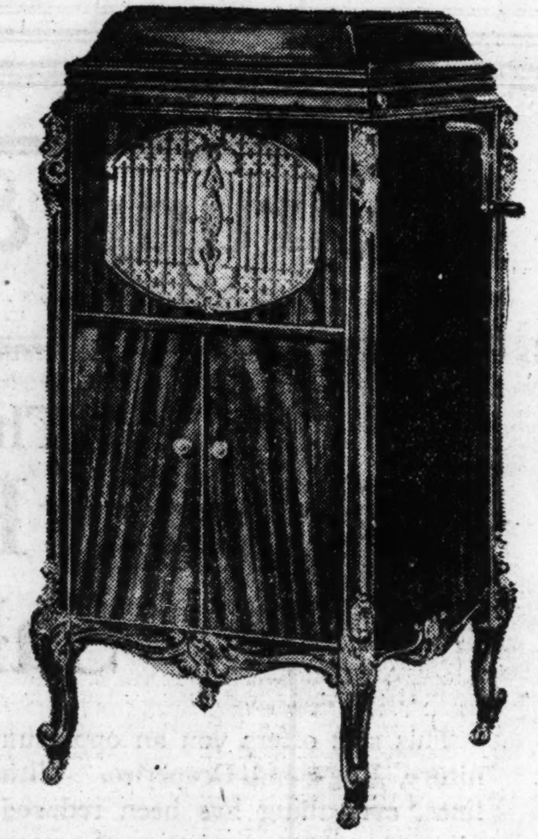
BRUNSWICK
Method of Reproduction



The Ultona, offered solely by The Brunswick. An all-record reproducer that plays each make of record correctly. At the turn of the hand it presents the proper diaphragm, the proper needle. It does away with attachments.

The Brunswick Tone Amplifier. This all-wood amplifier conforms with acoustic laws and brings truer, purer tone. No metal is used in Brunswick amplification, so there is an absence of harshness.

Make this comparison before you buy your Phonograph

DON'T buy a phonograph, any more than an automobile, without a demonstration. Name isn't all nowadays, as it used to be, when phonographs were a novelty.

Music-lovers know real way to test—and that is by tone. The ear picks out superiority quickly. Naturalness is easily appreciated.

We encourage comparisons. We invite you to hear The Brunswick, then to hear others. We leave final judgment to you. And we rarely lose a sale, when a comparison is made.

This accounts for the great popularity of The Brunswick here and the nation over. It goes into the homes of the most critical because of its overwhelming merit.

It has numerous features unobtainable elsewhere. Such as The Ultona, the all-record reproducer. And The Brunswick Tone Amplifier, built entirely of wood, so as to end metallic sounds forever.

COMMUNITY SINGS TO BE FEATURE OF SONG WEEK

Patriotic Selections to Be Heard at Gatherings in Recognition of Washington's Birthday.

The National Week of Song will be celebrated in St. Louis this week. Wherever people gather there will be community singing. In recognition of Washington's birthday especial attention will be given to the signing of "Hail Columbia," the oldest patriotic song of the United States, which was composed for Washington's inauguration, 1789, being known at that time as the "President's March."

Community Sings will be a feature of all assemblies during the week. Prominent musicians will act as song leaders. E. L. Coburn, supervisor of much in the public schools, has prepared a program of songs to be used throughout the entire school system. Daily sings will be held in the Vandervoort Auditorium at noon. The leaders for the week will be Mrs. L. F. Chittenden, Mrs. Robert Miller, Mrs. R. J. Hickman, Mrs. Jacques Landree, Mrs. E. George Payne, Mrs. Carl J. Luyties, Mrs. E. Berry Mayes, violinist; Mrs. Roy A. Butts; Misses Elba and Virginia Butts, Mrs. Ed Hussman, Mrs. Paul Guerard, Oscar Condon, organist; Miss M. Teresa Finn of Soldan High School; Miss Lucile Cook, Mrs. WilliamA. McCandless, Miss Catherine Carmichael, Miss Cora Alt, Mrs. Agnes S. Schaberg and Miss Blanche Roseborough.

At the leading motion picture theaters the words of the songs will be thrown on the screen and the singing led by E. A. Taussig, John W. Bohn, Arthur Lieber, Victor Lichtenstein, J. Glenn Lee, Herbert Cost and H. Breyman.

The Chamber of Commerce will observe the week of song at their Wednesday luncheon, Coburn leading the singing. The City Club and the Town Club will feature singing during the week and the Women's Chamber of Commerce will give a musical tea Saturday afternoon at the Hotel Statler.

Miss Alice Pettingill, chairman, hopes to have every organization, civic, social and industrial, assist. The committee, working with Miss Pettingill, comprises Mrs. Joseph W. Folk, E. L. Coburn, Mrs. E. George Payne, Mrs. J. Alex. Goodwin, Mrs. Taylor Bernard, Hector Pazmezoglu, Mrs. P. J. Guerard, C. L. Brittain, Charles Claflin Allen and Nelson Cunliff.

The songs may be chosen from the group recommended by Norman H. Hall of Chicago, general secretary of the National Committee, including Star-Spangled Banner, Hail Columbia, Auld Lang Syne, Carry Me Back to Old Virginia, Yankee Doodle, Red, White and Blue, Love's Old Sweet Song, Old Oaken Bucket, Battle Hymn of the Republic, Old Folks at Home, Dixie, Old Black Joe and America.

CONVALESCENTS' HOME AIDED 71 WOMEN LAST YEAR

Institution, Which Is Only Onoe of Kind in State, Is Conducted by Episcopal Church.

The annual report has just been made public of the work of the Country Home for Convalescents, conducted under the auspices of the Episcopal Church, on the Rott Road in Kirkwood, the only institution in the State which is dedicated to the free use of needy women during the period of convalescence following discharge from hospitals. It is supported by volunteer contributions, and is conducted on a non-sectarian basis.

Only the most deserving cases are selected for the home, as space is limited, and selections are made in co-operation with hospital authorities, social service workers, and heads of welfare organizations.

The Country Home for Convalescents is a 20-acre farm, where fruits and vegetables are raised for the table, and cows, pigs and chickens add to the supplies. It is considered merely a nucleus and it is planned to broaden the scope of the work and to enlarge the home as soon as funds are available. It was opened about 18 months ago.

During the last year 71 women were cared for and the average stay of each at the home was 30 days. $68 was given during the year by patients who wished to contribute a mite to their expenses, and $11,177 was donated.

An appeal is made for contributions. Checks should be sent to Thomas Q. Dix, 403 Boatmen's Bank building, who organized and opened the home, and who is secretary and treasurer.

W. U. TO OBSERVE MAY DAY

Entertainment to Be Given After Rendition of "As You Like It."

The annual custom of a May-day entertainment in the Court of McMillan Hall by girl students at Washington University has been saved by development of overwhelming sentiment against it among the girls themselves, after a program that meant its discontinuance had been adopted.

Some time ago it was decided to depart from the time-honored May-day affair by producing "As You Like It" on the Municipal Theater stage in Forest Park. Later sentiment has brought about decision to proceed with that program, staging it probably the first week in May, and to produce something in the nature of old English fair scenes two or three weeks later in McMillan Hall Court, on which occasion there will be the usual "open house."

Girls desiring to participate in the dances which feature the Shakspearean play are to have tryouts Tuesday afternoon, at the Municipal Theater.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA WILL PLAY ELSEWHERE

Departs Today on Tour of Six Cities—Mabel Beddoe Is "Pop" Soloist.

After its "pop" concert of today the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will leave St. Louis for a tour of one week, during which it will fill the most important out-of-town engagement in its history, a first appearance in Chicago. The tour will occupy the entire week, and will enable the orchestra to return home just in time for next Sunday's "pop" concert. It will include seven concerts in six cities, two of which are university engagements, and three of which are first-time appearances. At Urbana, Ill., where two concerts are booked for the University of Illinois, the orchestra will be making its sixth annual appearance.

The concert dates are Murphysboro, Ill., Monday night; Urbana, Tuesday afternoon and evening; Aurora, Ill., Wednesday evening; Chicago, Thursday evening; Bloomington, Ill., Friday evening; Decatur, Ill., Saturday evening.

Michel Gusikoff, concert master, H. Max Steindel, first cello of the orchestra, and Miss Elsa Diemer, soprano, will be soloists of the tour, and to Concertmaster Gusikoff has been assigned the honor of the solo appearance at the Chicago concert. He will play the Bruch concerto No. 1 for violin and orchestra in this program, which will include the Chausson symphony, Tschaikowsky's overture-fantasia "Romeo and Juliet," and Goldmark's overture, "In the Spring." Conductor Zach has arranged this program with great care and expects his men to give it with high credit to themselves, their conductor and their home city.

The Chicago date is the first the local orchestra has had in the home city of one of its great contemporaries. The concert will be given in Orchestra Hall under the patronage of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and all subscribers of that orchestra have been especially invited to attend. Former St. Louisans now living in Chicago are taking a lively interest in the visit of Conductor Zach and his men and are expecting a triumph for them. A number of friends of the orchestra have announced their intention of going up to Chicago for the concert, among them Mr. and Mrs. Oliver F. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. George D. Markham and Mr. and Mrs. John Fowler.

"Pop" Program Interesting.

Prior to departure the orchestra will give an exceptionally interesting program this afternoon and will play as its opening and closing numbers compositions specially selected as appropriate to Washington's birthday. The first is the new Turnbull march, "Victory," and the second is Hosmer's Southern Rhapsody, played in recognition of the Southern birth of the great first President of the United States.

The soloist of the afternoon will be a young Canadian contralto, Mabel Beddoe, niece of the famous tenor, Dan Beddoe, and there will be a trio of orchestra instruments as an added feature of the day. This will be the Damrosch "Iphigenie" for flute, clarinet and harp, which will be played by John Kiburz, Tony P. Sarli and Mme. Ida Delledonne.

Following is the complete program:

1. Military March, "Victory" ...... Turnbull
   (First time)
2. Romance ...... Orth
   (First time)
3. Recitative and Aria, "O ma lyre Immortelle" (O Harp Immortal) from "Sappho" ...... Gounod
4. Overture to "Tannhauser" ...... Wagner
5. (A)—Twilight ...... Massenet
   (B)—Melodrame "Iphigenie" .... Damrosch
   For Flute, Clarinet and Harp
6. Songs with piano—
   A—Winter ...... Wick
   B—The Rose and the Nightingale... Trott
   C—Under the Greenwood Tree— Buzzi Peccia
   D—My Native Land ..... Gretchaninoff
7. Southern Rhapsody ...... Hosmer

The last group of Friday-Saturday concerts of the present season will open next week, and Josef Lhevinne, the eminent Russian pianist, will be the soloist of the opening pair, March 5 and 6.

Pageant Gives "Paradise Lost."

A chorus of tenors, representing "The Voice of the Father," will take a prominent part in the great choral symphony "Paradise Lost," to be presented in St. Louis March 9, by the St. Louis Pageant Choral Society, conducted by Frederick Fischer. This chorus is one of the most unique features of any important choral work known, and the St. Louis presentation of its part will be very carefully trained between now and March 9, Conductor Fischer says. With the exception of the three solo roles the tenor chorus is the only individual personality represented in the great work, which is the masterpiece of the Italian composer, Enrico Bossi. The solo roles in the production will be taken by grand opera stars, and are: Eve, Lotta Madden, soprano; Adam and Satan Arthur Middleton, bass-baritone, and Uriel, Ellen Rumsey, contralto.

Special rehearsals of the chorus have been called for this afternoon and next Sunday to take the place of the usual evening rehearsals this week. The latter are to be omitted because of the absence of Conductor Fischer, who is on tour with the Symphony orchestra.

The performance of "Paradise Lost" on March 9 is arousing much interest in the musical world of America because it is the third American performance of the work. A large demand for tickets in St. Louis is reported, and a number of requests for information regarding the event have been received from out-of-town persons who desire to attend the performance.

Letz Quartet at Sheldon.

The Letz String Quartet, an orchestra in miniature, will play at Sheldon Auditorium, 3648 Washington boulevard, Saturday evening, Feb. 28. The personnel of the quartet consists of Hans Letz first violin; Sandor Harmati, second violin; Edward Kreiner, viola, and Gerald Maas, cello. Hans Letz, first violin,

NOW AS NEVER BEFORE

YOU NEED

THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA

There probably is not a man, woman or child among the 100,000,000 inhabitants of the United States upon whom the past five years has not had a profound effect. Great reforms have been hastened and this will be a better and cleaner world after the ordeals of fire through which it has passed. The participation of the United States as never before in the world's affairs has brought to the people new interests not limited to the neighborhood, town or city in which they live, but interests that are world-wide. A miracle has been wrought in men's minds, a miracle in which there is a tremendous thirst for knowledge, a knowledge which is absolutely necessary today, as never before. Where can people find correct, authoritative and comprehensive information on the many different subjects in which they are interested as a consequence of this awakening? They naturally turn to the wonderful storehouse of knowledge—the world's greatest guide to correct and authoritative information—the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The Britannica describes the peoples of the world, the countries, industrially, politically and socially. The Britannica furnishes practical, detailed and authoritative articles of great value to the manufacturer, to the importer, to the worker in the industries. The Britannica will give a foundation for study of subjects which will be uppermost in our minds for years to come. The Britannica is the great work of useful information. It is the book for Americans today who are waking up to new thoughts, new work and new interests.

Are We Going to Take Full Advantage of Our Industrial Opportunities?

During the past few years the business of this nation has tremendously expanded. Industries have had to enlarge their plants many times their normal size. Entire new towns, great ship-building yards and large industrial plants have sprung up almost over night. So great has been the pressure to produce tremendous quantities of materials in the shortest length of time that, out of necessity, efficiency has been the watchword of the day. Great progress has been made in shop management. There have been many inventions. Many short cuts have been found for a better and quicker production of material. Today marks the period of the greatest industrial development in this country. How are we going to make use of this tremendous impetus given to our industries? Are we going to carry them to a greater development or are we going to drop back into the old rut as before the war? This latter would be disastrous. On the employer and the worker in these industries fall the responsibility to adjust our business so as to safeguard our industrial welfare. The employer and the worker in these industries must grasp, assimilate and apply the principles of greater efficiency to their plants and keep their own industries abreast of these rapidly changing conditions. The Britannica is a working manual, dealing with every subject which the employer, the employee or any other man can think of and will speed them up mentally and make them alert to the tremendous opportunities of today.

A Complete Library of Knowledge

But this marvelous work, with its 41,000 separate articles, is more than a guide for the enterprising business man of the United States, fitting him to be a citizen of the world—a world merchant. The Britannica is a complete library of knowledge on every subject. It discusses in a way that you can understand every branch of science, industry, literature, art, religion, inventions and engineering; history and race development; wars and peace; architecture, astronomy, chemistry, sociology, education, steam, electricity, geology and geography, biography, law and physics. You and your family will find in the Britannica a liberal education. In answer to the hundred questions which every day come to your mind and to your wife's and children's minds—it will tell you more about everything than you can get from any other source.

What Is Before Us?

There are many serious post-war problems confronting us. Do you understand the tendencies in our industrial life? Why are the prices of commodities high? Will wages go still higher? Will the cost of living gradually drop? Is there likely to be some great cataclysm that will serve to send prices and wages downward? Has there been a general social unrest after other great wars? Are you inclined to be stampeded with fear of what is before us? Are you sitting down and studying the facts of past cases that were somewhat similar? Are you familiar with what has happened after other wars? In England after the Napoleonic campaigns; in the United States after the Civil War; to France, to Germany and to Neutrals after the Franco-Prussian war?

This war has blazed a way for America to commercial supremacy. European countries, in reaching out after commerce and new markets, studied countries, and people, and conditions, so the American business man, merchant, manufacturer and salesman must inform himself if he hopes to make the most of his present opportunities.

This wonderful book of knowledge—the new Encyclopaedia Britannica—literally brings the whole world to the reader. It tells all about foreign countries, their people, their history, their progress, their resources, their imports and exports. An hour a day with the Britannica will give as clear and comprehensive an idea of the rest of the world as we Americans now have of the States of the Union.

Woman Needs the Britannica as Never Before

Woman's position politically, industrially and economically has changed radically in the past five years. Woman has become a power in politics, for her vote is respected and valued. She has taken a more important place in the industrial world. The sensible and up to date woman is studying the cost of foods, food markets and food values. To the woman who wishes to keep abreast with the times, the Britannica is invaluable with its splendid articles on politics, on industries, on domestic science, on foods and on everything pertaining to the home. To the mother with children to educate, the Britannica is indispensable, and it will give her the information to teach her children wisely and correctly.

These Sets Printed on the Wonderful India Paper

The present stock of sets of the Britannica are printed on a genuine India paper—the paper which created a revolution in book publishing. More than 90 per cent of the subscribers of the Britannica have chosen sets on the India paper, for the light, thin, but opaque sheet has proven an ideal medium on which to print the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The beautiful silky texture of the clean, white easy reading page gives a luxurious appearance and a supreme joy in owning the Britannica.

We Have Obtained All the Remaining Sets in the Handy Volume Issue Printed on the Genuine India Paper, Which We Are Offering at a Great Bargain

Since the close of the big sale in which there were sold 120,000 sets of the Encyclopaedia Britannica in the Handy Volume issue, many people, who for some reason failed to purchase at that time, have written asking if there was any possibility of still obtaining a set of the Britannica in the popular Handy Volume issue, printed on the genuine India paper. Many hundreds of these letters have come to our correspondents to answer. So insistent have been the demands, and the writers have expressed such a genuine desire to own this great work, that we left no stone unturned to secure more sets of the Britannica. We have been able to obtain from the publishers sets in each binding, printed on the genuine India paper, bound in the same substantial cloth, in the beautiful semi-flexible sheepskin and in the exquisite Levant, and embracing the same high quality of workmanship as the sets we sold last year. We have also procured sets printed on the standard book paper, which is the paper used generally for books. These are in four beautiful bindings and are very attractive and practical. These sets are sold at prices which make them a tremendous bargain to all.

TWELVE 35TH DIVISION GRAVES IN ALSACE

Y. M. C. A. Man Has Photographs of 36 St. Louis and Kansas City Soldiers Taken in France.

Mrs. Bertha Fromm of 3117 Lackland avenue, whose son, Victor A. Fromm, a member of the Headquarters Company, 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, died in a French hospital, has received a list of names of American soldiers buried in the military cemetery at Gerardmer, France, from the Y. M. C. A. secretary who sent her information early in the winter of her son's death and burial.

Victor Fromm died of trench fever in the Hospital du Lac, Gerardmer, and was buried in the cemetery there. The Post-Dispatch published an exclusive photograph of the cemetery Dec. 12, last. Other members of St. Louis army organizations are buried there also.

The list sent by the Y. M. C. A. secretary, Dudley Lewis, names 79 American soldiers whose graves are marked in the cemetery. Many of them belonged to Missouri regiments, and to the Fifty-first, Fifty-second and Fifty-third Infantry regiments.

Mrs. Fromm has the complete list, and also a list of 36 men whose photographs Lewis has. The photographs are of members of the 138th and of the 137th (Kansas City) Infantry regiments, taken just before they entered the trenches.

Besides Fromm, the list of graves includes: Clifford J. Allen, 130th Machine Gun Battalion, Thirty-fifth Division; James Atchley, 138th Infantry; Private John Conway, , H Company, 138th Infantry, a Southeast Missourian; Corp. Columbus Cook, E. Company, 138th Infantry, a Missourian; Private Frank R. Farrell, B Battery, 128th (St. Louis) Field Artillery; Sergt. James Higman, D Company, — Supply Train.; Corp. Marion E. Marlin, E Company, 138th Infantry; Albert Polley or Polly, 137th Infantry; Walter E. Raber, B Company, 137th Infantry; John Ramsey, Headquarters Company Train, Thirty-fifth Division; John Wilson, L Company, 137th Infantry.

Lewis wrote that he was sending the lists to Gov. Allen of Kansas, former head Y. M. C. A. secretary of the Thirty-fifth Division, who has interested himself in the welfare of soldiers and their relatives.

Lewis requested the War Department to furnish the addresses of the men buried in the cemetery and of those whose pictures he has, but this was denied, "because of a limited clerical force."

Don't You Miss the Old Clock at the Corner of Broadway and Locust Street?

Through force of habit, I still look for this wonderful "Old Timepiece" and still listen for its chimes.

When Ernest Jaccard and I were boys we would go down to his father's jewelry store after school and we would look up at this immense old clock in amazement.

Many St. Louisans know the "Bixby clock" at the corner of Kingshighway and Lindell boulevard, near the main entrance of Forest Park.

The College Church clock with its chimes at Grand and Lindell boulevard is wonderfully located for the use of all St. Louisans.

Over the main entrance of the PRUFROCK-LITTON Store is a large clock that has kept good time for thirteen years. On Saturday, February 28, at 5:30 p. m., this clock will mark the closing of our THIRTEENTH ANNUAL FEBRUARY SALE OF FURNITURE.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

85,000 PEOPLE ATTEND ST. LOUIS' BEST AUTO SHOW

Dealers Say Volume of Business Will Exceed Million-Dollar Mark.

At 11 o'clock last night the band played "Till We Meet Again," the crowd joining in the singing, and the 1920 automobile show passed into history.

Every exhibitor agreed that it had been by far the most successful automobile show ever held in St. Louis. Not only was the attendance larger by 35 per cent than in previous years, but the number of actual buyers was far ahead of even the most optimistic expectations.

According to Show Manager Lee, the attendance for the week was in excess of 85,000 at the passenger show alone. It was impossible to secure any accurate check on the amount of business done by the 67 firms which were exhibiting passenger cars. Those best qualified to estimate this asserted that the wholesale business consummated during the past week will run well over $1,000,000, and that in the neighborhood of 350 cars had been sold at retail, a figure never before approached in any of the St. Louis shows.

St. Louis motorists never before had the opportunity to inspect, side by side, such a great variety of motor car types and styles. Two hundred and twenty-eight passenger cars comprised the display of 72 different makes. This number compared very favorably with the national automobile shows of New York and Chicago and was probably not surpassed by any of the country's local shows.

This year the accessory men, although confined to a smaller space, made an exhibit which was of interest to every motorist and which drew an attendance of unusual size.

The question which seemed uppermost in the minds of the visitors this year was "When can I get a car?" The delivery problems which confront the St. Louis dealers during the next few months are very serious. Factories are making every effort to return to topnotch production, but shortage of material is greatly hampering them. Factory after factory have made additions to their plants and have announced increased production, but the enormous demand caused by the unusual prosperity of the country and the suppressed buying of the war period has far exceeded the productive facilities of the country.

Car Shortage Predicted.

Every factory official who visited the St. Louis show impressed upon the minds of dealers that this spring there would probably be the most critical car shortage in the history of the automobile industry, and emphasized the importance of placing orders immediately for spring delivery.

At none of the previous shows in St. Louis has there been such a vast number of new models brought to light as in the one which closed last night. Practically every dealer had post-war models to display. Some of them reached St. Louis during the early winter, but an unusual number made their initial debut at the show.

It was with a genuine sense of pride that St. Louis motorists inspected the offerings of St. Louis factories. Among the factory officials who visited St. Louis last week the future of this city as a motor car manufacturing center was the main subject of conversation. The erection of a $5,000,000 plant in St. Louis by the General Motors Co. has focused the attention of motor car manufacturers on the natural advantages of the Mississippi Valley for both manufacturing and distributing.

It is hoped by leaders in the industry in St. Louis that this will be the last auto show to be held in the Exhibit Building. This year every exhibitor was cramped for space and scores of models could not be exhibited except at the show rooms. The officials of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers and Manufacturers Association are already making plans for a bigger and better show for 1921.

APPLY FILLER, THEN GIVE TIME TO SET

Many motorists make mistakes in the way they employ tread filler or putty, the plastic material used for plugging cuts. This material should be applied at night or when the car is not to be used for some hours. The cut should be cleaned out with gasoline. Then the cut should have a coat of cement, which must be allowed to dry. Next the operator, whose hands must be clean and free from perspiration, should roll a little of the putty between his fingers and then force it evenly and firmly into the cut. Let the repair stand until morning, and the results will be satisfactory.

FIRST TRUCK SHOW ACCLAIMED BY ALL A HUGE SUCCESS

Simultaneously with the closing of the passenger car show in the Exhibit Building the first exclusive truck show closed its doors last night at 11 o'clock. There has long been a question in the minds of the dealers as to the advisability of holding a separate exhibition for commercial cars, but the success of the show staged in the Coliseum this year made certain that the commercial car will have a place of its own in future automobile shows.

Men who had attended the truck shows of both New York and Chicago were unanimous in the opinion that the St. Louis exhibition was a greater success than the shows staged at either of these cities. The attendance was much greater, due in a large part to the fact that one admission included both shows and that bus service between the two buildings was established early in the week.

Seventy-nine commercial cars exhibited by 39 dealers, and it is estimated that sales in excess of a half million dollars were consummated during the week. The attendance was in the neighborhood of 25,000.

A display of commercial cars is decidedly unromantic, lacking the clamor and the attraction for the public held by the passenger car show. Those who visited the Coliseum this week were people vitally interested in motor truck transportation, and the dealers made the most of the opportunity.

The Ship-by-Truck idea of delivering freight to nearby points by use of trucks received an immense impetus this week. Many factory officials well versed in this phase of motor transportation were in St. Louis, and many conferences on the establishing of new routes were held.

USED CAR SHOW TO BE HELD MARCH 8

Dealers Secure Exhibit Building for Week's Display of Bargain Cars.

It was decided last week that the annual Used-Car Show would be held in the Exhibit Building during the week starting Monday, March 8. The decorations for the Automobile Show will be left intact, and a meeting of the Dealers' Association will be held in the near future for the alloting of space.

Practically all cars displayed during the Used-Car week will be repainted and thoroughly overhauled, and in many ways the show will have the appearance of the exhibit which closed last night. Complete details will be announced at a later date.

NEW ORGANIZATION TO BUILD KNIGHT CAR

Announcement has just been made that the temporary engineering and purchasing headquarters of the new Handley-Knight company have been established in Toledo, O. The president, J. I. Handley, decided it was more convenient to handle the preliminary work in Toledo, where he lives, while the new factory buildings are under construction in Kalamazoo, Mich.

Inquiries received from all parts of the country indicate that the announcement of this new company, recently made, has created an unusual interest. Considerable importance is being attached to the announcement of the personnel of the organization which Mr. Handley is gathering about him.

A. E. Schaaf will be closely associated with Mr. Handley and will devote his attention particularly to the direction of engineering and production. Until recently, he was operating head of the F. I. A. T. company at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and was very active in assisting the Government in its work after the plant was taken over during the war.

Harry L. Dunn, for many years assistant purchasing agent of the Willys-Overland company, will be associated with Mr. Handley with the title of purchasing agent.

Walter A. Olson, formerly division manager in charge of production of the Willys-Overland factory, comes to this new company as works manager.

NO ROOM FOR PESSIMISM IN MOTOR CAR FIELD

In commenting upon the unprecedented prosperity of American farmers, Edward S. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car Co., Cleveland, who addressed the visiting dealers last week, said:

"If the people of the United States ever want to establish an asylum for pessimists—or those who think this country is going to the dogs—I know a lot of good locations.

"Pick any verdant hill in the heart of the pig and corn country, in the region of the milk and wheat—the garden of the billions—the land where the dollars grow.

"Strange, isn't it, that the idea should so long persist that the farmers want cheap merchandise, when in reality they are the most intelligent and insistent purchasers of service and quality in the world?

"Wealth is everywhere in the world for men who are not afraid to sweat and learn and save. Once the habit is formed, the laborer, whether with hands or brain, becomes a capitalist. Then he is independent of other men. His wealth attracts wealth—and happiness is his."

"St. Louis, located in the heart of a district where money comes from the ground, shall, without doubt, play a very important part in both the manufacturing and distribution of automobiles during the next five years."

SERIOUS TO DRIVE WITH LOOSE SPOKES

How familiar is that creaking noise due to loose spokes as machines go around a corner or are brought to a quick stop, but few drivers realize the seriousnes of driving with such wheels. To drive a car with creaking wheels is inviting disaster because a sudden shock like skidding or hitting some obstacle may cause a total collapse of the wheel, which may place the driver and the passengers of the car in a very precarious predicament.

They catch your eye, those lines, though they are marked by a reserve of rare good taste.

But in those multitudes of little details the real elegance is expressed — door handles, square doors, low sitting position, deep tilt of the cushions, the rug on the tonneau floor.

A volume easily may be written about them, and any one of them may alone tempt you to ownership.

Then when you've had your first ride, when you've felt the influence that Hot Spot and Ram's-horn have on the action of its master engine, when you've noted the utter silence, easy starting, the ready response, the easy effort "up underneath the bonnet" you, too, will say Chalmers is one of the few great cars of the world.

Read These Important Reasons:

For 65 years the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company and its predecessors have been known as one of the largest manufacturers of quality machinery in the world. In the past four years Allis-Chalmers engineers have spent over $3,000,000 in developing and perfecting the two Allis-Chalmers Farm Tractor Models—the 6-12 "General Purpose" and the 18-30 Four-Plow.

Now—these tractors are right in every detail of construction—built complete in the huge plants of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company—ready to give you better service and greater satisfaction than you have ever known in tractor ability.

The Murphy Machinery & Equipment Company is the big central point of contact for the St. Louis territory—with a steady supply of tractors for immediate delivery—with full facilities for immediate service.

The 6-12—General Purpose

INVENTION SOLVES POOR FUEL PROBLEM

New Principle of Carburetion Presented to Society of Automotive Engineers.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 21.—The problem of efficient motor car operation on present-day fuels is said to have been solved by the invention of an appliance known as the fuelizer.

The first announcement of the invention was made at a recent session of the Society of Automotive Engineers, and is said to have been the sensation of the meeting. The fuelizer forms part of the carburetion system of the engine. Its purpose is to supply heat to the charge, changing the mixture that comes from the carburetor into a dry vapor, readily and fully explosive in the cylinders. Its action is automatically responsive to the needs of the engine. The appliance was developed by L. M. Woolson in the experimental laboratories of the Packard Motor Car Co.

Fuel Problem Serious.

"The invention clears the way for years ahead," says Col. Vincent, vice president of the Packard Motor Car Co., who is president of the S. A. E. "The fuel situation, due to the enormous expansion of the automobile industry, has become serious. The fuelizer not only assures efficient performance on present-day fuels, but it gives insurance to motor car owners against difficulties which the future may bring. It has been recognized by engineers that the solution of the fuel problem was to be found in the proper carburetion of available fuels, rather than any radical change in engine design.

"Various devices have been used for breaking up the wet mixture as it passed from the carburetor to the cylinders, but they have been only moderately successful. The most common device has been the exhaust heated intake, which supplied the greatest heat to the charge at a time when heat was least needed, and a minimum when the engine required the heat for efficient performance.

"In developing the fuelizer Mr. Woolson worked on the idea of applying heat automatically in just the degree needed. The appliance does its work automatically without involving a single moving part, and it requires no adjustment.

Supplies Heat Instantly.

"The fuelizer consists of a small supplementary carburetor and a burning chamber where the gas from the little carburetor is burned. The chamber is situated in the intake manifold. When the gas enters it is ignited by a regulation spark plug, and passes into the fresh charge going from the carburetor to the cylinders. The heat of the burnt gas changes the wet, poorly carbureted mixture to a dry vapor, which explodes with full efficiency when it is touched off by the spark in the cylinder.

"The appliance causes the entire charge to be exploded, doing away with carbonizing, because the kerosene and similar less volatile matter is burned. Also it prevents dilution of the oil in the crank case. Another advantage is that the engine, being supplied with a heated charge instantly on cranking, is ready for high gear work, regardless of the weather."

CLEVELAND PRODUCTION ENLARGED BY NEW PLANT

Production figures of the Cleveland Automobile Co. of Cleveland, O., makers of Cleveland light six motor cars, show that twice as many of these cars were produced during January than in the previous month, according to a factory statement received by Leroy V. Jones, manager of the Cleveland Lewis Auto Co.

Every effort is being made to so speed up production as to double the January figures during February. A large four-story addition to the present factory is nearing completion, and it is expected this will be in operation by the middle of March, increasing the capacity of the original plant, completed nearly a year ago, by one-half. When this new annex is in operation the Cleveland Automobile Co. hopes to reach its originally planned production schedule of 150 cars a day.

F. W. D. Open Local Office.

The Four Wheel Drive Auto Co. of Clintonville, Wis., builders of the F. W. D. truck, has begun its commercial production and announces the appointment of Harry H. Brown as district supervisor of sales, with headquarters at 419 Chemical Building.

Mr. Brown saw a year's service in France in motor transportation and previously was assistant to the vice president of Studebaker Corporation of America. He has within his jurisdiction the appointment of dealers and the distribution of F. W. D. trucks for the states of Missouri, Illinois and Iowa.

INCREASED PAIGE PRODUCTION NEAR

While the demand for Paige cars, which overwhelmed the factory in 1919, remains far beyond maximum production, relief is in sight for the eager buyer who hates a waiting list and for the harassed dealer who grieves over delayed deliveries.

In spite of the severities of an "old-fashioned winter," rapid progress is being made in the construction of the new Paige factory buildings. All the steel work of the first unit is up and the cement work well under way.

This unit, which is four stories high and 600 by 380 feet, will house the machine shop, assembly and paint and trim departments. Other units will be constructed as rapidly as possible until the 47 acres acquired for this new factory are utilized.

Each unit will be placed in operation, of course, as soon as it is completed and machinery installed. The day when Paige will be able to double its present production is therefore close at hand.

J. E. WRIGHT, PIONEER AUTO MAKER, DIES

J. E. Wright, veteran automobile and carriage man, died Sunday, Feb. 8, at his home in York, Pa., after an illness dating back several years. Mr. Wright was in his sixtieth year.

As one of the founders and for years vice president and sales manager of the Allen Motor Co., Columbus, O., Mr. Wright was well known in automobile circles in St. Louis and throughout the country.

HAS NEW TRAFFIC SIGNAL

L. B. Tebbetts & Co., 2125 Locust street, recently signed contract for the distribution of the Wright Traffic and Danger Signal for the State of Missouri. This signal is mechanically operated by the left hand from the steering column. It is put on over the tail light after removing the red glass. Mr. Tebbetts states that it can be seen day or night for a distance of over 300 feet and that it is positive in operation, with nothing to get out of order.

Tebbetts says that the need of such a device is recognized by everyone and that owing to the increasing congestion of traffic its necessity is daily becoming more important, especially in closed cars and in all cars at night when the driver's arm cannot be seen.

How Much is American Business Taxed by Avoidable Breakdowns

E. H. HARRIMAN used to say that no man achieves anything worth while unless he takes all the responsibility and holds absolute control.

The Packard Company has always taken full responsibility for its trucks because it controls their building from the ground up.

Every part designed by Packard—controlled by Packard through foundry, forge, machining and finishing—a Packard engineering unit, tested by Packard every step of the way.

PACKARD owns and operates the most extensive heat-treating and finishing plant in the world—producing a steel that is stronger than the average by 35,000 to 62,000 pounds to the square inch.

The steel in the rear end of a Packard truck costs 22c a pound—as against 9c for the steel ordinarily used.

Each run of steel is tested to the final limit of strength. Each finished part to highest known standard of accuracy.

Packard engines are run on the block to an equivalent of 1000 miles road service. A Packard truck is ready to do a full day's work when it is delivered.

THE business man runs his trucks for what they will do.

Transportation is his object—not having defective parts "made good" free of charge.

The Packard business is not a business of assembling parts made here and there. It is not a trade in repair parts.

It is a business of building trucks for the man who wants transportation every working hour of every working day.

And this is why the Packard Company keeps control every step of the way—clear back to the timber in the forest and the ore in the mine.

FEDERATED ROADS COUNCIL OUTLINES ELEVEN PURPOSES

The purposes and objects of the Federated Roads Council of St. Louis are contained in a circular letter entitled "For the Best ,Roads" which was distributed during last week to a large number of good roads enthusiasts in the city and county.

Raymond A. Walsh, secretary and manager, said the policy of the Federated Roads Council will be to act as a clearing house for the road activities of the various organizations of the city and to form a body of men who will give special attention to those subjects with which they are most familiar.

Discussion of these subjects will be reduced to phamphlet form or in material for the use of speakers. Twenty-five various organizations in the city have already signified their desire to affiliate with the Federated Council in the good road movement. The chairmen of the various bureaus have been appointed.

Offices were opened last week by the Federated Roads Council at 400 Carleton building.

The purposes and objects of which there are eleven follow:

1. To encourage and promote the building of county, state, interstate and national highways.
2. To assist in the preparation and passage of adequate, comprehensive and progressive laws relating to good roads, their construction, maintenance and regulation of traffic.
3. To co-operate with and assist national, state and community good road associations.
4. To establish permanent offices and employ such clerical and professional assistance as may be required.
5. To secure and keep in a convenient place maps, literature and periodicals dealing with the subject of good roads and to cause to be published and circulated effective literature.
6. To bring under the directing head of this organization all St. Louis associations interested in the subject of good roads and make of it the center or clearing house of the good roads movement of St. Louis.
7. To maintain an advisory bureau where any citizen can secure legal, engineering, constructural and practical advice dealing with the subject of good roads.
8. To prepare and furnish to city and state newspapers articles and maps dealing with the subject of good roads.
9. To provide speakers and select and send delegations to counties or communities requiring assistance, and to good road meetings and conventions.
10. To work for the immediate object of securing permanent roads within a 100-mile air-line radius of St. Louis.
11. To assist in all St. Louis projects having for their object the improvement of St. Louis streets and boulevards.

THREE WORLD SPEED RECORDS MADE IN 1919

A resume of the 1919 automobile racing season shows that it was one of the most successful in the history of the sport. Three new world's records were hung up.

Tommy Milton made 10 miles at the Sheepshead Bay track in 5 minutes, 20 and two-tenths seconds in his speedy Duesenberg, or a speed of 112.4 miles an hour. Ralph de Palma set a new mark at the same track when his Packard Special flashed across the line in the 50-mile race in 26 minutes, 23 and four-tenths seconds, or 113.7 miles an hour. Gaston Chevrolet hurled his Frontenac around the same board oval at the rate of 110.53 miles an hour in the 100-mile race in 54 minutes, 17 and eight-tenths seconds.

Tommy Milton was the largest individual winner, getting the checkered flag in the two Uniontown, Sheepshead Bay and Elgin races. Joe Boyer was next with wins at Uniontown, Cincinnati and Ascot speed contests, while Gaston Chevrolet finished first at Sheepshead Bay in two races.

In a noncompetitive trial in November at the Sheepshead Bay track Tommy Milton traveled 113 miles in 60 minutes with his Duesenberg, traveling farther in an hour than any other car in the world.

Races were marked by few serious accidents, but there were plenty of thrills for spectators. Everything points to a record year in automobile racing in 1920, as interest has increased, rather than diminished since the war ended.

RADIATOR NEEDS WATCHING WHEN WEATHER VARIES

Don't forget to remove the cover from the front of the radiator when there is a thaw or the weather gets mild for a few days after being quite cold. When the temperature is away down, it is, of course, wise to cover the front of the radiator partially or fully to prevent the bitter cold air from getting into the engine compartment and to make the engine too cold for proper operation.

But, having adjusted matters for such days, remember that when the warmer spells arrive, the shutting out of the air may be too complete, and you will cause the power plant to overheat, often with serious results.

DORT FACTORY BUYS BIG CARRIAGE WORKS

To keep pace with the unusual demand created by the nation-wide popularity of the four-season sedan and coupe models, the Dort Motor Car Co, of Flint has taken over the extensive plant of the Lull Carriage Co. at Kalamazoo.

This entails an expenditure of about a half a million dollars on the part of the Dort company. One of the Lull buildings has been turned over and possesion of the other will be secured on May 1, the whole adding 150,000 square feet to Dort manufacturing activities.

In the building now being put in shape will be installed a complete wood-working equipment. All machinery will be of the latest pattern and so arranged that the production of from 150 to 200 sets of body parts will be the daily schedule. The other four-story building will be devoted entirely to the assembling, painting and trimming of closed bodies.

Gentlemen:-

In the spring of 1919 I was having a great deal of difficulty with my six cylinder Haynes car, as three of the cylinders were pumping oil badly because of defective piston rings, and although I was using spark plugs of an old and well known make they required cleaning at frequent intervals.

I substituted for those plugs your self-cleaning plug, and used them during the remainder of the season with perfect satisfaction, without changing the piston rings. During this continuous use for nine months not one of the Porter plugs became foul or failed in any way.

Owing to excess carbon on the spark plug of one of the cylinders of my engine, I had never been able to run over fifty miles, without stopping to clean same.

Last March I put in a set of your plugs; they have never been touched or removed since installed at that time. During this period the engine has run perfectly, the trouble-some cylinder firing as regularly as the others.

COLE ADOPTS A NEW SPECIAL CARBURETOR

One of the most recent improvements incorporated in the Cole Aero-Eight models that adds so much to the smooth operation of the motor is the special carburetor, with which the models are equipped. It has been designed particularly for the Aero-Eight motor and will answer its requirements at all times without the different adjustments common to most carburetors.

An accelerating well at the side of the carburetor is provided with a small plunger, attached to the throttle lever. This device makes it possible for the maximum amount of gasoline to be supplied to the motor almost instantly. When the throttle or accelerator is pushed open all at once, the plunger forces raw fuel from the accelerating well into the intake manifolds. In this way the motor can be supplied the maximum amount of fuel in an instant and the car is afforded a smooth, quick pick-up.

RUBBER TUBING WILL PREVENT "SHORTING"

There is frequently danger of short circuits in the battery because of the fact that one of the terminals is located near the metal handle used for lifting the battery. To obviate this danger it is only necessary to slip a short length of rubber tubing over the wire at the point where the contact might be made. To do this the tubing should be slit lengthwise, slipped over the wire and taped firmly in place. It is a good plan to follow this practice wherever there is danger of the wires rubbing off their insulation and so establishing a short circuit.

NOT A BAD IDEA, AT THAT

Lots of things are done in North Carolina and South Carolina that, for example, South Dakota and Alaska are not guilty of. Probably, also, vice versa. The twin Carolinas, for instance, have a most peculiar law.

The courts have ruled that a pedestrian struck by a motor car can sue for the possession of the vehicle. This law has become so popular of late, it has been upheld so often to the loss of the car by the owner, that a growing number of people in these two States, when they feel the need for a motor car for business on pleasure, walk forth, strut in the right-of-way of a motor car, are knocked down, institute suit, and quickly obtain possession of the car that injured them.

The National Automobile Dealers' Association is waging a legal war to bring about the repeal of this statute.

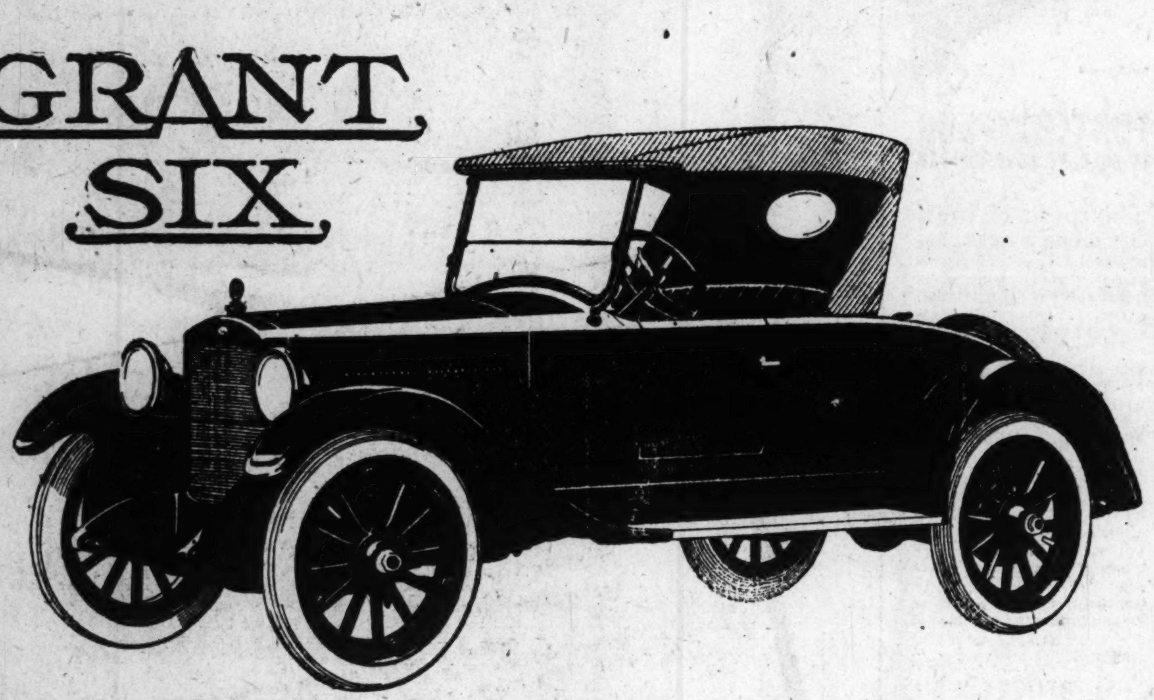
GRANT SIX



A Real Touring Roadster

Few new models have ever evoked such nationwide enthusiasm as the Grant Touring Roadster. And never has enthusiastic appreciation been more honestly earned. Besides being a model of beauty and graceful design, the new Grant Roadster brings qualities of comfort and ease of operation that keeps fresh enthusiasm constantly bubbling.

Especially designed for touring purposes and long cross-country drives, this new Grant model appeals to all who love the thrill of motoring and the open road. With its long wheelbase and low hung frame, the wide deep seat swung in the middle of the chassis gives utmost comfort on all roads.

Unusual attention has been given to locker and storage space in this model. Besides a deep wide compartment back of the seat cushion for wraps and robes, there is ample space under the rear deck for luggage.

People speak of its surprising speed. It slips along so smoothly, at say 30 to 35 miles an hour, that it challenges the admiration of those accustomed to driving cars that cost twice its price.

"It hangs to the road in great shape." "Smoothest riding car I was ever in."

Others praise its easy steering, its short turning radius, making it possible to park in small space.

Again they say its brakes operate with surprising ease, its clutch engages and disengages with wonderful smoothness, and it rides so comfortably that it sets an entirely new mark for light cars.

And everybody who has tried it says it's a wonderfully comfortable car to ride in.

If you haven't seen the new Grant Six Roadster, make it your business to see it soon.

Owners Praise It For Its Comfort

The delightful comfort with which five adult persons ride in the Cleveland Six touring car has appealed to buyers everywhere. The wide, soft-cushion seats, upholstered in genuine hand-buffed plaited leather, are cozy as cozy can be. And the low underslung spring construction, a feature of the Cleveland Six chassis, subdues the road-shock long before it can reach the cushions.

Many unusual qualities such as these are fast winning friends for the Cleveland Six. Among light weight sixes it stands out distinctly.

At all the principal automobile shows this season it has attracted extraordinary crowds. Men of mechanical interests and men experienced in the use of motor cars have been generous in their expression of approval and admiration for the entire design and construction of the Cleveland Six chassis. The several beautiful styles of body, mounted on this one chassis, have met with praise from men and women alike.

To Whom It May Concern:

This is to certify that during the month of November, 1912, Dr. Henrich most successfully treated and completely cured me of one of the worst cases of Protruding and Internal Piles of many years standing. For years I had suffered all kinds of agony, and after having tried many lotions, as well as numerous Doctors, finally decided to have an operation, but on talking with Dr. Henrich, was convinced he was the very man I was looking for. His treatment is not at all severe, but very mild, and positively a success.

It is now 18 months since he treated me, and am perfectly free from Piles.

Curse of Acid-Stomach
Millions Suffer from It

"Makes the Body Sour"

Why do you see so many sick and ailing folks?

Why doesn't the food you eat make you strong?

Why do you now suffer miseries no one had years ago?

Millions of people have asked this.

Medical books tell the reason. It's an Acid-Stomach—that is, too much acid causes food to pass on a sour, fermenting mass. This sends poisonous germs and harmful acids all over the body, instead of strength and life.

Over seventy non-organic diseases can be traced to Acid-Stomach. It is excess acid, not the food you eat, that starts this trouble. Day and night it goes on, doing ceaseless damage, breeding millions of germs.

If you belch, if your food repeats, if you have heartburn, a miserable, tight puffed-up feeling after eating, sour stomach, headache, if you are losing weight, if you don't feel "peppy," sleep badly—in fact, ailing in any way—

Get rid of your Acid-Stomach. It's the first step to good health.

Eminent chemists, after years of work, have found a way to easily and naturally take up this excess acid and carry it out of the body.

It is a tablet called EATONIC, easy to remember. Within two years, over half a million people have used it with marvelous benefits. You can prove this in your own case—FREE.

Take EATONIC for five days—see how much better you will feel. EATONIC contains harmless elements that absorb the acid and drive out the gas—in fact, you can fairly feel it work.

Because of its wonderful merit, 25,000 dealers have started selling and have guaranteed EATONIC for Acid-Stomach miseries in the last two years.

Over half a million people now clean out their excess acid with EATONIC. This keeps them well, strong, full of pep, gives them a good appetite, makes them sleep well.

No matter what you have tried—don't give up hope. Call on your druggist and get a big box of EATONIC. It costs but a trifle.

Give it a fair, honest trial for five days—let your own stomach be the judge.

If you are not pleased take it back. It won't cost you one penny unless it proves its worth to you.

Sickly, ailing people—with no pep, nervous, worn out, all in—should try EATONIC—it is guaranteed to help you. It is so easy to get relief—why feel bad any longer? You will never feel well with an Acid-Stomach. Get rid of it—see how much better you will feel.

GOOD ROADS PLANK IN POINDEXTER PLATFORM

Presidential Candidate Finds Ammunition in Civil and Military Uses of High System.

The coming presidential campaign, the preliminaries of which are already in full swing, promises to provide a tremenduous boost for good roads throughout the country, according to the Washington correspondent of Automobile Topics.

An indication of the thought in official and political circles on the subject is found in the recent message of President Wilson to Congress, in which he took occasion to stress the need for good roads. Now, Senator Poindexter has injected it into the political campaign by declaring in the announcement of his candidacy for President that he will make good roads a paramount administration policy if he is elected.

Senator Poindexter was the first to throw his hat in the presidential ring. At the same time he did the very unusual thing of announcing the platform on which he would seek the indorsement of the people at the polls. The platform leaves no room for doubt as to the Senator's position as regards good roads. It reads, in part: "I favor an extensive system of national roads—built on approved engineering principles, located with a view to military defense as well as civil and commercial use, co-ordinated with existing highways so as to form a national as well as local system."

Senator Poindexter is also a member of the Senate Committee on the Postoffice and Post Roads. This committee now has before it the bill introduced by Senator Townsend for the revision of the Federal Aid Act by creating a National Highway Commission and providing for the expenditure of road-building funds direct by the Government instead of through the States, as is now the plan.

MADE SPECIALLY FOR TOURISTS IN MISSOURI

A rubber shoe with a soft leg attachment for the purpose of supplying motorists with adequate foot protection when it becomes necessary to get out into the mud to make a tire repair or pull a car out of a mudhole has been produced by the United States Rubber Co. The shoe is designed in a way to make it possible to roll it up and store it away as part of the car's equipment.

The shoe may be pulled on over a motorist's shoe. The leg attachment comes up to a point just below the knee and buckles around the leg below the knee.

Hydrometer Holder.

The hydrometer, which every careful car owner uses constantly on his battery, is easily broken and it is somewhat of a problem to know where to keep it. The best way is to keep it right in the wooden case in which it comes and to attach metal straps to the wall, into which the case and instruments may be thrust after the car owner has finished his battery test.

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

A Car of Beauty and Real Worth

In undertaking to build a six-cylinder motor that would set a new standard for five-passenger cars, we knew that we were assuming a task which could not be completed in a week, a month or even a year.

As a matter of fact, three years were consumed before we were satisfied that our original purpose had been fully achieved.

The verdict which we ourselves rendered has now been confirmed by the judgment of the motorist. Owners of the five-passenger Paige Glenbrook have found its six-cylinder motor not only exceptional in power and speed, but also a revelation in dependability and economy.

The Glenbrook is distinctly a Paige car in beauty as well as mechanical excellence. It was recognized at once as such. And, as an investment value, it is acknowledged to be without equal in the light six field.

Best Treatment for Catarrh, Croup, Coughs and Colds

HYOMEI
INHALER

Guaranteed by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. No Stomach Dosing.

Breathe HYOMEI for all diseases of the breathing organs. It is guaranteed.

In case of croup, which is very common in children, send for a doctor at once. In the meantime pour 30 drops of HYOMEI into a bowl of boiling water and hold the child's head over it; covered with a towel or cloth so that only the air filled with HYOMEI vapor is breathed.

This treatment has saved many a child's life and mothers of croupy children should always have HYOMEI on hand.

For coughs, colds and catarrh, breathing HYOMEI through the inhaler is usually sufficient.

Many people, however, use the HYOMEI vapor treatment in conjunction with the inhaler.

The vapor treatment is best taken just before going to bed; it only takes about five minutes' time. Pour a teaspoonful of HYOMEI into a bowl three-quarters full of boiling water, cover head and bowl with towel, and breathe the vapor that arises deep into the lungs. By this method many a hard cold has been broken up over night. A HYOMEI outfit, which consists of a bottle of HYOMEI and a hard rubber pocket inhaler, costs $1.15 at Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., and druggists everywhere. Extra bottles if afterward needed cost only 60 cents.

TURPO Helps in Flu Prevention

One of the successful preventives used during the epidemic last year was Turpo, which is a combination of the old-time remedies of turpentine, menthol and camphor, in ointment form. Many physicians use and recommend Turpo.

Snuff a little Turpo up the nostrils several times a day as a preventive.

External applications will help relieve the congestion which is caused by influenza. Rub Turpo into the chest, throat, under the arms and between the shoulders. This stimulates the skin, attracting the blood to the surface and thus aids in reducing the congestion within. Buy a jar of Turpo of your druggist while he has a supply on hand.

FIRST TREATY RESERVATION RE-ADOPTED UNCHANGED

VOTE OF 45-20 IN THE SENATE SHOWS INCREASED MAJORITY FOR IT

Four Democrats Who Have Stood Against Qualifications Support Withdrawal Reservation, After Irreconcilable Republicans Prevent Compromise.

ACTION ACCEPTED AS TIGHTENING DEADLOCK

Lodge Reiterates Article X Reservation Can't Be Materially Changed, and Declares That Treaty Is Going Into the Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The first of the reservations attached to the peace treaty last November, was readopted, unchanged, and by an increased majority today in the Senate, after the treaty's irreconcilable foes, holding the balance of power, had balked the efforts of Republican and Democratic leaders to secure modification in the interests of compromise.

The outcome, although involving the defection of our more Democratic Senators fro mthe ranks of those who have stood against all reservations, generally was accepted as tightening the deadlock and bringing the question of ratification one step near the political campaign.

Most of the debate preceding the roll call revolved about the treaty as a campaign issue, and drew from the Republican side a volley of criticism of the utterances made on the subject by Elihu Root before the New York Republicans in their recent convention.

Root Suggestion "Silly."

Senator Johnson of California, candidate for the presidential nomination, pronounced "utterly silly" the declaration of Root that the United States should enter the league of nations with reservations, and then move to reform it after a new President is inaugurated.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the Republican floor leader, declared amendements of the league covenant, once it was ratified, would be "practically impossible," and Senator Borah of Idaho, a leader among the Republican irreconcilables, gave notice that he would carry on his fight before the people, regardless of the action of the party's national convention.

The reservation on which the Senate acted relates to withdrawal from membership in the league, providing that this nation shall be the sole judge whether its obligations have been fulfilled in case it desires to withdraw, and that notice of withdrawal may be given by a concurrent resolution of Congress.

Vote on the Reservation.

The vote on its adoption was 45 to 20, 10 Democrats joining in the solid Republican lineup supporting it. Four of these, Senators—Ashurst, Arizona; Fletcher, Florida; Henderson, Nevada, and Nugent, Idaho—had stood on all previous calls steadfastly against any qualification of the treaty.

One of the four, Senator Ashurst, announced to the Senate beforehand his intention to go over to the reservationists. Having become convinced that ratification of some sort was a prime necessity, he said, he was ready to vote "for any reservation or amendment that will ratify this treaty."

"If we'll vote our own convictions and not those of the President," said he, "we'll have a treaty."

It was by a bare majority, 33 to 32, that the Senate rejected the changes in the reservation framed by Republican leaders and submitted by Senator Lodge as part of his compromise plan.

Under the amendment either the President or a majority of Congress could have given notice of the nation's withdrawal, a modification which Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, denounced as making the

JOKER PLAYS UPON MAN WHO SOUGHT WIFE THROUGH AD

Widower Got 13 Answers but 8 Spinsters Named Deny Having Written.

When Charles Stoeber, 46 years old, a widower, advertised in a Belleville newspaper for a wife, he was perfectly serious. When he got 13 replies by return mail, he took them seriously, and started out, in business-like fashion, to investigate and make a choice.

Stoeber said last night, to the Post-Dispatch correspondent at Belleville, that he had looked up eight of the supposed aspirants to his hand, and that they had all denied having written to him. He said he suspected that a practical joker had written the letters.

The women whom Stoeber visited, on the strength of the letters received by him, were spinsters, none of them young, and one of them 77 years old. She declared that she had enjoyed single life too long to desire a change. The others were just as emphatic, and the wife-hunter did not get from any of them so much as an invitation to stay for tea.

Stoeber lives at present on West Lincoln street, Belleville, but is planning to buy a store in Millstadt, if he can get a wife to help him run it.

BIG DECLINE IN NUMBER OF ARRESTS IN JANUARY

Chief O'Brien Says Prohibition Is Responsible for Their Reduction by 1607.

In January of this year there were 3147 arrests in St. Louis compared with 4754 in January, 1919, according to police statistics made public yesterday. This was a decrease of 1607, or about 33 per cent. Of those arrested in January this year 400 were women and 2747 were men, as compared with 810 women and 3344 men last January.

Chief O'Brien said he believed the enforcement of national prohibition beginning Jan. 16, was in the main responsible for the decrease in the number of arrests.

U. S. INSPECTORS SEEK POISONOUS OLIVES IN 52 CITIES

Housewives Warned Not to Open "Richelieu," "Batavia" and "Ferndell" Brands of Ripe Olives.

LIST OF TOWNS THAT RECEIVED SHIPMENTS

Chicago Grocery House Which Distributed Goods Absolved of Blame; One Poison Case.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Federal and State food inspectors in 52 towns of eight states are making frantic efforts tonight to locate and destroy dozens of bottles of ripe stuffed olives containing the deadly botilinus germ.

A single case of olive poisoning at Kalispell, Mont., which led to discovery of the danger, is the only one reported so far. Federal chemists who uncovered the widespread distribution of the poison fruit are making every effort to reach and confiscate the bottles and a warning has been sent broadcast advising housewives to return unopened all containers holding the suspected brands.

The olives, packed in 1918 by a California company, were sold to the retail trade through Sprague-Warner & Co., a Chicago wholesale grocery house. Maj. A. A. Sprague, head of the firm, and Federal Fair Price Commissioner for Illinois, has furnished a record of all sales to Federal authorities and has also instructed his salesmen to call on every customer and take up the olives.

Packer's Name Not on Label.

Fifteen dozen bottles of the poison fruit have been distributed to dealers in 17 Illinois towns. It is not known exactly how many dozens are in stores in the seven other states.

The brands involved are "Batavia," "Ferndell" and "Richelieu." Only ripe olives, stuffed with pimentos and sold in bottles, are affected. J. L. McLaughlin, superintendent of the Illinois Division of Foods and Dairies, said investigation disclosed that no blame for the condition of the olives attached to either the packer, wholesaler or retailer.

The labels on the bottles do not carry the name of the packer. The bottles contain six ounces net and are of the No. 10 size, according to the labels.

List of Towns.

The towns in which the olives are known to have been distributed and the number of bottles at some are:

Illinois—Richileu brand; Bradford, 4; Jacksonville, 24; Lake Forest, 24; Evanston, 6; Elgin, 12; Winchester, 1; Wyoming, 3; Aledo, 12; Geneva, 4; Ferndell Brand: Mattoon, 12; Freeport, 6; Danville, 6; Dekalb, 6; Elgin, 12; Griggsville, 6; Beardstown, 12; Clinton, 6; Batavia Brand: Carthage, 12; Bradford, 6.

Germ First Found in Ham.

Bacillus botilinus, a deadly poison, first discovered in ham in 1899, appeared in ripe olives last fall when a party of five persons died after a dinner at a Canton, O., club. The deaths were traced to the olives. Several other cases have since been reported, with fatal results in nearly every instance.

Prior to the discovery of the present case, Federal authorities, according to McLaughlin, believed that the only dangerous olives in the market

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.

By the Associated Press.

SEVENTY-EIGHT years ago ago tomorrow, in Springfield, Ill, where his tomb is now a shrine before which a nation bows in reverence, young Abraham Lincoln paid tribute to George Washington. The words he uttered there, perhaps as eloquent as his world-famed Gettysburg address, have been lost for three-quarters of a century in the pages of a country newspaper hidden away in the files of the Congressional Library. They were brought to light to be given to the world for the first time almost on the eve of another birthday of the first President.

"This is the one hundred and tenth anniversary of the birthday of Washington," he said. "We are met to celebrate this day. Washington is the mightiest name on earth —long since mightiest in the cause of civil liberty; still mightiest in moral reformation. On that name an eulogy is expected. It cannot be. To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington is alike impossible. Let none attempt it. In solemn awe pronounce the name, and in its naked, deathless splendor, leave it Washington."

The text of this unknown example of Lincoln's eloquence was found in Washington by Lucien High Alexander of Philadelphia, who gave it to the Associated Press today. An account of the ceremony at which Lincoln spoke was contained in the copy of the Sangamon journals published at Springfield Feb. 25, 1842. The tribute to Washington was the final paragraph of an address upon another subject and the address in full was published in the Journal of March 16.

Alexander, a student of Lincoln, came upon the unknown address while on historical research work.

U. S. SHOULD ADMIT ONLY ALIENS HERE TO STAY, MARSHALL SAYS

Vice-President Eulogizes Pilgrim Fathers in New York Address.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Aliens who come to America "not intending to make permanent homes, but expecting to return, should not be received," Vice President Thomas R. Marshall said tonight at a dinner given by the Sulgrave Institution in celebration of the tercentenary of the Pilgrim Fathers. This country, he added, should no longer "be loved for its opportunities alone," but should "be loved for its institutions as well."

One of the lessons of the Pilgrim Fathers that should be "stamped upon the heart of every liberty-loving American," said the speaker, is that they came to Plymouth "to worship God and to make homes, determined never to return to Europe." "These Pilgrims were English-speaking people," he continued, "and from their forgotten graves they ought never to stretch forth their hands and touch the sleeve of an American elector who does not speak the English language."

"I have been so long in the cave of the winds," said Vice-President Marshall, when introduced to the gathering, "that I have lost all grasp of contemporary affairs. I understand the Sulgraves Institution is a society which arranges for the interchange of scholars and newspapermen between the United States and Great Britain, and I would be indebted to the organization if they would arrange to have me exchange my place with the Prince of Wales. I would be under obligation to him. I have reached the conclusion that I am not heir apparent. This is a truthful statement of fact."

BABY DIES AFTER BEING SHOT WHEN IN HER MOTHER'S ARMS

18-Months-Old Daughter of East St. Louisan Fatally Wounded by Youth Playing With Rifle.

Edna May Avett, 18 months old, only child of Clyde Avett of 2104 North Fifteenth street, East St. Louis, died yesterday afternoon from a bullet wound in the abdomen, received yesterday morning, while in the arms of her mother, when Blanchard Endicott, 17, discharged a 22-caliber rifle, which he thought was empty.

The rifle was taken from the top of a dresser by Endicott, who started across the room with it, saying, "Look here Avett," at the same time pulling the trigger. Mrs. Avett, with her daughter, was standing in the doorway, and the bullet struck the child.

WILDCAT GUARDS LIQUOR

Routs Supposed Thief From Kentucky Owner's Home.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 21.—Harrison Prader of Greenup County has been using a tame wildcat as a "watchdog" in his home where his possessions are said to include some liquor. A report todays says Prader was awakened by a crash and went to the room where the wildcat is kept and found evidence of the animal having punished someone with its claws.

Prader believes a burglar was ransacking his house for the liquor supposed to be there, when the wildcat guard attacked him.

SHARE OF PROFITS TO MATCH SAVINGS

Butler Brothers Offer to Give 5 Per Cent of Profits With 5 Per Cent Savings.

A profit-sharing plan under which the company will match a saving of 5 per cent of their yearly salaries on the part of employes with 5 per cent of its yearly net profits has been announced to the 1200 employes in St. Louis of Butler Brothers, a wholesale merchandise concern whose establishment in this city is at Eighteenth and Olive streets. The concern also has houses in Chicago, New York, Minneapolis and Dallas and employes there, a total of 20,000, will participate in the plan.

Joseph R. Barroll, manager of the St. Louis branch, said last night that the history of Butler Bros. indicates that the contribution of the company will exceed the payment of employes and that consequently each employe in the division when made will receive a larger sum than he has deposited. In fact, the company guarantees to at least equal and possibly exceed the payments of employes for the remainder of this year.

Fund Intact Five Years.

The maximum payment of any employe to the fund is restricted to $250, and no employe may contribute more than five per cent of his salary. The company's five per cent will be contributed before dividends are paid to stockholders.

The fund is to remain intact for five years. At the end of that time each employe will be paid his proportion in cash or in stock of the company as he elects. The fund is to be administered by five trustees, three of them officers of the company and two employes. The character of the plan once it becomes operative cannot be changed without the consent of a majority of the participants. J. D. Grant, treasurer in St. Louis, is the representative in the board of this city's branch.

Fund May Be Invested.

The fund need not remain dormant as it accumulates, but may be invested as the board of trustees shall determine either in stock of the company or in other securities, the return from which is to be credited to the fund for the profit of its participants.

"The purpose of this decision on the part of the company is to promote loyalty on the part of employes and to encourage thrift for their own benefit," Barroll said last night. "After laying the plan before our St. Louis employes we are of the opinion that the plan will be accepted by a large majority here."

HOLIDAY OBSERVANCE TOMORROW

Exercises at Schools in Honor of Washington's Birthday.

Though this is Washington's birthday it will be observed tomorrow by banks, municipal offices, courts, Chamber of Commerce and grain and stock exchanges. The consolidated railroad ticket offices will also be closed. Tickets and berths, however, may be purchased at Union Station.

The public schools will not have a holiday this year and their observance will be confined to special programs and entertainments at the various schools. Business establishments and the public library and its branches will be open.

32.1 PER CENT GAIN FOR CAPITAL; 10.3 FOR OHIO CITY

Only 25 Days Elapsed Between Enumerations and Publication of Results as Against 60 Days in 1910.

OTHER REPORTS TO FOLLOW PROMPTLY

Those on Larger Cities to Have Lead, Statistics for States Being Last, Under Plan Adopted by Director.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The first population announcements for the 1920, or fourteenth, census, were issued tonight by the Census Bureau, as follows:

Cincinnati, 401,158; increase of 37,567, or 10.3 per cent over 1910.

Washington, D. C., 437,414; increase of 106,345, or 32.1 per cent.

Cincinnati under the last census ranked as thirteenth city of the country, with a population of 363,591. Washington ranked sixteenth, with a population of 331,069. Census Bureau estimates of Cincinnati's population July 1, 1917, were 414,248, and Washington's on that date, 369,282.

In making the announcements tonight, Director Rogers stated the figures were preliminary and subject to correction. The final figures will be those certified to Congress.

Transients at Capital Omitted.

The City of Washington is co-extensive with the District of Columbia. In counting the national capital's population only the actual residents were enumerated, all transient persons, members of the Diplomatic Corps and members of Congress and their families being omitted. A police census of Washington several months ago placed the population at 455,428.

From now on, as soon as the statistics gathered by the enumerators and special agents are assembled and verified, the data will be made public, the population of the larger cities of the country being given out first. Then will follow the population of the various counties which number more than 2900, together with their divisions of townships, precincts and towns, with the population of each incorporated city, town or village. After the counties are complete the population of the various states will be announced and then the count of the entire United States. In the census of 1910 the population of the entire country was not announced until Dec. 10.

Work Moving Rapidly.

Work on the fourteenth census is proceeding much more rapidly than that on the census in 1910. The first announcement from the 1910 enumeration was made 60 days after taking of the count began, while in the 1920 census Washington, D. C., and Cincinnati have taken only 25 days.

As the population of the various cities, towns and villages is ready to be made public, Director Rogers will certify to the Mayor or other executive head of each place the actual count, as announced in the preliminary figures. Should any place consider its population inaccurately counted, there will be opportunity to place proof before the Census Bureau, and if a claim is substantiated, verification of the Census Bureau's figures will follow.

Since the country went dry a month ago, the embassies and legations here have become very popular, and it is said that American men and women worry the attaches about drinks. Therefore, diplomacy has decided to sound the death knell to the last "wet spot" in the United States.

ESCH-CUMMINS MEASURE SUPPORTED BY 45 DEMOCRATS

Kitchin Declares, in Closing Argument Against It, Labor Leaders Caused Some to Support It.

ROADS BACK TO OWNERS MARCH 1

Brotherhoods Present Memorial to President Protesting Against Passage of the Measure.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The Esch-Cummins railroad bill was approved late today by the House, which adopted the conference report after four hours of debate. The vote was 249 to 150—a clean margin of 99 votes.

Adoption of the conference report came after the House had defeated, 228 to 171, a motion to recommit. Chairman Esch of the Interstate Commerce Committee then called for the previous question, and there was a buzz in the chamber as the voting began.

There never was any doubt as to the outcome, leaders said, although the effect of pressure from labor leaders against adoption of the bill was variously interpreted. Representative Kitchen, Democrat, North Carolina, in the closing argument against the bill, declared that labor leaders had caused at least a dozen members opposed to it to rally to its support.

Warning to the House.

During the debates, in which more than a score of Representatives took part, Chairman Esch declared that the railroads would be handed back to their owners on March 1, regardless of whether Congress enacted legislation meanwhile, but he warned the House that defeat of the bill at this stage would put half the railroads of the country in the hands of receivers in three months.

Representative Pou, Democrat, of North Carolina, painted a more gloomy picture by declaring that the country would see the greatest financial disasters in years if it gave up the railroads without enactment of laws which would give them the right to earn a fair return.

Representative Kitchin said his opposition was not in "compliance to the demands of Mr. Gompers." He attacked the "insidious propaganda" which he said railway interests had conducted, and declared the question of Government ownership was not involved.

"Whether this report is adopted or rejected," he said, "we have it from Mr. Esch that the roads will go back to their owners on March 1."

How Members Voted.

The vote for the adoption of the conference report showed 204 Republicans and 45 Democrats supporting it. The opposing vote included 125 Democrats, 23 Republicans, one independent and one prohibitionist. The roll call follows:

For the bill—Republicans: Ackerman, Andrews, Maryland; Andrews, Nebraska; Anthony, Bacharach, Barbour, Begg, Benham, Bland, Boles, Bowers, Britten, Brooks Illinois; Brooks, Pennsylvania; Browning, Burdick, Burroughs, Butler, Campbell, Kansas; Cannon, Chindblom, Christopherson, Cole, Cooper, Copley, Costello, Crago, Cramton, Crowther, Currie, Michigan; Dale, Dallinger, Darrow, Dempsey, Dickinson, Iowa; Dowell, Dunbar, Dunn, Dyer, Echols, Edmonds, Elliott, Elson, Esch, Evans, Nebraska; Fairfield, Fess, Focht, Foster Freeman, French, Fuller, Illinois; Fuller, Massachusetts; Garland, Glynn, Good, Goodall, Goodykoontz, Gould, Graham, Illinois; Green, Iowa; Greene, Massachusetts, Greene, Vermont; Griest, Hadley, Hamilton, Hardy, Colorado; Harreld, Hawley, Hays, Herandez, Hickey, Hersey, Hicks, Hill, Hoch, Houghton Hulings, Hull, Iowa; Husted, Hutchinson, Ireland, Jefferis, Johnson, South Dakota; Johnson, Washington; Jones, Pennsyl-

PROTEST IN LONDON ON TURKISH DECISION

Bryce and O'Connor Start Campaign Against Policy of Supreme Council.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Several London papers today displayed large advertisements headed "Menace to the Peace of the World," appealing to the trades unionists and public generally to forward protests to members of the House of Commons to use their influence "to prevent handing back Constantinople to the blood-stained rule of the Turks."

This protest will be echoed in many of the Protestant and Catholic pulpits of the United Kingdom tomorrow. The supreme council's decision to keep the Sultan on the throne at Constantinople has surprised the country, and influential parliamentarians, notably Viscount Bryce and T. P. O'Connor, have started a campaign against the policy.

The Times today says that, while to expel all the Turkish race has never been dreamed of, "the Turkish flag, the Turkish ruler and the Turkish Government have no longer a place in Europe."

Some newspapers describe the Cabinet as divided, Earl Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and the liberal wing opposing the retention of the Sultan, while the Secretary for India, E. S. Montague, with the conservatives, except Curzon, favors it.

Earl Curzon's views on the Eastern questions generally carry weight but Secretary Montague's policy is attribuuted to regard for the sentiments of the Moslems of India.

T. P. O'Connor, in a statement to the Associated Press, said: "A great section of American citizens, who I know will be amazed at this reversal of policy, will join the British public in demanding that this betrayal of Christianity and civilization be not effected.

O'Connor called attention to Lloyd George's work in condemnation of the Turks in 1914, in which he characterized the Turk as "a human cancer—a creeping agony of the flesh," and he declared he was "glad the Turk was to be called to account for his long record of infamy against humanity."

Turks Rejoice Over News From London Conference.

By the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Thursday, Feb. 19.—The dispatches announcing that the London conference has agreed to the principle maintaining Turkish sovereignty at Constantinople are hailed joyously by the entire Turkish press and officialdom, which declare the retention of Constantinople is most vital to peace negotiations.

The Vakt (Times) says: "We have never admitted for a single moment that it would be possible to deprive us of possession of Constantinople; nevertheless the news coming from Europe is such as to cause unanimous joy. The opponents of the maintenance of the Turks in Constantinople are influenced by sentiment or prejudice, but all are agents, conscious or unconscious, of our most irreconciliable enemies.

"The decision taken by the peace conference is a happy outcome for us; it marks the definite triumph of the partisans of our sovereignty. We rejoice in this development, both on our own account and in view of the maintenance of the world's tranquillity."

The lineup was the same on the motion by Representative Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky, to recommit the bill to conference without instructions. The nine opposed to the bill voted for the motion and the others against it.

Rodenberg of Illinois voted for the motion to recommit, but on the final vote joined the majority of his party in favor of passage of the bill.

Negotiations Not Affected.

Assurance was given railroad labor organizations today by the Railroad Administration that return of the roads March 1 would not affect negotiations now pending as to interpretations of the various wage agreements which were made with the labor groups during Federal control.

Director-General Hines announced that, while the divisions of operations and labor as such would be discontinued March 1, representatives of the Railroad Administration would carry to a conclusion consideration of all grievances. He named C. S. Lake and J. A. Franklin as his assistants to supervise and recommend final disposition of these questions.

Many of these labor demands provide for retroactive pay. In view of this, Hines has authorized the railroad boards on adjustment to continue to receive and hear questions which ordinarily would come to them for settlement under existing wage agreements.

Hines announced that W. S. Carter, director of the Division of Labor, will resume his duties as president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen March 1. W. T. Tyler, director of the Division of Operations, will become vice president of the Northern Pacific Railroad Co.

Railroad Administration estimates place the net cost to the Government of Federal control of the railroads at $636,000,000, Chairman Esch told the House in opening detate.

"This $636,000,000 will have to be charged off as a war loss," he said. "One may say it was expensive, but it was worth the price. Without the railroads, transportation would have failed to supply our troops overseas."

Total appropriations of approximately $1,900,000,000, including those already made, were the "experience of Federal control," Esch said, but he added that of these amounts approximately $1,250,000,000 were "investments" in the form of improvements made for the roads and for which they ultimately will pay.

Representatives of the railroad brotherhoods who conferred with President Wilson recently on wage demands called at the White House today to present a memorial to the President protesting against the passage of the railroad bill and stating that the labor provisions are wholly unacceptable to the railroad workers.

Accompanying the letter to the President was the memorial which the railroad men recently sent to members of Congress. The President was asked to give this careful consideration.

"In our analysis of the labor provisions of the act," said the letter, "we have set forth reasons, coupled with our years of practical application and experience, in negotiating wage adjustments, which to us seem sufficient to warrant the definite conclusion that the Congress has not proposed a method of procedure acceptable at any time and entirely inadequate to meet the present situation.

"We feel sure that you can agree with us to the extent that there is little likelihood that Congress will be able to reach an agreement that will insure a prompt disposition of the question."

Referring to the labor provisions Esch declared that the measure contained "nothing about compulsory putting into effect of the decisions" of the labor boards, but that "it relies on public opinion, which is greater than any legislative decrees. Anti-strike legislation, he said, was attempted in the original Senate bill, but similar laws in foreign countries had been failures as far as preventing strikes went.

Outstanding Points of Railroad Bill Adopted by House.

The oustanding points of the measure as finally agreed upon are:

Compulsory submission of labor disputes to a permanent Federal Board appointed by the President, and composed of nine members equally divided between the employes, employers and the public. No provision is made for enforcing the board's decision.

Adjustment of rates by the Interstate Commerce Commission so as to yield to carriers a return of 5½ per cent upon the aggregate value of their property with another half of 1 per cent for improvements.

Distribution of half the net railway operating income in excess of 6 per cent of the property value, equally between the carriers' reserve fund and the Federal railroad contingent fund, which will be administered by the commission for the assistance of weaker roads.

Government guarantee to railroads against a deficit during the first six months after the roads are turned back.

Permissive consolidation of railroads in accordance with a general consolidation plan to be prepared by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Appropriation of $500,000,000 to be used as revolving funds from which to make loans to carriers and pay claims growing out of Federal control. Unexpended funds now in the Railroad Administration's hands are also reappropriated for that purpose, and an appropriation of $50,000 for the Federal Labor Board is provided.

Wages established by the Railroad Administration during the war would continue in effect until September 1.

Treaty Gets Into Worse Tangle in the Senate reservation more objectionable than it had been before.

On the roll call the irreconcilables, having announced that they would have nothing to do with compromise, went over to the Democrats, voting in the negative. Similarly they had cast their strength successfully a few moments before against a proposal by Senator Hitchcock to make a joint resolution of Congress to effect a withdrawal and that change had been voted down, 38 to 26.

The determination of the irreconcilables to stand against any effort to modify the Republican reservations adopted in November, was announced by Senator Brandegee, Republican, Connecticut, who told the Senate that it only was making a spectacle of itself by seeking to vacillate after it had expressed its opinion and won its right.

Explaining his course, in offering modifications, Senator Lodge declared that most of them were "unimportant" and reiterated his ultimatum to the Democrats that neither the reservation to article 10 nor that relating to the Monroe doctrine ever could be materially changed.

If the Democrats still were determined to block ratification unless there were material changes in those provisions, the majority leader said, then the Senate's consideration of the treaty might as well be brought to an end.

Democrats Who Swung Over.

In addition to the four Democrats who swung over to reservation for the first time today, the members of the minority party, voting to adopt the withdrawal qualifications were Senators Chamberlain, Oregon; Gore, Oklahoma; Myers, Montana; Shields, Tennessee; Smith, Georgia, and Trammell, Florida.

The result, 45 to 20, showed two-thirds of the Senators present voting together for the first time since the treaty fight began, but, in view of the tangled situation, the leaders attached no particular significance. Included in this two-thirds, it was pointed out, were their reconcilables, pledged to vote against ratification regardless of what reservations are adopted.

Under present plans the treaty will not be before the Senate again for several days, the leaders having set aside a day at the beginning of next week for consideration of the railroad bill and possibly tariff legislation.

The next reservation on the list is the all important Article 10 provision, but, once the treaty does come up again, it is the intention to put this reservation over until others have been disposed of. In some quarters, however, it was suggested that these plans might be rearranged when the leaders had weighed today's developments and a show down be asked for next week on Article 10.

Debate on the Treaty.

The peace treaty as a possible campaign issue was debated at length, Senator Johnson assailed the position taken by Root as "a crime against the American people."

Borah then again served notice that, if the party did not come out against the league and the treaty entirely, he would carry his fight against ratification to the people themselves after the national convention.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, said he apprehended no disagreement with Root's proposal among the Democrats, because it was realized on this side of the chamber that the league covenant is not perfect any more than the Constitution of the United States was perfect."

"I would like to join with Mr. Root," said Senator Walsh, "in the suggestion that after we enter the league, we take steps to get the nations together to reform not only the covenant, but some other features of the treaty."

Senator Johnson read article 16 of the covenant requiring amendments to have assent of all the nations holding membership on the council and a majority of those represented in the assembly.

"In its last analysis," continued the California Senator, "what Root says is this: 'Go into this thing that's wrong, go into this thing that's infamous, and then, when you can't amend it at all, try to amend it.'

Borah declared he did not mean to give up his fight against the league even if the Republican National Convention endorsed ratification with reservations.

"I will go to the people after the convention is over," he said. "It may not be necessary to hold another convention though that might happen. But in one way or another the people will be asked to say whether they want us in this league or not."

Senator Colt, Republican, Rhode Island, declared that Root's fundamental objection to the league was that disputes between nations would not be settled by a judicial tribunal on a basis of law under the covenant, but would be settled by the council of the league on the grounds of international expediency. He said that Root favored starting international arbitration where the Hague tribunal left off and that Root had never opposed the league, but had always favored its adoption with reservations safeguarding the Monroe Doctrine.

"Let the treaty remain dead," said Senator Brandegee. "Why prolong the autopsy? We might as well order the disinfectant now and get this ghastly thing out of the way."

"What is this talk about compromise? With whom are we compromising? With our partners in treaty making, the President? Not on your life. He at least knows his own mind. But the Senate, having done its part and expressed its opinion, now proposes to compromise with itself."

Lodge Explains Position.

Senator Lodge, explaining his part in the conference negotiations, said that when Democratic Senators came to him and suggested that, if modifications were made ratification might be possible, he had felt he would not "have been justified either to myself or, in the eyes of the country, if I had slammed the door, in the faces of these gentlemen."

"I said to them that there were two matters of principle on which there never could be any compromise," he added. "These were Article X and the Monroe Doctrine, over which the bipartisan negotiations failed.

"The country, I believed, desired action. The country, I believed, was almost unanimously against ratification without reservations, and an overwhelming majority was in favor of ratification with reservations."

Most of the modifications he now proposed, Senator Lodge said, were changes "in phraseology and unimportant. "I can go no further than these proposals," he said. "The treaty is going to be in the campaign, anyhow, no matter what we do. How idle it is to think of keeping it out. The Republicans of the great State of New York have adopted elaborate declarations on that subject, and that will be the position of the national convention when it meets, in my opinion."

TELLS OF HOUSE REPAIRED WITH NEWBERRY MONEY

Witness Gives Another's Alleged Remarks to Jury; "Beheld More Money Than He Ever Saw in His Life."

By the Associated Press.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Feb. 21.—Coaching of a grand jury witness, repairing a house on Newberry money, passing out cigars wrapped in tin foil and $10 bills, marking ballots for Indian voters and hiring campaign workers through a janitor who holds a bank directorship as a sideline, were points presented in Government testimony at the Newberry election conspiracy trial today.

The proceedings served to drag into the spotlight two defendants whose part of the campaign had been one of the unrevealed portions of the Government case. James T. Fisher, a banker at Laurium, in the Lake Superior copper district, and Elmer E. Smith, a Kalamazoo insurance man, weer the individuals suddenly pushed forward from their upstage positions.

"Traveled Longest Way Round."

Through a member of the grand jury, the prosecution adduced testimony that Fisher acknowledged he traveled the longest way round in going from Laurium to Grand Rapids. The witness, Charles S. Potts, said that Fisher told of traveling to Detroit after he was granted a postponement of his grand jury subpena, and of talking there with James McGreggor, field agent in the Northern Peninsula for the Newberry Campaign Committee.

The testimony had it that McGregor warned Fisher that a report had gone in on only $450 of the $900 given him by McGregor and that the latter told the banker not to say anything about the extra $500. Fisher called this latter sum a "gratuity."

Tells of Seeing Much Money.

Elmer E. Smith's prominence in the trial came through the testimony of Henry Acker, a neighbor. Acker said Smith told him of beholding "more money than he ever saw in his life" in the Detroit office of Mark McKee, law partner of the Newberry manager, Paul King. Smith told him further, he said, that he was repairing his house with Newberry money and offered to hire Acker as a helper in the campaign at $25 a week. The chance did not appeal to Acker because he was no politician, he said.

The bill-wrapped campaign cigars were an incident of the campaign in Flint, in whose political atmosphere has been brought to notice several times in the trial. Henry Corcoran testified he found $10 on each of two foil-covered sigars handed to him by Fred Henry, Deputy State Factory Inspector.

The capitalist janitor was John Metriklewitcz, of Grand Rapids, who wields a broom in the Federal building and owns enough bank stock to make him a director. Te told of getting $30 from Frank McKay for workers at the November polls, but said they were told to busy themselves with the regular Republican ticket.

were the whole ripe olives packed in glass.

Investigations of the Department of Chemistry at Washington uncovered a fatal case of olive poisoning at Kalispell, while investigating a number of botulinus cases in New York. Their investigations traced the poison to the stuffed olives shipped from here.

Warning to Housewives.

McLaughlin warned housewives to beware of preserved goods having an unpleasant odor. The affected olives have a noticeable smell and are usually soft. The germ, it is believed, can be killed by boiling preserved goods, and McLaughlin advises housewives to cook all food taken from the tin or glass containers.

McLaughlin, in his statement, says: "Housewives and cooks in all towns mentioned in the list are urged to search their pantry shelves for these stuffed olives with the labels given and to return them at once, unopened, to the grocer. Grocers are directed to hold these olives, subject to further instructions from the distributers.

"In connection with this statement, I wish most emphatically to warn the public against any hysteria because of this affair. Foodstuffs in tin or glass that are dangerous to health can be detected by a careful cook. The United State Department of Agriculture has issued the statement that botulinus poison is never present in sound food.

"All available scientific information indicates that food containing the bacillus botulinus has a peculiar odor, which should attract the attention of a careful housewife. Olives found contaminated with this poison usually have been soft and odorous."

Of 64 cases of the poisoning reported since its discovery, in 1899, 54 cases have been in California, McLaughlin says. A number of cases have been caused by home preserved fruits and vegetables.

'WE ARE ROUNDING THE CORNER,' SAY BRITISH FINANCIERS

Present Year's Exports to Produce Profit of $1,000,000,000 to $1,500,000,000, Banker's Estimate.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Great Britain is fundamentally sound, both financially and commercially, says the American Chamber of Commerce, of London, in a statement referring to differences in the financial position of Great Britain and the continental European countries.

The chamber expresses the belief that the recent unprecedented drop in sterling exchange in America makes it particularly desirable that the best opinions on each side of the Atlantic concerning this question should be understood on the other side.

After a thorough discussion with leaders of British finance, illuminated largely by the address of the chairmen of five leading British banks to their stockholders, in annual meeting, the Chamber of Commerce has prepared a message to the American business public.

Message to Americans.

The message follows:

"The collapse of the pound sterling in New York is no index to Great Britain's financial strength or weakness. London is today, as before the war, the monetary center of Europe. With inadequate assistance from American credit in Europe, Great Britain has been forced to supply the credit needs of the continent as well as those of her own traders.

"Dollar exchange is really New York-Europe, not 'New York-London' exchange. Great Britain is neither bankrupt nor anywhere near it, although her external debt is larger than ever before in her history. This debt was incurred mainly to supply the needs of her continental allies, and she is owed approximately twice as much as she owes to America. While America may fairly expect to collect all her British debt, Great Britain is preparing to write off 50 per cent of her continental debt.

"In spite of these facts, British business and finance are in a fundamentally sound condition. Business men and workers are recovering from the demoralizing effects of the war. Their customary energy is reviving and British factories are increasing their output.

"According to estimates made public by one bank chairman, the present year's exports will produce a profit of from $1,000,000,000 to $1,500,000,000.

"The expression, 'We are rounding the corner,' is now heard on all sides. Neither British bankers nor the British Government expect, or ask, further Government or long terms from America.

"Appeals for American credit, in behalf of the destitute areas of Europe should not be misconstrued as veiled appeals for assistance to Great Britain. Such emphatically is not the case. British bankers and business men look to American bankers and business men only for friendly facilities, as they have enjoyed, and have themselves afforded in the past.

One-fourth of Great Britain's debts is to the United States. It is neither an easy nor an engaging task to try to express the feeling in the city regarding this. For the most part, it is not mentioned, and no banker has been heard to express any doubt about the American debt being paid in full. Debts between nations do not make for friendly feelings, however, and that is why British financial leaders, in confidential moments, sometimes express regret at their country's huge obligation, and incline toward mutual cancellation all around.

"At the same time, they feel that it is for the creditor to make any such proposal. They have complete confidence in the continued supremacy of British finance. "Qui s'excuse s'accuse" (who excuses himself accuses himself), they say, and prefer to let the world know them by their deeds.

"British bankers today see clearly the joint responsibilities of Great Britain and the United States, in helping the stricken countries of Central Europe to their feet and are accordingly watching with the keenest interest every move being made by the United States to help solve this, the greatest business and financial problem of the hour. Great Britain, they say, is doing her utmost and she cannot do much more. The United States helped to save Europe once, and surely she will not refuse to do so again.

"Moreover, if properly managed, these much needed investments on the continent might be made ultimately to produce a handsome business profit. Enthusiasm in the city for greater American participation in this work of restoration is mainly due to the fact that the whole English-speaking world will profit thereby."

ADRIATIC NOTE LIKELY TO GO FORWARD SOON

President's Communication Emphatic, but Does Not Preclude Further Negotiations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—President Wilson's note on the Adriatic settlement did not go forward to the Entente Premiers today, as had generally been expected, but probably will be cabled early next week. It is reiterated that, while the President sets out his argument with a great degree of finality, the note will not close the door to any further negotiations through the usual diplomatic channels.

The question of making public the text of all the notes on the situation still is being discussed among the various foreign offices, but no decision has been reached. Objections to publication have been made by at least one of the participants.

The prevailing view seems to be that, unless there is unanimity of opinion on the advisability of publication on a question admittedly so delicate, it might be unwise to publish the notes at this time.

Situation in Italy.

The situation in Italy is again reported to be disquieting with both labor and Socialist leaders eager to have the Adriatic question settled so that normal conditions may be resumed as rapidly as possible. D'Annunzio's presence in Fiume is being represented as the principal obstruction to an agreement among the allied and associated Powers which would be acceptable to the Jugo-Slavs.

Demobilization is reported to be proceeding in Italy with extreme care, and slowly because of the fear among the people that the Adriatic situation may lead to another war and because of the scarcity of work.

Financiers, it is said here, have given Italy to understand that they will not invest while the Adriatic question remains unsettled.

Reports from Rome today that Rear Admiral Andrews, commander of the American naval base forces in the Adriatic, has been recalled, because of fresh disorders at Spalato, the American naval base, were denied by Secretary Daniels, who said no reports of fresh disorders there had reached here.

Officials of the department attributed the report of Admiral Andrews' recall to a source of Italian propaganda that has sought, they said, to create the impression that the Jugo-Slavs were responsible for all disorders within the neutral zone.

With the landing of a small force of American blue jackets at Trau, last September, after the town had been entered by an Italian irregular force and an encounter with the Jugo-Slavs elements was threatened, the Allied Supreme Council decided that in future the American naval forces in the Adriatic should not assume the responsibility of maintaining order ashore in any part of the neutral zone. That policy, it was said at the Navy Department today, has been steadfastly adhered to.

ALLEGED SLAYER THREATENED

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Feb. 21—Aroused over the murder, Feb. 17, of Tom Cardwell, aged 50 years, and his son, Benjamin, Taney county citizens have threatened violence against Henry Hunt, the alleged self-confessed slayer of the two men and who is lodged in the county jail at Forsythe.

Officials are taking utmost precautions in the care of the prisoner.

$75,000,000 NEEDED TO REFIT GERMAN SHIPS

Payne Says Congress Would Have to Appropriate Funds to Enable Operation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Congress will have to appropriate funds for reconditioning the 30 former German liners which the Shipping Board has been trying to sell, Chairman Payne said today, if the controversy which has arisen over the proposed sale of the vessels results in legislation requiring their repair and operation by the government.

The chairman estimated that $75,000,000 would be needed to refit the vessels, which have been in transport service.

Chairman Jones, of the Senate Commerce Committee, reported favorably today the bill postponing sale of the ships until Congress has adopted permanent merchant marine legislation.

"These ships are urgently needed in our foreign business," the committee said.

In estimating that the reconditioning of the passenger steamers would cost $75,000,000, officials of the Shipping Board said that sum would not be available from the board's funds because the 1920 estimate of $165,000,000 submitted to the House Appropriations Committee was withdrawn at the request of the chairman. As the final estimate of the board's financial requirements for the coming year did not include the possibility of refitting the German liners, the expense would have to be met by Congress, it was said.

Confidence that the board will ultimately be permitted to dispose of the craft was expressed by officials. An early appeal on the temporary injunction granted William Randolph Hearst, prohibiting the sale, is expected to result in a lifting of the legal ban and careful congressional investigation will result in approval of the board's plans, they believe.

The district Supreme Court announced that Hearst would be required to give $10,000 bond to safeguard the Shipping Board from loss while the case is pending.

Reconditioning of the ships and their operation by the government in regular routes to South America, Europe and the Orient were urged by Jones.

"If the Government continues to own these ships the service desired can and will be maintained," said the committee report.

"This assurance will develop business and business agencies and doubtless soon would put the service upon a paying basis, and the ships can then very likely be disposed of for all they cost if not more, under such restrictions and upon such terms as will not only insure the maintenance of the ships but their continuance under our flag."

Senator Jones said he had intended to ask for reconsideration of the bill today, but would withhold the request until next week to let Senators study the proposed international agreement regarding German shipping, sent to the Senate yesterday by President Wilson.

"If this Government must turn over any amount it receives over and above the amount of its submarine losses," he added, "then it seems there is no particular incentive to sell these ships for more than a fair price."

Senator Brandegee, Republican, Connecticut, in response to whose resolution the tentative agreement was sent in by the President, declared it bore out the information on which he had asked the Senate to act. Despite Wilson's denial that no agreement existed for disposition of the ships, Senator Brandegee said the tentative agreement submitted directly affected the question before the Senate.

MILITARY HONORS TO MARK PEARY FUNERAL

Aircraft Will Hover Over Arlington at Burial There Today.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Unusual military honors will mark the funeral Monday of Rear-Admiral Robert E. Peary, discoverer of the North Pole. The body will be placed in Arlington National Cemetery and last tribute will be paid by a naval firing squad and a navy bugler.

The services will be conducted by Capt. Carroll Q. Wright, chaplain at the Washington Navy Yard. Artillery and cavalry will form the military escort on the long march from the explorer's home here to the cemetery, where a company of blue jackets will join it beside the grave.

As a special tribute to the active interest Admiral Peary took in aviation development, seaplanes and army airplanes will hover above the cemetery during the services.

The casket will be draped in the United States flag which Peary raised at the North Pole. Throughout the hardships of the polar expedition the emblem had been carefully guarded to signify the sovereignty of America over the new territory to be discovered and when the goal was reached the Stars and Stripes were unfurled to the breeze on the "top of the world."

Wilson Expresses Sympathy.

OPERATORS SAID TO CHARGE IN EXCESS OF U. S. COAL PRICES

St. Louis Dealers Declare They Cannot Get "Carterville" at Figures Allowed by Government.

CONTRACTS SAID TO MAKE NO DIFFERENCE

One Distributor Says Cars Were Taken Back From His Yard When He Refused to Pay Increase.

St. Louis householders have found it difficult during recent months to get any coal of the grade generally designated as "Carterville coal." Some of the reasons for this shortage are brought to light by a suit filed yesterday in the Federal Court, and through an investigation made by a Post-Dispatch reporter.

An interesting set of circumstances is disclosed, as a result of which the United States District Attorney in East St. Louis is gathering evidence with a view of determining whether prosecutions will be started against mine owners in Franklin County, Ill. One of these circumstances is that the few St. Louis retail dealers who were found to have such coal to sell, are paying the mine owners a rate far in excess of the price fixed by the United States Fuel Administration.

Other retailers told a Post-Dispatch reporter that when they refused to pay prices higher than the Government figures, the coal was taken away from them, after the cars had reached their yards. The suit filed by Devoy & Kuhn Coal and Coke Co. against the Chicago, Wilmington & Franklin Coal Co., owners of a Franklin County mine, is based on the charge that when Devoy & Kuhn refused to pay $3.50 a ton for the coal at the mine, the company refused to deliver it, although the Government price is $2.65 a ton at the mine.

Assistant Attorney General C. B. Ames, in charge of coal matters for the Department of Justice, said to the Post-Dispatch correspondent at Washington last night, in reply to an inquiry, that the Government prices are still in effect, and that the violators are liable to prosecution. Such prosecutions are pending in some States, he said. He added that the situation should be receiving the attention of the United States District Attorney in whose district the mines are located.

Charges as to Prices.

E. J. Wallace, former local Fuel Administrator, acting in behalf of the retail dealers of St. Louis, East St. Louis and St. Louis County, has filed formal complaints with United States District Attorney Burnside in East St. Louis, in whose district the Franklin County mines are, and with Vance J. Higgs, special Government prosecutor here in profiteering cases. He charges that the operators are charging in excess of the Government price, that they are refusing to deliver coal to dealers who refuse to pay the excess, and asks that the Franklin County Coal Operators' Association be investigated to ascertain whether it is violating the anti-trust laws.

The following situation existed: The Fuel Administration ceased to function about Feb. 1, 1919. At that time the price fixed by the Government on Franklin County coal was $2.55 a ton, with an additional charge of 10 cents for special preparation, making $2.65 the price at the mine. After the Government restrictions were removed, the price began to go up regularly 10 cents a month, until, at the last of October, it had reached $3.25.

Then the coal miners' strike was threatened, and the Fuel Administration was re-established by the President, and the maximum price was again fixed at $2.65, with the exception that those dealers who had contracted for coal at specified prices should pay the contract price.

Basis of Contracts.

Many dealers had tried to make contracts with the mine owners during the summer, but the operators in most cases, were only willing to agree to deliver certain amounts of coal, "at the price current at the time of shipment." For example, a St. Louis dealer might contract in July, when the price was $2.85 a ton, to take 10 cars of coal a week for a period of six months, but he would have to pay the market price at the time the shipment was made. Thus the operator, while making certain that he would sell his coal, still got the advantage of whatever increase there was in price, and the increase was a steady one.

However, when the reinstatement of Government restrictions came, the retail dealers took the position that the only lawful "current price" was the price set by the Government.

Charles Nagel, Secretary of Commerce and Labor in President Taft's Cabinet, who is attorney for Devoy & Kuhn, said that immediately after the Government prices were fixed in October, the mine owners shipped coal to Devoy & Kuhn, billing it at $3.50 a ton. The company refused to accept it at that price. They demanded that the coal be sold to them at the Government price. In reply, the mine owners refused to deliver the coal, Nagel said.

"Only Way We Can Get It."

He said that his client had repeatedly called upon the operator to deliver four cars of coal a day, as their contract provided, and insisted that the Government price be observed. Not a lump of coal has been delivered since Oct. 28, he said. His client asks for $21,053.

Similar complaints were voiced to the reporter by other dealers. C. R. Watkins, a retailer of 7214 South Broadway, said he made a contract in August with a Franklin County dealer for a certain number of cars of coal, to be delivered at the operator's convenience, "at the price current at time of shipment." Three weeks ago, he said, four cars of coal were billed to him at $3.25 a ton. He refused to take it any price except that set by the Fuel Administration. As a result, he said, three of the cars which reached his yards were ordered taken away and delivered to another dealer, and the fourth was halted when it reached East St. Louis.

Two St. Louis retailers told the reporter that they are paying $3.25 regularly for the coal on which the Government price is $2.65. The reason, they said, is that "that is the only way we can get it." They refused to allow their names to be used for the reason, they said, that they feared their supply would be shut off.

Retailers said that when they tried to buy coal from other operators in the Franklin County district, they were invariably told that "there was none to spare."

Operators in Association.

This called attention to the fact that virtually all the operators in that field are members of the Franklin County Coal Operators' Association, a strong organization of which F. H. Honnald of Chicago is the secretary.

The reporter called on Assistant United States District Attorney McCawley Baird in East St. Louis yesterday to see what that office is doing about Wallace's complaint. Baird said he had been investigating it and had collected some evidence.

"If the law has been violated we will prosecute the violators," he said. "However, don't quote me as saying anything radical about the matter. There is plenty of time. We don't want any clamor about it. I can see some merit in the operators' position. We will investigate thoroughly before taking any drastic steps."

Baird and Higgs both told, in reply to inquiry, of being recently visited by Hinton Clabaugh, who, Baird related, formerly was head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice in Chicago, and who had a hand in fixing the price of coal in Illinois until the Fuel Administration took it over. Since leaving that position, he has entered the employ of George Peabody of Chicago, one of the largest coal operators in the United States, and owner of mines in the Franklin county district. Clabaugh's present salary is reported to be $10,000 a year.

Question of Authority.

He talked to Baird and Higgs about the complaints against the operators, and said he was positive they had not violated the law. He also talked to Wallace. The latter said Clabaugh criticised him severely in the presence of Higgs for attempting to keep the price of coal down, but moderated his criticism when Wallace removed his overcoat. This conversation took place in Higgs' office, Wallace said.

Higgs said it was not his duty to take up the question of whether the Franklin County operators are violating the law. It is in District Attorney Burnside's district, and should be handled by Burnside and Baird, he said.

Baird was of the opinion that Higgs was not limited to any district, but enjoyed a special status that enabled him to investigate profiteering cases outside Missouri. He had been under the impression, he said, that Higgs was investigating the case, but admitted he might have misunderstood the situation.

Meantime, the shortage of high-grade coal here continues, although the Franklin County mines are reported to be working full time. The coal is being shipped to other places.

The unusual amount of smoke over St. Louis in recent months is attributed largely to the fact that householders, unable to get high-grade coal, are buying cheaper grades, which make more smoke.

GARDNER TO URGE PARTY HARMONY UPON DEMOCRATS

Expected to Advise State Convention Not to Adopt Platform—Would End Fight On Reed.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 21.—It became known here today that Gov. Gardner, who will be temporary chairman of the Democratic State Convention at Joplin April 22, intends, in his keynote speech, to urge party harmony and abstenance from factional rows, a course which would mean the election of United States Senator Reed as a delegate from Missouri to the Democratic National Convention.

The Governor's program for his convention speech, as construed by his friends to whom he has outlined it, is to insist that Reed shall make no speech attacking the league of nations, and also that the opponents of Reed, who have urged that the party in Missouri shall not indorse his opposition to the national administration by electing him a delegate, shall cease their opposition.

While it is considered doubtful that Reed can be held in check, the Governor's program is very pleasing to Reed's followers, who will be content if he is elected a delegate. They are wondering, however, if the Senator will be satisfied with that sort of approval, and if he will not insist upon a direct indorsement of him. Such a course, many Democrats say, would most certainly overthrow all of the Governor's harmony plans.

Possible Bolt Considered.

Comment here connects the Governor's harmony scheme with his expected candidacy for United States Senator, the idea advanced being that the Governor fears that if the party snubs Reed, the Senator's followers will bolt the ticket and cost the party success in the November election.

The anti-Reed men, who are opposing his election as a delegate, take the position that Reed in the national convention would make the fight on the league of nations that he has made in the Senate, and that for party reasons Missouri should not make it possible for him to speak in the convention. In some quarters the Governor's program is connected with that of Frank H. Farris, candidate for the nomination for Governor, who has abandoned his fight on Reed and has given his approval to the election of Reed as a delegate from Kansas City. The opinion is growing here that by the time of the convention the harmony program wil have been manipulated in such manner that Farris will not even oppose Reed as a delegate-at-large.

John Pollock, a Justice of the Peace in Kansas City, and a member of the Pendergast faction which is supporting Reed, called on the Governor yesterday. Pollock is understood to have told the Governor the Pendergast faction would be glad to abide by the harmony program and that it would endeavor to induce Reed to remain off the floor of the State Convention. The Pendergast faction controls a majority of the Democratic votes in Kansas City and probably could throw many thousand votes either to or against Gardner for Senator and Farris for Governor.

To Favor No Platform.

It is understood here that the Governor in his keynote speech at the convention will say that the sole purpose of the convention is to elect delegates to the national convention and decide whether they shall be instructed, and that no platform should be adopted.

This is the plan which Reed, through R. Emmett O'Malley of Kansas City, has urged at the several meetings of the Democratic State Committee when the league of nations has been indorsed. O'Malley has taken the position that the committee has no power to bind the party, and the Governor's position is expected to be that no convention has a right to declare a party platform except the convention of candidates in Jefferson City in September.

The fact that the State Committee four different times without a dissenting vote, except that of O'Malley, has indorsed the league of nations is taken here to indicate that there is great doubt that the Governor's harmony program will prevail in the convention when its effect would be to sidestep an indorsement of the league of nations, the big issue of the national administration.

Hay to Continue Fight on Reed; Replies to Farris' Statement.

Charles M. Hay, St. Louis lawyer, who has been leading the fight to prevent United States Senator Reed from being chosen a delegate from Missouri, yesterday announced that he was disgusted with the action of Democrats who are "trimming in the fight on Reed," and declared:

"I care not what anybody else may do, but as for myself, if I am elected a delegate to the State convention which will pick the delegates to the national convention, I shall oppose on the floor of the convention the selection of Reed either as a delegate-at-large or as a district delegate."

"Whether Senator Reed be selected as a delegate-at-large or as a district delegate, he would go as a delegate from Missouri, authorized to speak for Missouri," Hay said. "This is peculiarly true in this instance, because the State Committee's call for the convention authorizes the districts only to recommend delegates to the convention, as a whole, for election or rejection. Hence, an election as a district delegate will be just as much a commission from Missouri as an election as a delegate-at-large.

"The convention, as a whole, will declare the platform upon which not only the delegate-at-large, but the district delegates also must stand. What a farce to declare a set of principles and then knowingly select or approve the selection of men known to be unalterably opposed to them. This is not a mere game or matter of personality. It is a matter of vital principle.

COURT'S DOCKET AS "FULL" AS THAT OF AN ATTORNEY

Judge Faris Rules Against Plea for an Extended Continuance of a Case.

Robert Ailsworth of the law firm of Lashly, Holland & Rutledge, was in the United States District Court yesterday asking for a deferred setting of a case in which Robert A. Holland of that firm appears. He told Judge Faris that Holland's docket was full up to March 16, and asked that a later date be named.

Judge Faris looked over his docket and set the case for the 9th.

"But, Your Honor," said Ailsworth, "I know that Mr. Holland's docket is full."

"Mr. Holland," the Judge retored, "has no advantage of the Court in that respect. I mean, the Court's docket."

GIRL ROBBED ON STREET OF $950, PAYROLL MONEY

Employe of Macaroni Manufacturers Held Up Near St. Louis Avenue Plant, in View of Several Persons.

Miss Josie Droege, 21 years old, of 2706 Madison street, assistant bookkeeper for Maull Bros., macaroni manufacturers, 1227 St. Louis avenue, was waylaid by two men and robbed of $950 payroll money belonging to her employers about 10:30 a. m. yesterday on St. Louis avenue near Blair avenue.

The robbery occurred at the mouth of an alley a block and a half from the firm's office, to which she was taking the money after having drawn it from a bank. The robbers escaped.

Girl's Story of Robbery.

Miss Droege went to the firm's office and told of the robbery. She gave this account of it to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"I went to the Northwestern Bank at Fifteenth street and St. Louis avenue, about 10 a. m. and drew the pay roll money. Some of it was in bills and some in small change. I carried it under my arm in a flat leather purse about 12 inches long and six inches wide.

"From the bank I walked east on the south side of St. Louis avenue. I was a short distance east of Blair avenue when I saw a man standing at the mouth of an alley on the same side of the street and about 35 feet ahead of me. He had one hand in an overcoat pocket and he seemed to be staring at me. I was afraid of him and I crossed to the north side of the street. When I was passing the mouth of the same alley on the north side of the street a man came out of the alley there and threw his arms around me, pinioning my arms to my side. He threw me down so that I was in a sitting position on the sidewalk.

Wrests Purse From Her.

"He grabbed the purse. I tried to hold on to it, but he was too strong for me. He jerked it away from me and ran across the street to where the other man, whom I had first seen, was waiting. I looked across the street and saw that the other man, whom I had first seen, had a revolver in his hand.

"East of me several persons had run out of stores, but they did not come to help me at that time. I believe the man on the south side of the street kept these people covered with his revolver while the other man took the purse from me.

"Both men ran south in the alley. When they were gone the people along the street came to my assistance. I hurried here to the company's office. The purse has been brought in. I understand a boy found it in the alley near where the man waylaid me."

W. E. Gebhart, 62 years old, a carpenter, saw the holdup from the front yard of his home at 1418 St. Louis avenue and started across the street to the assistance of Miss Droege, but the robber who first attracted the young woman's attention pointed a revolver at him and ordered him to stand still.

"I was waiting for the mail carrier," Gebhart said, "and did not see the robbers until the girl fell to the sidewalk. I at first thought she had fainted, but when I saw a man bending over her and jerking at a package she carried I started across the street to help her. Someone told me to 'stand still,' and I looked around and saw a young man standing in the street pointing a revolver at me. I ran behind a telephone pole."

Says Others Saw Robbery.

Gebhart said that several customers in a butcher shop next to his home witnessed the holdup, but none attempted to interfere. None of the customers was in the place when a reporter called there and the proprietor said he had not witnessed the robbery.

Of the money $810 was in $5 and $10 bills, $115 was in $1 and $2 bills, $15 was in quarters, and $5 each in dimes and nickels. Charles Maull, a member of the firm, drew an additional $950 from the bank after the robbery so that the employes could be paid.

This was the tenth daylight payroll robbery since Aug. 9 last, and the fifth to occur about noon on a Saturday. The latest previous one was the holdup last Saturday of the Blue Bird Manufacturing Co., in which more than $9000 was taken. The total amount stolen in the 10 payroll robberies was more than $25,000.

There were three deaths from pneumonia and one from influenza reported for the 20 hours up to noon yesterday.

SPECTACLE-PLAY AT ARTISTS GUILD BRILLIANT AFFAIR

100 Performers in Original Costumes Represent Important Heavenly Bodies and Trains of Followers.

A spectacle-play was presented at the Artists' Guild last night, in which virtually all the players were either stars or planets. A wag remarked that never was a play presented that had so many stars in the cast. Jupiter, Venus, Mercury, the North Star, Orion—most of the important contellations were there. The play and the fancy dress ball which followed it proved to be a mixed feast of wit and beauty which moved the gallery spectators alternately to outbreaks of laughter and "ahs" of admiration.

More than 100 men, women and girls were in costume that were, for the most part, delightfully original, ranging from the ludicrous and grotesque to dazzling brilliancy. Each of the heavenly bodies had a train of followers, and each train had its special color scheme. The combined effect in some of the groupings on the stage was striking.

Curtain Rises on Scene on Moon.

The humorists, however, divided honors with the artists. The curtain rose on a scene on the moon. Moonbeams are disclosed hiding, and soon three moonshiners enter bringing their still with them. They proceeded to brew bad liquor and good jokes.

One moonshiner remarks he has heard that some of the planets have water, a substitute unknown on the moon, he says, where dry cleaning is used. Another remarks that he understands some people use it to wash themselves inside, which moved the first moonshiner to exclaim that he'd hate to think of his stomach as a hot water bag.

"A prohibitionist can't live very long," opines the first moonshiner.

"But it must seem a long time," observes the second.

"Well," allows the first, "there are a lot of worlds, and it must be a problem what to populate all of them with," which prompts the third moonshiner to the conclusion that the population of some of them must be experimental.

"There must be some queer birds on some of these planets," says one moonshiner, and adds that about the only commendable thing to be seen with a telescope on Mars is dry martinis," which are highly thought of."

The first moonshiner ends the colloquy with the declaration that if he had it to do, he'd make only one planet, and have it "just right." He says "the sky might not look like much at night, but it would feel a lot better the morning after." The moonbeams start to dance, and the moonshiners depart into the stilly night, taking their still with them.

Mrs. Ford Thompson in Title Role.

The Queen of Night, which was the title role, played by Mrs. Ford Thompson, appears, and in a poetic invocation, asks the contellations to come and dance with her. Then began the entrance of the planetary and stellar procession, being led by the Sun.

D. R. Fitzpatrick, as Mars, was in the red panoply of war, with a headdress made in the shape of a cannon. W. H. Hammond as Jupiter bore in his hand the Jovian thunderbolt. "Poor Old Earth" was represented by Mrs. Emily Phelips, whose costume was in the shape of a globe, upon which appeared the map of the world. Earth had been having a bad time of it, she said, between sects, insects, war and prohibition, and wants nothing except to be directed to the moon's bar.

Prof. Otto Heller as Capricorn wore a goat's head, and carried at his girdle an old tin can and a bunch of celery. Mercury proved to be a messenger boy who entered on roller skates, which caused him to sit down suddenly before the Queen's throne.

Sun and Queen Lead March

The entrance of the characters was concluded by the dance of the Pleaides, who were Miss Helen Norpoth and five girls in gauzy costumes, who performed a number of intricate and beautiful figures. Then came the grand march, led by the Sun and the Queen, and participated in by all the leading characters and their respective trains.

Seats in the little theater had been taken out, and the dancers, who broke into a lively one step as the grand march concluded, filled both the theater and the ballroom, which were thrown together. The gallery was crowded with spectators, and applause was plentiful.

The costumes were designed by Robb Leonard, the play was by Clark McAdams, and Miss Alice Martin arranged and directed the dances.

BULK OF LANPHEAR ESTATE BEQUEATHED TO 'COMPANION'

Will of Surgeon Who Died in Florida Gives Small Amounts to Three Children.

The will of Dr. Emory Lanphear, formerly a surgeon in St. Louis for many years, who died of apoplexy in Tampa, Fla., Feb. 6, was filed for probate here yesterday. Except for small bequests to three children the entire estate, the value of which was not estimated, was bequeathed to Mrs. Sarah Pins, who is described in the will as "my companien, Sarah Pins, known as Sadie Lanphear." The will was made Nov. 12, 1914.

To two children, Mrs. Veda L. Markin of Alhambra, Cal., and Lester Moore Lanphear, he bequeathed $100 each, and added a provision that if the value of his estate should exceed $10,000, they were to have $1000 each. To another son, Ethan E. Lanphear, he bequeathed only $1. His pathological specimens, the will provided, are to go to the National University of Arts and Sciences.

The bequest to Mrs. Pins recalls that she, Dr. Lanphear and Miss Anna Byrne were arrested here in 1916. At that time Mrs. Pins said Dr. Lanphear was the father of two of her four children and Miss Byrne said he was the father of her child. He had a divorced wife in California. The arrests, which were made by a policeman attached to the morality squad, resulted in prosecutions which failed.

ROBBERS TAKE AUTO AND GIVE DRIVER DIME FOR CARFARE

Three Men Ride in Service Car to Park Entrance, Then Hold Up Chauffeur.

The robbers who hold up chauffeurs and drive their taxicabs away are developing certain humane traits, it would seem from the report to the police of John Votoba of 2810 Arlington avenue, who was ordered out of the $800 touring car of which he is—or was—part owner at 8:30 last night at the Grand avenue entrance to Carondelet Park and whose last glimpse of the machine was its tail light going rapidly north on Grand avenue.

The three men who held him up gave him a dime as carfare in return for the machine and his services.

The car was in the service of the Mutual Taxi Service Co., which received a call from "Mr. Johnson" at Vandeventer and Natural Bridge avenues. Two men got into the back seat there and the third occupied the seat by Votoba, ordering him to drive south.

At the park entrance the men in the rear poked guns in Votoba's back and ordered a stop. They searched him for weapons and finding none said "Beat it!"

On his protest that he did not have carfare they gave him a dime and drove away. He told police he had some money concealed.

CAFFERATA PAYS LIQUOR FINES FOR THREE WAITERS

Cafe Proprietor Is Freed Because Corporation Controls Place Where Drinks Were Sold.

John Cafferata, proprietor of a restaurant and former saloon at 5901 Delmar boulevard, yesterday was freed of a charge of violating wartime prohibition because his restaurant is controlled by a corporation and it was the belief of prosecuting officials that he could not be held personally responsible for the acts of three waiters employed there who were arraigned on the same charge and fined $100 each. Cafferata paid their fines.

The men fined were John F. Kelly, Adolph Zimmerman and Gary Matthews, who pleaded guilty. The sales were made Sept. 16 and Sept. 27.

Assistant United States District Attorney Whaley told a Post-Dispatch reporter the drinks were served in the restaurant and he had been informed that this part of the business was run by a corporation. He said he had not decided whether he would cite the corporation on a charge of violating the wartime prohibition act.

McChesney, who died last month. This action was taken at a special meeing of the board and is for a term which ends with the annual meeting to be held in April. PIANIST AT LIEDERKRANZ CONCERT IS PRAISED

Mrs. Anna Carey Bock Creates Sensation at Farewell to Ernest Prang Stamm.

The Liederkranz Club, which heretofore has not been noted as a purveyor of superlative solo musicians, presented a jewel of a pianist at its winter concert last night in Mrs. Anna Carey Bock. This unheralded young woman gave a really magnificent exhibition of piano playing and created a well-defined sensation.

She was down for three numbers, Liszt's Rhapsodie Hongroise, No. 11, and two Chopins, the famous Second Nocturne (Op. 9) and Scherzo, (Opus 39). Her interpretation and performance of the Liszt number was marked by splendid taste and breath of understanding. She is equipped with rare physical gifts, in addition to interpretative ability, and her command of fingers, arm and pedal technique is of the highest order.

Power to fathom spiritual depths was revealed in the artist's Chopin. The Nocturne was presented without sentimental exaggeration, but was enlightened with sound musicianship. The Scherzo was dispatched with brilliancy, and a clean, facile technic which brought to the fore its scientellating qualities. For encore Mrs. Bock gave the Schubert Impromptu, in which still more virtues were disclosed.

The concert was in the nature of a farewell to Ernest Prang Stamm, who for a number of years has been active in St. Louis music affairs, and director of the Liederkranz activities in that department. He will depart soon for Tulsa, Okla., to become organist and choirmaster of the new Christian Church there.

Three choruses by Stamm, all of much musical worth, were sung by the club as part of its share in the program. They were "Song of Love," for the male chorus; "Winter and Summer," for the women's contingent and "The Voyagers," for mixed chorus. The latter was particularly fine, and drew rounds of applause.

The other assisting soloist was Luigo Torti, a tenor with a pleasing voice, and quite an excellent dramatic style. He sang Canio's lament from I Paglicci by Leoncavello; the "O Paradise" aria from Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine," and for encore an aria from "Rigoletto."

COUSIN OF SUSAN B. ANTHONY DIES SUDDENLY IN STORE HERE

Charles L. Anthony Was Active Helper of Pioneer Equal Suffrage Worker From Start of Campaign.

Charles L. Anthony, 84 years old, of 407 Taylor avenue, died suddenly of heart disease in the Maserang drug store, Taylor avenue and Olive street, while waiting for a prescription to be filled yesterday at 11:30 a. m.

He was a first cousin of Susan B. Anthony, pioneer suffrage worker, and as a boy lived on an adjoining farm to that owned by her father at Adams, Mass. From the start of Miss Anthony's career as an advocate of woman suffrage, Anthony played a helpful part. He rented the first hall in which she denounced the action of the Adams school board for paying men teachers twice as much as was paid to women engaged in the same work. From that time on he helped her over financial difficulties and otherwise aided her in her fight for equal rights for women.

FUNERAL TOMORROW OF AGED MARBLE WORKER

Henry Marquardt Sr., Noted for Carving and Designing, in Business Here for 58 Years.

The funeral of Henry Marquardt Sr., president and treasurer of the H. Marquardt Marble and Granite Co., will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the residence, 3866 Hartford street, to St. Mathews' Cemetery.

Marquardt was the oldest marble and granite contractor in St. Louis, having been in business continuously for 58 years. In the earlier years he had a yard and office at Eighth and Walnut streets, and later moved to 1206 Clark avenue, where his company has been for more than 25 years. He was a skilled marble worker and gave most of his time to carving and designing. Many of the handsome monuments in the St. Louis cemeteries were shaped by his hands. He was born in Germany 78 years ago and emigrated to this country at the age of 14, taking up his home here in 1862. He entered business a few years later, and his services were often in demand for carving of artistic design and execution.

30-YEAR TERM FOR NOTED CHECK FORGER

William J. Reid, Who Was Wanted Here in 1912, Sentenced in Washington.

William J. Reid, transcontinental check forger, who was sought by the St. Louis police in 1912 for a $760 swindle on the Wilber Mercantile Agency here, was sentenced in Washington yesterday, according to a dispatch, to 30 years in the Federal Penitentiary.

Reid, who is 53 years old, is said to have spent more than one-half of his life in penal institutions.

His conviction in Washington in the Federal District Court followed the passing of a worthless check for $10,000 on a real estate firm.

Reid escaped from prison in Springfield, Mass., in 1904. He served a seven-year term in the prison at Folsom, Cal., and has been involved in swindles in Argenta, Ark.; Denver, Chicago, Indianapolis and Michigan towns.

Reid, who then called himself Walton W. Stover, called in January, 1912, on the Wilber Mercantile Agency, which then had its office in the Victoria building, and said he wished to collect $800 from a man in Springfield, Ill., and would pay 5 per cent for the collection.

The firm wrote to the Springfield man and received a reply inclosing a check for the full amount. Reid asked the agency to deduct its $40 fee and give him its check for the balance, $760, and this was done. It was later discovered that the $800 check was sent by an accomplice in Springfield, and was worthless.

Reid is said to have come from Chillicothe, Mo. During his recent imprisonment in the District of Columbia Jail, he wrote letters to friends in Iowa and Minnesota, asking them for help.

CAPT. TAUSSIG ASKS FOR COURT OF INQUIRY TO CLEAR VERACITY

Navy Officer Restive Under Aspersions by Assistant Secretary During Naval Prison Controversy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—An item published today in the Army and Navy Register, a semi-official organ of the service, discloses that Capt. J. K. Taussig of the navy, a relative of the St. Louis family of that name, has asked formally for a court of inquiry as a result of a letter of Assistant Secretary Roosevelt casting aspersions upon his veracity.

The discussion arose from a controversy over the conduct of the naval prison at Portsmouth, N. H., by the prison reformer, Lieutenant-Commander Osborne.

It is presumed in navy circles that Capt. Taussig, in asking for an inquiry, hoped to open the entire subject of naval prison methods, embracing the charges of maladministration against Osborne and the policy of returning "graduates" of the prison to the general service after a probationary period. No court of inquiry has yet been appointed.

Capt. Taussig is a cousin of Dr. F. J. Taussig, 4506 Maryland avenue, and a son of Rear Admiral Taussig of the United States navy.

DOCTOR IN NEW AUTO KILLED BY TRAIN AT ALTON

Dr. Harry Lemen, Unable to Stop Car at Crossing, Tries to Turn, but Strikes Tender.

DAUGHTER PICKED UP UNCONSCIOUS

Were Starting to St. Louis Where Another Daughter Was to Be Operated Upon at Hospital.

Dr. Harry Lemen, 49 years old of Alton, was killed there at noon yesterday when his automobile came in contact with a Chicago & Alton passenger train at Ninth and Piasa streets. His daughter, Susan, who was riding with him, was seriously injured.

They were starting to St. Louis to be at St. John's Hospital when an operation was performed on another daughter, Lois, seven years old, for an ear trouble, when the accident occurred. Mrs. Lemen was with Lois at the hospital.

Dr. Lemen was driving a new automobile and although he was an experienced driver, seemed unable to stop it as he approached the crossing. He tried to turn and run in the same direction as the train, but failed, and the machine struck the tender of the locomotive. The automobile was wrecked and Dr. Lemen was dead when picked up. His daughter, conscious but badly hurt, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

The crossing where the accident occurred is unobstructed and there is no grade. There is a crossing watchman and a bell. The watchman said he rang the bell and gave Dr. Lemen a warning signal when he was at least 100 feet from the track, and that the train was in plain sight and the locomotive bell was ringing.

Dr. Lemen had served in four military campaigns. He enlisted as a private in the Spanish-American War and rose to a Captain. Later he served as army surgeon in the Philippines, in China at the time of the Boxer rebellion and in the Russian-Japanese War.

In the charge up San Juan hill Lemen gave surgical attention to some of his comrades who fell and the information that he was a surgeon given to Gen. Shafter, who cabled to Washington and had Lemen assigned to surgical work, with the rank of Captain.

When he was in Yokohama the physicians of the Emperor of Japan consulted with him and at their request he wrote a prescription for an indisposition of the Emperor.

During the world war he was surgeon to the Students' Army Training Corps at Shurtleff College.

ST. LOUIS GRANTED 15-CENT GRAIN RATE FROM SIOUX CITY

Commerce Commission Upholds Contention That Places This City on Same Basis as Chicago.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Contentions by St. Louis interests are upheld in a finding of the Interstate Commerce Commission on grain rates, modifying a previous recommendation of the Commission to the Director-General of Railroads.

St. Louis requested the establishment of a proportional rate of 15 cents from Sioux City to St. Louis, a distance of 508 miles, the same as the rate from Sioux City to Chicago, a distance of 510 miles.

Until Aug. 15, 1918, St. Louis enjoyed an advantage of 1 cent over Chicago. This was changed to an advantage of 6.5 cents in favor of Chicago. When that city was granted the 15-cent proportional rate the commission found that rates generally from Sioux City are the same to Chicago as to St. Louis, and ruled there was no justification in withholding a proportional grain rate that would maintain this parity, on evidence of comparative distances and rates presented by St. Louis.

The Commission sustained the objection of Chicago to a proposed readjustment of rates from Southern Minnesota and from South Dakota to St. Louis.

BULLISH TENSION IN GRAIN HAS RELAXED

Cutting Off of European Call for Provisions and Easier Flour Factors.

Notwithstanding the tenacity of rural holders of grain, the corn market last week relaxed somewhat from recent high tension. The chief bearish influence was virtual stoppage of European call for packing-house products, a circumstance closely related to the domestic feeding value of cereals. Compared with a week ago, corn quotations yesterday morning were ½c to 2⅛c lower, and provisions varied from unchanged figures to 40c down.

It was not until leading packers had expressed opinions that lower prices for meats, lard and the like appeared to be inevitable that the corn market showed any signs of weakness. Previously, the evident failure of all efforts to bring larger supplies of corn to the big centers was the dominating factor. Later, however, in addition to feeling the effects of depression in foreign trade, the corn market was sensitive to a Department of Justice report about seizure of foodstuffs. Subsequent rallies were more than overcome by indications that the Government was taking measures to unload its stocks of flour and wheat preparatory to the approaching end of Federal guarantees. Oats descended with corn.

The big stock of lard and ribs at Chicago was plainly a weight on the provision market.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Cash corn here yesterday was slow and 2c to 3c lower than on Friday. Spot oats were 1½c to 2c lower.

Closing prices were: No. 1 red winter wheat, $1.45; No. 2 red winter, $2.42@2.43; No. 3 red winter, $2.36@2.37; No. 2 hard, $2.35; No. 3 hard, $2.27; No. 4 hard, $2.18; No. 4 corn, $1.40; No. 5, $1.38; sample grade, $1.36; No. 3 yellow, $1.45@1.45½; No. 4 yellow, $1.41@1.42; No. 5 yellow, $1.37½@1.38; No. 3 white, $1.47@1.47½; No. 4 white, $1.41@1.44; No. 5 white, $1.38; No. 2 white oats, 88½@89½c; No. 3 white, 88@89c; No. 4 white, 87½c; No. 2, 90c; No. 3, 87c.

EXPECTED HEAVY RESERVES WEAKENS CORN AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Considerable weakness manifested itself in the corn market today largely owing to bearish predictions about the coming Government report on farm reserves. It was said the report would show an unusually large total of feed grain still left in the possession of growers. On the other hand, the canceling of shipping restrictions east of Chicago, together with announcement of renewed Government offers to buy flour, gave some encouragement to bulls. Opening prices, which ranged from ¼c to 1c lower, including May at $1.31¾ to $1.32¼, and July $1.28¼ to $1.28¾, were followed by a slight additional setback, and then by something of a rally.

Demand except from shorts was lacking, and the market underwent a material sag in the final dealings. The close was heavy, 1c to 1⅜c net lower, with May $1.30⅝ to $1.30⅞ and July $1.27⅝ to $1.27¾.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Oats were weaker with corn. After opening ¼c to ⅝c lower, including May at 78¼c to 78⅛c, the market descended still further before a reaction took place.

Provisions reflected depression in foreign exchange. Higher quotations on hogs failed to operate as an offset.

CATTLE PRICES SHOW STRONGER TENDENCY

Receipts Smaller and Demand Good—Hogs and Sheep Work Lower.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	This Week.	Last Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle	19,111	20,539	19,397
Hogs	84,376	77,506	91,027
Sheep	10,608	8,445	5,280
Horses and mules	5,566	5,709	3,729

Contrary to reports from other cattle markets the St. Louis trade this week showed some tendency to strengthen, especially on the heavy cattle, a condition which has been a drawback to the selling for some weeks past. Packers wanted a little better quality and were not so set against the absorption of heavier offerings.

Steer market closed with a 15c to 25c advance on the better classes of steers. Some of the intermediate and common grades, however, were little better than steady. One drove of Illinois cattle weighing 1472 sold at $14.75, the highest price paid since Jan. 20. Bulk of the best steers sold from $12 to $14.25, while a spread of $10 to $11.75 caught the offering in the main.

Good to choice light butcher cattle were stronger, showing a quarter advance in most cases. It was an especially good market where packers got city butcher competition and one drove of light yearlings sold up to $13.50, with a spread of $8.50 to $12.50 catching the bulk of sales. Cows were strong to a quarter higher also, with good call for the better kinds. Canners were off a quarter and slow sales. There was little change in the bull market. Stockers and feeders were quiet.

Vealers a tthe high point sold up to $18, this being the tou for three consecutive days of the week. Late market broke, however, and packers were paying around $17 for best veals. Yearlings suffered a reduction of 50c generally and were slow sale. Heavies were quotable from $5.50 to $6, while lights sold mostly from $6 to $7.

WIDER SPREAD IN HOGS.

The principal feature in the hog market the past week was a widening of the already broad spread between prices of choice light and heavy hogs. Demand was only moderately active, with packer sentiment extremely bearish, owing to the great difference between prices here and at other points in the West. Receipts started in very liberal but moderated. The total number handled was but 84,876, or considerably under an average number for this time of year. Market on light hogs, which were principal sellers, shows a 25@35c decline, with heavies off 50@75c, pigs 25@50c and packing grades 75c to $1. Late top, $15.35, as against $15.60 last Saturday, with good lights selling from $15@15.35, medium $14.40@15, heavies $13.75@14.25, pigs $11@15.10 and roughs $12@12.50.

Heavier receipts in the sheep and lamb division caused prices to shrink the past week. Fat lambs depreciated about a half dollar, while medium kinds fell off 75c to $1. Fat sheep mostly a quarter lower. Receipts for the period were the largest since the first week in January, totaling 10,608. One of the features was the wide range between medium and choice lambs, amounting to around $2 per cwt. The decline lowers prices on fat lambs to a $20@20.50 basis, medium $17.50@19, culls $12@16.50, fat sheep $13@13.25, canners $4@5 and choppers and bucks $6@8.50.

Under fair to moderate receipts the past week, the horse market manifested a good tone, many sales showing a stronger trend than the preceding week. Operators were on hand from practically all sections of the trade territory and bought freely of supplies offered.

Receipts in the mule alleys the past week were fair to moderate and market held about steady with the improved trend a week ago. Demand was good for desirable animals, including any sized miners and mules with size that had flesh. Thin, blemished and old mules were not in very strong request.

LONDON LOOKS FOR HIGH MONEY

By Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Comment among our bankers on the American position is that you can probably make your Federal Reserve rediscount rates effective in checking expansion because you are not hampered by a huge floating debt. In our case the situation is necessarily determined by the Government's rate on its own treasury bills, while the banks have the power of automatically increasing the volume of credit, if they choose, ehey not renewing expiring treasury bills, the total of which still runs into thousands of millions.

Nevertheless, business profits everywhere are so high that it is believed that nothing short of very high money rates will really check the activities of traders. The fundamentals of the situation include a world-wide shortage of goods. Hence, supposing a temporary check in your export trade should occasion easier credits in the United States, with a consequent improvement in sterling exchange at New York, it may be supposed that there would ensue a greater inclination among your bankers to finance Europe. This in turn would soon lead to a renewal in your export activity.

Nevertheless, it is believed that developments steadily tend toward high money rates universally, without necessarily an important curbing of genuine trade activities. Unless there is a great setback in the exports of countries like India and South America, it is considered that your gold exports must proceed further. However, you should be able eventually to control these shipments and the general situation by higher interest rates if you think it well to impose them. This would involve some cost to your trade activities. Any possibility of political or financial misunderstanding between Britian and America is especially regrettable, because there will be an inevitable financial mishap if the two countries are unable to co-operate skilfully and intelligently with regard to financing the needy areas of Europe in the next few years.

It is believed here that the outlook for all fixed interest bearing securities everywhere, including America, is poor because of large trade activities and the monetary prospects. But probably the activity in speculative securities will be brought to a halt because of a shortage of stocks and labor unrest.

A great trade reaction would be disastrous and seems improbable. A continued rise of prices, however, would occasion more serious unrest. It is believed here that dearer money would bring out stocks of commodities that are now withheld from the market.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

BRISK UPTURN IN STOCKS WITH RAILS LEADERS

Improvement in Foreign Exchange Helps Bulls—Trading on Enormous Scale.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted financial review today, says:

"The recovery in the railway shares this week, their sudden and complete assumption of leadership in the market, had several aspects of particular interest. It is more than four years since the railway stocks have engaged in a prolonged and vigorous advance. In the spring of 1915, their very rapid rise was due to discovery that the investment power of this country had not been paralyzed and that Europe was not about to empty on our reopened market, at any price and in unlimited amounts, the entire holdings of her investors. In the autumn of the same year, it was news that our railways in the sudden revival of trade, were making the largest monthly earnings of their history which started the ball rolling again. Between the two periods of 1915, advances of 20 to 50 per cent had been made.

"But this was the last demonstration of the kind. In 1916, though the Stock Exchange was engaged in a vast speculation for the rise in other stocks, the railway shares hung back. They were lower in December than in January. Earnings had grown more uncertain; labor troubles multiplied. Then came our own entry into the European war; the Government's seizure of the roads for Federal operation; and the prodigious increase in the wage scale, in part counterbalanced by the large increase in rates.

"With the war at an end, we had first the clamor for permanent public ownership and operation. Next, when the people showed (as they did with unmistakable emphasis) that they wished for nothing of that sort, the public was favored with a series of labor union manifestos—the backwash, as we can now understand better than we could last autumn from the wave of Bolshevik propaganda which was then sweeping temporarily around the world.

"This shock subsided also. But hardly had the 'Plumb plan,' with its nostrum of Soviet management of transportation, been tossed into the limbo of discarded absurdities, when paralysis seemed to descend on Congress. Yet new legislation was absolutely indispensable. Even when the bills were forced through House and Senate at the eleventh hour, they seemed to be incompatable with one another. Barely a month ago, both Wall Street and Washington were talking of hopeless disagreement in the Conference Committee and of return of the conferees to their respective chambers for endless debate and new instructions.

"It is certainly not strange that, after such an experience railway shares should have been selling this month at prices not only 20 to 50 points below the high level of 1915, but far below even the worst price reached in the war panic of July, 1914. Now, with the new railway bill actually reported back to Congress, the market for the shares, which for three or four years has been discounting nothing but calamity, presents at least an interesting position. Its movement after this week's sudden recovery—which was like an awakening from sleep—will be watched with the closest attention.

"Like everything else in this new world after the war, the railways will not be, even in their history, what they were before 1914. We shall not have another 'Harriman episode,' but neither shall we be treated to any more chapters of 'Rock Island finance. The circumstances and restrictions under which the properties will now go out into the world again to their living are so novel that the most experienced railway man hesitates to predict the result; but the consensus of sober financial judgment apparently is that there is at least some tangible basis on which to formulate the future of the railway industry.

"That there will be serious obstacles enough to surmount, everyone knows. The old time margin of profit in railway enterprises will not exist under the law, and it will remain to be discovered what is to be the prospect of the less favorablly located and less adequately equipped systems. Much will depend on the attitude of the Interstate Commerce Committee itself regarding property valuations and the resultant average rates. But the essential point is that these uncertainties must have existed in any case, whereas other and far more formidable uncertainties, which existed up to a very few weeks ago, have apparently disappeared.

New York Curb Market.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Weakness prevailed in many groups of stocks on the Broad street curb during the first half of the week, but toward the end a firmer tone developed, with good recoveries in numerous issues. The independent oil stocks were the most active features and had the widest fluctuations, Simms falling from 40 to 33, and then rallying to above 35, and White, after selling at 81½ to 28¼ moved up to above 30. Gilliland was in good demand, ranging from 87 to 41, and the preferred sold at 88 to 93. General Asphalt had the widest range in this group, selling at 79¼ and then advancing to 91. Midwest Refining was strong, moving up from 147 to 155, and International Petroleum was traded in at 55½ to 67.

There was a development of activity and strength in many of the mining stocks, especially in the silver group. Nipissing was the most active of these issues, advancing from 9¾ to 10⅝. There was initial trading yesterday in Bon-Alaska shares, a new silver stock recently listed on the outside market, in which the trading was on a large scale. The company's properties are at Wrangell, Alaska, and it is said to have a large tonnage of direct shipping and milling ore. De Beers developed strength, moving up from 38 to 41¾. Rand Mines was traded in at 38½.

The industrial issues were irregular, with some of those stocks selling at new low records, among them General Motors, which yielded to 23 and then advanced to 26. Indian Packing sold down to 12¾ and rallied to 14⅞. Orpheum Syndicate, after selling at 28¾, rallied to 31⅝. Submarine Boat dropped from 13¾ to 12½ and rallied to 13⅛.

Following is a list of the day's highest, lowest and closing prices for the most active stocks dealt in on the Broad street curb:

Pikers Again Win From Kansas by A Narrow Margin

Washington Takes Early Lead and Scores 37-35 Victory Over Visitors.

MARQUARD IS LOCAL STAR

Henry Hurd, With 8 Goals, Is High Man—Jayhawker Guards Play Brilliantly.

Washington University's basketball team had another close call last night when it barely defeated the Kansas University quintet at Francis Gymnasium, 37 to 35. The victory gave the Pikers a record of 11 games won and three lost.

Friday night the Pikers barely managed to nose out the Jayhawkers, Henry Hurd's basket in the final minute of play turning what looked like a defeat into a 28 to 27 victory.

Rutherford's warriors took an early lead and maintained it throughout the contest. The first half ended with the locals holding a 19-15 advantage.

In the second half the Red and Green quintet showed even a greater skill at passing the ball around the enemy and, when six minutes of time remained, were leading, 34 to 21. Marquard and Hurd were the stars of the local contingent, Marquard especially playing a wonderful floor game and accounting for six field goals. Hurd, as usual, was the high scorer of the evening, caging eight from the floor.

With six minutes to play the Kansas team took a new lease on life and threatened to overtake the Pikers. They had come within three points of the Washington total just as the final whistle blew and as a foul was called on the local quintet. The free throw brought the final score to within two points of the Red and Green.

For Kansas the guards did the best work, Laslett and Lonberg playing a strong defensive game in addition to accounting for seven goals from the field. The lineup and summary:

These titular contests will be preceded by sectional trial games held on the Pacific Coast, the Middle West, the East and possibly the South. No dates or locations have been fixed for these contests, but it is expected that they will be staged about the middle of June.

Proposed Change Would Free Park Links From Picnic Pest

Officials of Forest Park Golf Club Submit to Park Department Plans for Reconstruction of Municipal Course—Depends on Bond Issue Vote.

OFFICIALS of the Forest Park Golf Club have submitted to the Park Department, plans for the reconstruction of the municipal golf course in Forest Park. The club has learned that the course changes are favored by the city authorities, but that adoption depends upon the success of the projected bond issues.

Plans for the changes include the erection of a $25,000 clubhouse at the northwest corner of the park. According to the city officials the outlay for the construction of this building is all that could hinder the adoption of the plans for improvements.

The new course would include the greater part of the second half of the present links. It is desirable, however, to do away with the first nine holes as they are placed in a part of the park which is too much frequented by picnickers and park visitors. Because of this it has been impossible to keep the fairways and greens in good shape for play.

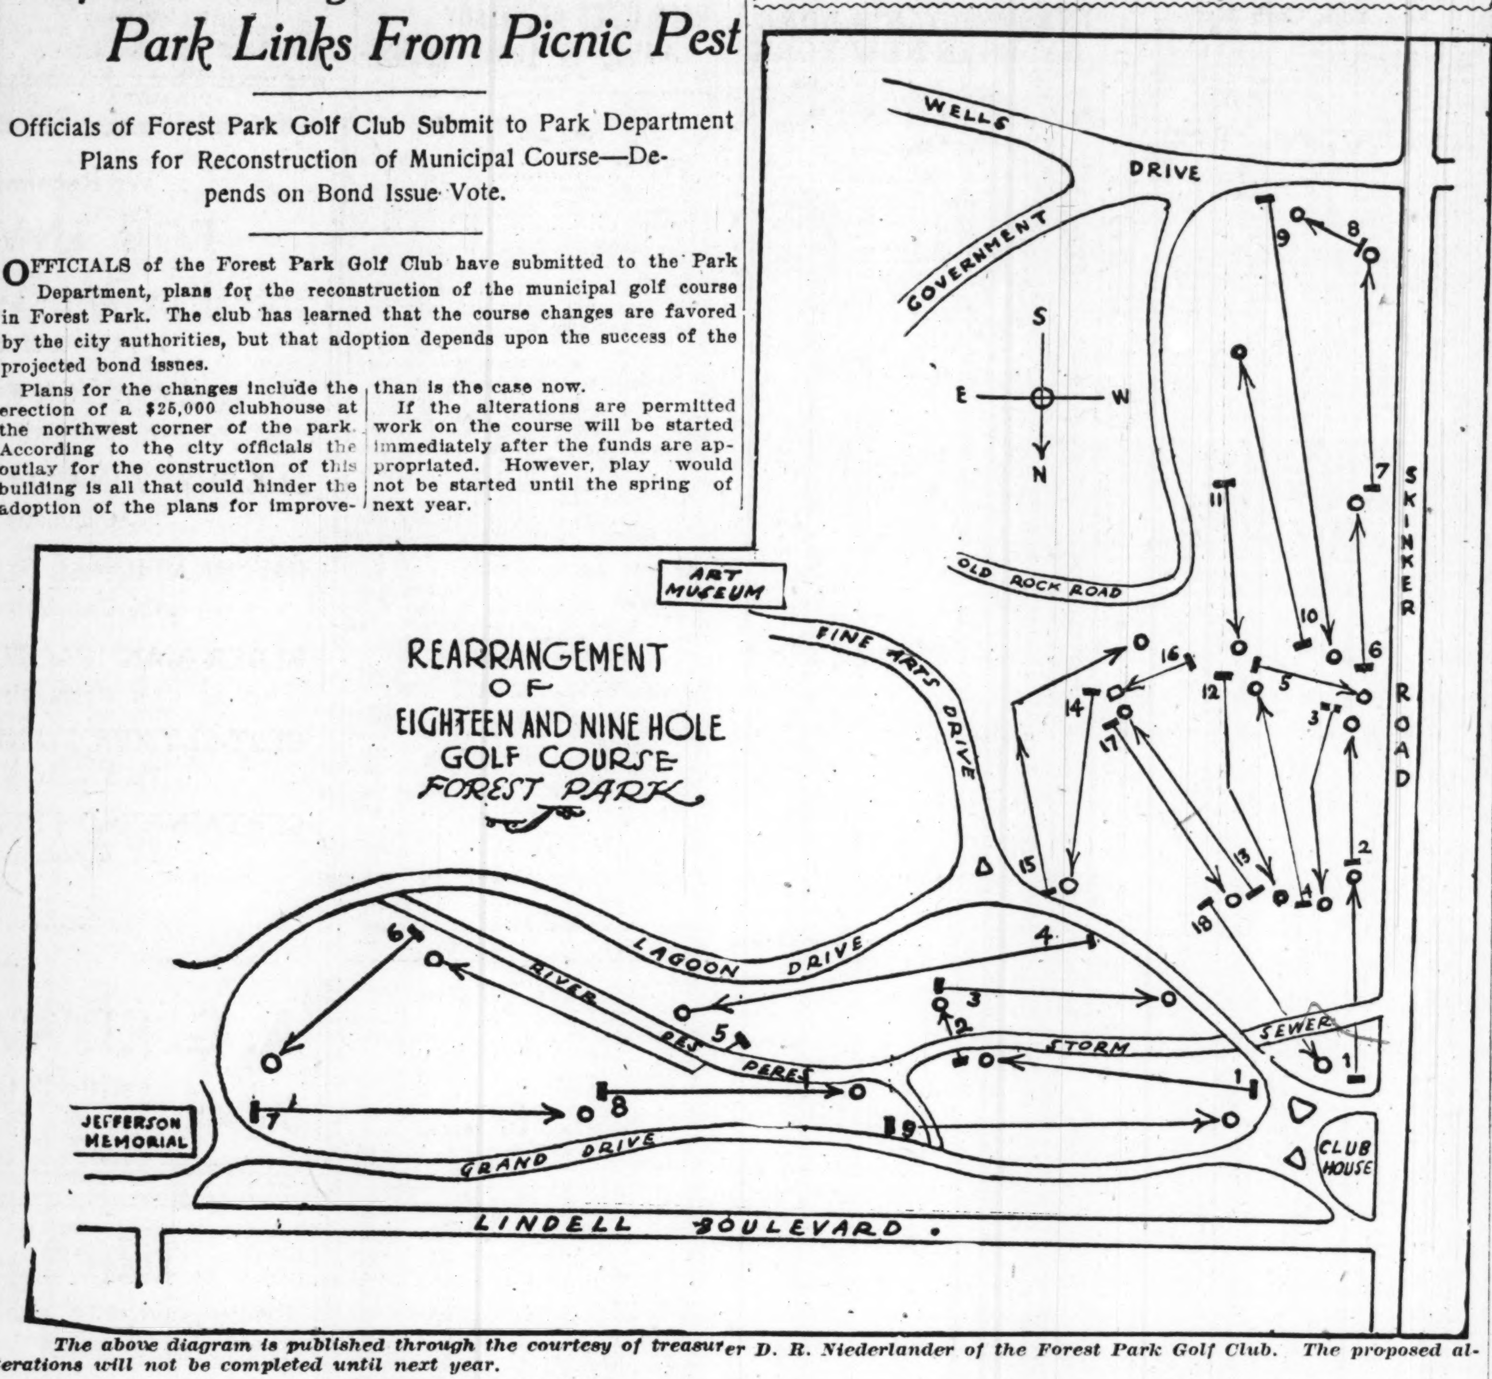
According to a number of the club officials, the city would in time save enough to pay for the contemplated course changes, because of a decrease from the present cost of upkeep.

The first tee would be placed near the corner of Skinker and Lindell, facing directly south. The second hole would continue in that direction, and then the course would wind west and south of the Art Museum, where public traffic is very light. Hole No. 9 would be at Wells road, and there the new links would pick up the return trip of the present course. Hole No. 18 would be placed, of course, near the initial tee.

At present there are many objections that some of the public links' holes are very sporty, whereas others require too little skill. Joe Williamson, caretaker of the public course, states that the changes will make the round a far more even one than is the case now.

If the alterations are permitted work on the course will be started immediately after the funds are appropriated. However, play would not be started until the spring of next year.

Changes Planned in Public Links



The above diagram is published through the courtesy of treasurer D. R. Niederlander of the Forest Park Golf Club. The proposed alterations will not be completed until next year.

POLICE OF ST. LOUIS AND KANSAS CITY MAY MEET IN REVOLVER TOURNEY

Arrangements are being made by James C. Espey, secretary of the Police Board, and Drillmaster T. R. Roemer, for a revolver match between the St. Louis and Kansas City Police Departments. Capt. W. H. Tobener of the Kansas City force is representing that department in the negotiations now going on. A schedule of rules has been received from Capt. Tobener by Secretary Espy and a reply has been made, offering certain suggestions as to changes in the plans proposed. A reply is expected from Capt. Tobener shortly.

At Capt. Tobener's suggestion the contestants will number 15 commissioned officers, who will shoot in teams of five each, each covering five targets at distances to be agreed on from 36 to 55 feet. The match in general will follow the rules laid down by the United States Revolver Association.

Capt. Roemer will immediately begin practicing 20 odd officers who have records of being the best shots in the department and will, after several practice targets, designate the 15 best shots.

NAVY RUNS AWAY WITH 6-CORNERED CARNIVAL

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 21.—Navy made a clean sweep in a six-cornered athletic carnival here today, winning all the contests by decisive margins. The results follow:

Swimming—Navy 46, City College of New York 7. The Middies also defeated the same institution at water polo, 18 to 6, played here for the first time.

Wrestling—Navy defeated Princeton, six bouts to one, scoring four falls and gaining two decisions while Princeton won one decision in the 155-pound class.

Gymnastics—Navy 45, Massachusetts Institute of Technolligy 11.

Boxing—Navy won four bouts to two over University of Pennsylvania. In the heavyweight event Mission, Navy scored a clean knockout over Bourne, Pennsylvania, flooring him three times in the second round of the three-round go.

Fencing—Navy easily defeated Harvard eight bouts to one, in the opening engagement of the preliminary intercollegiate contests.

Tiger Athletics Outgrow Quarters

Hundreds of Season-Ticket Holders Turned Away From Basket Contests.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 21.—The athletic department at the University of Missouri is face to face with the housing problem. With a constantly growing interest in athletics here, practically every branch of the department has outgrown its quarters.

Hundreds of season ticket holders were turned away from each of the basketball games with Kansas, last week, because there was neither standing room nor seats where they could be accommodated, and indications are that the same problem will be faced at the games with Washington this week.

Lines were formed in front of the gymnasium two hours before the Kansas games, and when the doors were opened an hour before the games started, the unreserved seats were filled within 15 minutes, which meant that all except the holders of the few reserved seats stood for nearly two hours before the games started.

This year, under the direction of Bob Simpson, the Missouri track team has taken on a rather pretentious indoor schedule. Two men competed in the Millrose and Boston A. C. games, and at least three other indoor meets—The Illinois, K. C. A. C. and K. U.-M. U.—are ahead. All this has been done practically without equipment, for the Tigers have no indoor track upon which to work, and the entire team is idle, so far as actual work in their events is concerned, except when mild weather makes it possible to work out-of-doors, where a rough wooden track was built several years ago.

It is certain that if the Tigers are to maintain their present pace in indoor meets, they must have a place to get into condition.

Baseball, too, is handicapped, as the gymnasium floor is only large enough for the basketball squad, and baseball practice cannot get into full swing until after the basketball season is over.

H. SCHAEFER, WITH 616, VICTOR IN SWEEPSTAKES

Harry Schaefer won the individual sweepstakes at the Washington alleys last night from a field of 48 bowlers, scoring 616 with games of 225 210 and 181. Roy Stacer was second, with 184, 199, 221—605, and Jule Schmitt, with games of 185, 226 and 170, was third, with 580.

In the Industrial League telegraph matches the Wagner Electrics rolled 2692, with games of 887, 924 and 881, and the Laclede Gas five bowled 2673, with 865, 787 and 1021. In their last game three of the Laclede bowlers were above the 200 mark. The scores were: Wagners—Novak 569, Simpson 582, Johnston 516, Jungbluth 532, Hays 493. Laclede—Curran 474, Lynch 538, Evans 498, Cooke 586, Stewart 577.

PLENTY OF AMUSEMENT WILL BE OFFERED TO CARDS AT BROWNSVILLE

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Feb. 21.—Extensive plans are being made by the citizens of Brownsville for the entertainment of the Cardinals during their training period here. If Manager Branch Rickey of the St. Louis club can be persuaded to permit the players to knock off from their baseball duties occasionally, ample amusement will be provided for the athletes.

Hunting and fishing parties are being planned. In the mesquite forests, within easy reach of Brownsville are found deer, Mexican lion, wild hogs, leopard cats, bobcats, coons, 'possums and rabbits. Quail and doves furnish amusement for the dry land hunters, while the resacas and lakes in the coast country are crowded every winter with every variety of wild ducks.

In the Laguna Madre, located 20 miles east of Brownsville, an arm of the sea extending inland from the Gulf of Mexico, is found some of the best deep-water fishing in the world.

The average day in midsummer here rivals a perfect June day in St. Louis; with cloudless skies and clear, dry, bracing air. Frost occurs on an average of two or three times every winter, then only for a few hours.

Earl Schatzman a Holdout.

Earl Schatzman, a local boy who was pitching his way toward a big league berth when the war put a damper on baseball, is a holdout member of the Omaha (Western League) team. Earl last week returned unsigned the contract offered by Omaha and will stick to his make-up rule in the Post-Dispatch composing room, unless the Omaha owners come across with a substantial increase over his last year's stipend.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS PLAN TO HOLD TRACK EVENT; MASS DRILL PROPOSED

Plans for a Public School Field meet, to be held the last Friday in May at the Public School Athletic Field, formerly Federal League Park, were announced yesterday at a meeting of school principals.

As projected, the meet will include both track and field events and will be open to every student in the public schools of watever age, the program being arranged so that all events are staged according to classes to be named later. The plans also include a mass drill of setting up exercises by the boys and girls of the schools and a demonstration of the physical culture work included in the present school curriculum.

Not since 1915 has a meet of this character been held in St. Louis and it is expected that a total of several thousand pupils will be entered in the various events, including the drills.

Supervisor of Physical Culture Kindervater will have charge of arranging the program for the meet and has secured the promised cooperation of the Board of Education and members of the various school faculties.

Cleveland Five Scores Victory Over McKinley

South Side Basketball Squad Takes Commanding Lead in First Half of Game.

Cleveland High School defeated the McKinley High School basketball quintet last night in the first game played in the scholastic league since the influenza epidemic forced a halt in the schedule. The South Side quintet excelled in the first half and held their advantage, winning by 29 to 19.

In the first half the McKinley team could not get its bearings and trailed on the short end of a 18-to-8 score when the whistle blew. Both teams had a hard time getting started and almost a quarter had elapsed before either team caged the ball.

In the second half the Cleveland boys seemed to have lost their wind and McKinley outplayed them, though each quintet managed to count 11 points in this half. Schlapprizzi was high man in the contest, scoring 17 points and caging 13 out of 18 free throws.

The victory gave Cleveland a tie for second place with Yeatman, each team now having won two and lost two games.

The lineup:

Cleveland (29)	Position.	McKinley (19)
Thymm (4)	Right forward	Schillig (8)
Bartlett (2)	Left forward	Schaeffering (3)
Schlapprizzi (17)	Center	Kemper (6)
Boverre (2)	Right guard	Wolfmeyer (2)

Substitutions: Cleveland—Weibacher for Thymm, Johnson for Bartlett, Reinhardt for Schlapprizzi, Fyberg for Boverre. McKinley—Horton for Hanley, Craig for Wolfmeyer.

Yeatman Beats Central.

In the other game of the evening Yeatman swamped Central, 35 to 11. The Central tossers were inaccurate at shooting baskets and their inability to cage free throws also held down their total. The first half ended with Yeatman leading by 21 to 4.

Weinel was the star of the contest, counting 23 points. He had many chances to add to this, but was able to cage only one out of nine free throws.

The lineup:

Yeatman (35).	Position.	Central (11).
Roettger (8)	Left forward	Newsom (7)
W. Hannegan (2)	Right forward	Wassell
Winel (23)	Center	Mathews (2)
Klausner (0)	Left guard	Kutterer (2)
Meinhart (2)	Right guard	Anzalone

Substitutions: Yeatman—R. Hannegan for W. Hannegan, Meinholtz for Klausner, Teck for Meinhart. Central—McPernan for Newsom, Jackson for McPernan, Beall for Kutterer, Kutterer for Mathews.

Referees—Reber and Wirtz.

JACK JOHNSON REPORTED ABOUT TO SURRENDER TO AUTHORITIES AT BORDER

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—District Attorney Charles F. Clyne received word today that Jack Johnson had left Mexico City for Loredo, on the Texas border, where he will surrender to Federal agents.

Johnson is reported to be coming back to Chicago to serve out a sentence of one year and a day in Leavenworth prison for violation of the Mann act. He has been attempting to negotiate with Clyne for some time for his return. When he fled from the United States in 1914, he forfeited a $15,000 bond.

RECORDS BROKEN IN JUNIOR A. A. U. MEET

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 21.—Several records fell in the junior championships of the National A. A. U. at the 74th Regiment Armory here tonight. One of the most remarkable performances was that of Harold B. Lever, of the University of Pennsylvania in the sixty yard dash. Three times, in the trial heat, the semi-finals and the final, he did the distance in 6 2-5 seconds, breaking the championship record for the distance and equaling the American record.

Another record fell when, in the second heat of the seventy yards high hurdles, Everett F. Smalley, University of Pennsylvania finished in 9 1-5 seconds, or 2-5 seconds better than the championship record held by George Trowbridge of Princeton and a fifth of a second better than the American record.

The two mile run record also was broken when Helme, Lafayette High School, Buffalo, made it in 9:35 2-5, lowering the championship record of 9:35 4-5 held by P. Flynn, of the Irish American A. C.

And so perhaps have you;
I know a man's who's always white,
And yet he's often blue.

And there's another funny man,
He really is, I ween,
For while he's white from tip to toe
He certainly is green.

He's certainly well read.

World Title Bout Hangs on Passage Of New York Bill

If Walker Measure Becomes a Law U. S. Will See Carpentier-Dempsey Fight.

TEX RICKARD IN FIELD

British Promoter's Contract May Block American's Efforts.

By John E. Wray.

That world's championship fight between the French hero, Georges Carpentier, and World's Champion Jack Dempsey seems to recede into the future as the weeks roll by. All thought that Carpentier will meet Dempsey July 4 or Labor day appears to have been given up.

The authoritative statement from W. A. Brady that the British fight promoter, Cochran, has Carpentier tied up until February, 1921, seems to effectually stymie all rivals, for the present at least. The only "out" for American promoters would be to take in Cochran on the venture.

Carpentier will probably be unwilling to battle for any sum the British promoter might offer, as compared with the $550,000 purse contemplated by Movie-man Fox, the deduction being that the next world's title fight, or the next one in which Carpentier figures, will not be until February, 1921.

Purchasing Cochran's rights, on top of a $500,000 purse, appears an unlikely eventuality.

Dempsey's Future.

In the meantime, the hey-dey of Dempsey's fighting career is waning. In the flower of physical prime, Dempsey is lying fallow and not developing himself or fighting to improve.

This condition follows a statement made BEFORE the Willard bout, to the effect that if Dempsey won the title he would see that the public got a frequent glimpse of him in ring encounters.

Dempsey should start boxing again at once, if his Carpentier contest is held off indefinitely. The champion could get numberless matches of interest. One title match that would attract a crowd is available—the one with Fulton. Fans would even welcome his appearance against Frank Moran, Harry Greb and other heavyweights whom he has not as yet faced.

Many would like to see Dempsey box, even in short or no-decision contests. Not only would spectators be gratified, but Dempsey himself would have a chance to perfect the wonderful physical machine, which is likely to rust or disintegrate in idleness.

New York Boxing to Open.

Word comes from New York that the Walker boxing bill, advocating commission supervision of the game and tolerating 15-round contests to a decision, is almost certain of passage.

In this announcement rests the principal hope that the Carpentier-Dempsey event will be held in this country, in advance of February, 1921. If Carpentier and Dempsey fight in New York, under such a law, there is not the slightest doubt that a $500,000 purse could be safely offered and that enough would be left over to buy off the British promoter who now stymies the title situation.

The impression grows that Tex Rickard eventually will take hold of the project and that he merely has been awaiting assurance that the contest could be held in New York, before announcing his plans.

A Real Title Bout.

The next world's championship to be fought in this country will be the meeting March 12 at Toledo of Frankie Mason and Jimmy Wilde, American and British flyweight champions, respectively.

Wilde is on his stride, at this time; and when James is going well, Bo, look out for the dynamite. He can explode a heavier cartridge on the enemy jaw, weight considered, than any other known boxer. Wilde is an ideal stylist, clean at all times, never holding, never running, defending himself in the open by legitimate boxing methods. He is a type that might well be recommended as a standard for American boxers to follow.

Both Mason and Wilde have been conceding big weight to all their opponents and each will be meeting a foe of equal tonnage for the first time in many months.

Mason's record was tarnished once. That was when Champion Pete Herman made him quit after three or four rounds. Mason conceded a lot of weight to the champion of a bigger class and was unable to do it.

It was no discredit, for Herman is one of the craftiest hitters and best punchers among the little men. It is significant that Wilde refuses to let Herman come in at any other than 116 pounds ringside weight—a figure almost prohibitive for Pete.

MURCHISON KEPT OUT OF RACE BY LAMENESS

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Loren Murchison was kept out of the N. Y. A. C. games at the 22nd Regiment Armory tonight by a slight lameness he sustained in the Todd Ship Yard games Feb. 11. He was scratched tonight from the 75-yard and 300-yard handicaps, scratch with Carl Johnson in the former and on scratch alone in the latter. With him out, the 75 was won by D. B. Lowrie of Princeton in 8 seconds flat from the 12-foot mark.

Hutchison Beats Lynch.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21.—Hughey Hutchison, Philadelphia featherweight, outpointed Joe Lynch, of New York, in a six round bout here tonight in the opinion of newspaper experts.

Ball Parks Are Still "Wet;" at Least, the Team in the Cellar Always Gets Lots of "Boos"

St. Louis Soccer Eleven's Trip to Sweden Assured

Letter to Local Official From Cahill Says Arrangements Have Been Completed.

BARKER TO PICK STARS

No Foreign-Born Players Will Be Given Place on All-Mound City Team.

Winton E. Barker, president of the St. Louis Soccer League, yesterday received a letter from Thomas Cahill, a former St. Louisan, honorary secretary of the U. S. F. A., stating that all details of the all-St. Louis team's tour of Scandinavia next summer had been arranged.

Final arrangements for the trip were completed when the following telegrams were exchanged between the Swedish Football Association and Cahill. The Swedes cabled: "Tour decided. Welcome." Cahill answered: "Arrange sailing early June. Delighted." Briefness of the cables is explained by transmission costs of 75 cents a word.

In his letter, Cahill told Barker to get busy and select the best available talent at once. However, no kicker is to be selected unless he is absolutely sure that he will be able to make the trip. The main requisites of the athletes are: First, playing ability, and second, character.

While Cahill wrote asking Barker to speed his selection of players, as only 90 days remain for the getting of passports, final selection of the kickers will not be made until next May when Cahill comes here several days in advance to the U. S. F. A. meeting at the Statler Hotel, May 20, 21 and 22.

Tour Is Big Undertaking.

Part of Cahill's letter to Barker says as follows: "It is a big undertaking, made the bigger by the remoteness from this port of the soccer center from which the team is to be selected."

Strict discipline is expected on the jaunt and all the kickers are expected to behave as "they will carry the good name of St. Louis into far countries," as Cahill expressed it.

Here is the translation of an article in the Dagens Nyheter of Stockholm, in reference to the venture. The Dagens Nyheter is the most loyal journalistic supporter of soccer in Sweden and, backed the Swedish end of the American tour in 1916:

"Some more American football players will come to Sweden. Mr. Cahill of the U. S. A., will not rest until he gets an American team together, without any foreign elements, and now, as a result of his renewed negotiations with the Swedish Football Association, matches have been arranged for the coming summer probably in May and June.

St. Louis Players Praised.

"Everybody will remember the glorious matches in 1916, when Cahill came with an entirely American team, which, however, did not play football as well as Bethlehem, but which instead of that had a gay and jolly temper. Gay, singing boys, who did not seem to have any difficulties or sorrows this side of the grave. The boys drew the public after them wherever they went, to say nothing of at Goteborg, where the public followed them in taxis.

"When one thinks of these gay spirits, one might say that the 'Bethlemarna' were something of a disappointment. They were splendid football players, who little by little gained the approval of the Stockholm press. They were extraordinarily diligent and delightful people; but, on the other hand, a bit silent and introspective and sometimes a little bit sulky in temper. Amongst them were not many Americans, but now, as above mentioned, Mr. Cahill wants once more to show a 'pure' troop.

"His favorite boys are the boys from St. Louis, and these he has persuaded to come on a trip to Stockholm. The St. Louisans seem to be much sounder than the Yankees of 1916, and they were the only ones who beat the Bethlehemites in their days of their glory, of which an account was given in the Dagens Nyheter of last summer.

"Cahill is welcome to Sweden again!"

Browns Depart Tuesday for Training Camp; Cardinals, 40 Strong, to Entrain Saturday

Local American League Hopes Will Work at Taylor, Tex., With Rickey's Squad at Brownsville.

Baseball, which has or should have been in a state of more or less hibernation since the Cincinnati Reds welded the final rivet in their world's championship last October, is taking its annual new lease on life and grip on the public interest, with the 16 major league clubs scheduled to depart for southern training camps within the next two weeks.

Jimmy Burke will take the Browns to Taylor, Tex., departing Tuesday night. The Cardinals in charge of Branch Rickey will stage their first practice at Brownsville, Tex., March 1, the departure from this city being scheduled for next Saturday.

Jimmy Burke will send the Browns through their initial workout preparatory to the 1920 major league opening next Thursday—the day the athletes are scheduled to set foot in Taylor.

George Sisler, star first-sacker, may be an absentee when the Browns stage their initial workout. Sisler is employed as a draftsman at a local concern and is at present working on a drawing. He has been granted permission to remain a few extra days if he has not finished his work by Tuesday. Sisler is already in good physical condition and will be in condition for the opening of the season.

Few Local Holdouts.

While several of the major league clubs have had a great deal of trouble signing players, local magnates have been fortunate in this respect.

With the training trip only a few days off the American Leaguers have only three tossers out of the fold. They are Allan Sothoron, Bill Jacobson and Ray Demmitt.

Business Manager Quinn stated yesterday that he had sent a contract to Sothoron at Philadelphia, Jan. 26, but had received no reply from the star righthander. The same goes for Jacobson, who lives in Illinois. Quinn said he was not sure that Demmitt would report, as the outfielder at the close of 1919 stated he would retire. Quinn, however, expects Sothoron and Jacobson to be on hand here when the squad departs for Texas.

The Cardinals have not been quite so fortunate. With the signed contracts of Jake May, southpaw pitcher, and Joe Schultz, outfielder and pinch hitter, arriving yesterday afternoon, the list of Cardinals not yet in line was reduced to nine. A report came from Chicago recently, where Schultz resides during the off-season, that the player was a holdout. However, Manager Rickey swung him into line while attending the major league meeting recently.

The unsigned members of the Cardinals are Jacques Fournier, Jess Haines, Milton Stock, Bill Sherdell, Frank Woodward, Elmer Jacobs, Johnny Lavan, Oscar Tuero and Harold Janvrin.

Three Are Important Cogs.

Of the members of the Knot-Holers still "out in the cold" three of them are considered as vital parts of Branch Rickey's 1920 model machine. They are Fournier, the first sacker, recently obtained from Los Angeles; Milton Stock, second sacker, and Johnny Lavan, shortstop. Hornsby is the only regular member of the infield signed. Janvrin is the infielder who came from the International League late last fall.

All the other Cardinals still unsigned are pitchers. Of the lot, a great deal is expected of Oscar Tuero, the Cuban, and Elmer Jacobs, who was obtained from the Phillies. Bill Sherdell showed promise last season as did Frank Woodward. Jess Haines is the righthander who was landed from Kansas City, where in 1919 he established a great record.

However, Manager Rickey does not report any real holdouts. He expects all the players to report at Brownsville and all unsigned at that time will be given a chance to air their troubles.

The local teams, however, will not be the only ones to start for the South next week. Several other major league teams are scheduled to go to the other side of the Mason-Dixon line, while the battery men of Connie Mack's Athletics are scheduled to stage their first practice at Lake Charles, La., tomorrow.

Every one of the 16 clubs under the "big tent" will be in the Sunny South in another two weeks.

Prospects Are That the Browns Will Start Season With Lineup of Last Year

Prospects at present are that the Browns will inaugurate the 1920 campaign with practically the same line-up that Burke landed in fifth place last season. Because all major league managers "wanted a dime for a nickel," as Bob Quinn expressed it, the local American Leaguers were unable to make any trades of importance during the winter.

The only new players obtained during the off-season were Frank "Dixie" Davis, the right-hander, who came from Louisville in a trade which sent Koob and Wright to the Colonels, and Roy Saunders, pitcher, who was claimed via the waiver route from the Yankees. Saunders in 1919 was in the American Association.

Burke's chief work in the South will be to develop several good hurlers. The main reliances among the right-handers, without a doubt, will again be Allan Sothoron and Urban Shocker.

Sothoron last season was one of the leading flingers in the A. L. He was known as a "freak ball" pitcher. This season he will be forced to do without this, these deliveries having been barred. However, Sothoron was a good hurler before last year, and this is not expected to bother him a great deal.

Shocker a Spitball Hurler.

Shocker, who is a spitball artist, will be able to use the wet delivery the coming year.

Mel Gallia is the next best bet among the righthanders. The Chief, when in shape, is one of the best flingers in the circuit. The other righthanders besides Davis and Saunders are Horace Leverett, who hurled for the Minneapolis team which captured the municipal championship, defeating the Wagners last fall; Henry Schneider from St. Peters, Mo.; Ray Richmond, Fillmore, Ill.; Earl Van Gilder, Tulsa, who hurled the Browns to a victory in their final 1919 contest; William Burwell, Joplin, and Harry Rush, a young college flinger.

No additions have been made to the outfield. Johnny Tobin will again play left; Kenneth Williams, center, and Baby Doll Jacobson, right. Earl Smith and Ray Demmitt, if the latter decides to play, will be the substitutes. Of the five, Tobin, Williams and Jacobson batted better than .300 last season. Jacobson is the only righthanded swatter, while Smith is a turn-around clouter.

While Manager Rickey of the Cardinals has a whole army of players on his reserve list—52 in all—not every one will be taken South. Some of them, not yet decided upon, will not report until the club returns to Cardinal Field. Rickey some time ago stated that he would take about 40 athletes to Brownsville.

From present indications, Rickey's chief worry will be his pitching staff, the weakest point of the club last season. Only one new man of importance has been added. He is Jess Haines, purchased from Kansas City. Haines, who did not join the A. A. club until June, won 21 and lost only 5, while he yielded an average of 2.12 earned runs per game.

But Rickey anticipates no more automobile accidents to wreck his flinging staff as was the case in 1919. The result of this accident is still fresh in the minds of the fans.

Bill Doak, one of the hurlers injured, did not win a game until May 27. Prior to that he had lost three, hurling only 11 1-3 innings. Doak was the first of the five boxmen injured to win a contest. Prior to that Marvin Goodwin and Oscar Tuero, the Cuban, were Rickey's main reliance, while Jake May, the southpaw, had to be used frequently.

Doak in 1919 wound up in great style and if in condition to start at top pace should be a valuable asset to the club. Doak recently wrote that he had spent the best winter of his entire baseball career.

Several Joined Club in Fall.

Several new faces are found on the Knot-Holers' pitching staff, not present in the spring of 1918. Chief among these are Ferd Schupp, the southpaw, who came from the Giants and showed signs of returning to his 1917 form late last fall; Elmer Jacobs, righthander, from the Phillies, and Frank Woodward, who came from the same club. Rickey is counting upon Schupp and Jacobs as regulars, while Woodward is a great prospect.

Goodwin and Tuero are again expected to do their share. Rickey said recently that the Cuban was one of the best flingers in the circuit. Haines also may come through.

Bill Sherdell, Jake May—who has everything but control, a pitchers' main asset—Arthur Reinhart, recalled from Houston, and Phil Todt, who played in the Municipal League, will fight it out for the southpaw positions with Schupp. Todt also can play in the outfield.

Bill Bolden, a big righthander from Houston, showed great promise in the few games he twirled late in 1919 for the Knot-Holer gang. Other twirling prospects are: Frank Keck, the former Kirkwood High School star; James Hatchard and John Engler, St. Louis semipros; Walter Schulz, former Cleveland High star, who came from the Mount Vernon Car Builders; Irwin Gardner, Granite City High; Thomas Kelley, Waco; Walter Lambrecht, Decatur, where he made a great record; Willis Koenigsmark and Roy Parker, who were here last season.

Catching Staff the Same.

Vernon Clemons and "Pickles" Dillhoefer will again be called upon to do the bulk of the catching. The others are Arthur Dunn and Jack Conboy, local semiprofessionals; Charles Roth from Muskegon of the Central League, where he hit .340 in 1918, and Irwin Trout, who in 1918 was with Toronto and last season with an independent club that defeated Knot-holers in an exhibition game. Rickey's backstopping department at present does not look overly strong.

If all the infielders swing into line, Rickey will start with a far better inner defense than he had in 1919.

Fournier, who saw four years service in the A. L. with the White Sox and who has a combined batting average of .305 for the past seven years, should prove an improvement over Paulette, Cruise, Miller, Snyder and Mollwitz, who were tried there in 1919.

Hornsby will be better acquainted with the duties of a second sacker. In 1919, Rickey started with Bob Fisher, then tried Schultz, Miller and Stock, before finally using Hornsby. Shortstop was another weak spot until Lavan joined early in June. Stock and Hornsby alternated at third. No matter what Rickey did in 1919 there always one weak place. This season, unless the unforseen happens, Fournier, 1b; Stock, 2b; Lavan, ss, and Hornsby, 3b, will be the regular infield.

Rickey's chief substitutes are Hal Janvrin, who played with the world's champion Red Sox, and Fritz Mollwitz. Other infielders who will receive tryouts are James Bottomly, a Nokomis, Ill., first sacker; Polly McLarry, who hit .318 at Binghampton; Joe Bockskopf, local first sacker; Hi Buser, St. Louis boy; Ray Blades, Mount Vernon, and E. Daughtrey, Chaffee, Mo., second; Louis Oettel, Staunton, and James McLoughlin, Mount Vernon, third.

In the outfield, Bert Shotton, Austin McHenry, Clifton Heathcote and Jack Smith probably again will be the regulars. Joe Schultz, Ed Bogart from Regina; Lloyd Silcott, Aberdeen; Levi Beckel, Chaffee; Clarence Mueller, local semiprofessional, and R. Harrell, Elkville, Ill., are the others.

It looks as if the Cardinals will get plenty of hitting in 1920, but that Rickey will have to add some pitching strength.

Fournier Wires That He Will Join Cards

JACQUES FOURNIER, the first sacker obtained by the Cardinals from the Los Angeles club, is ready to play with the Knot-Holers, according to a telegram received from the initial station guardian yesterday. Fournier's telegram read as follows:

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 21.
Sporting Editor Post-Dispatch: Will report to Cardinals soon as things are arranged.
JACQUES FOURNIER.

Just what Fourniel means is indefinite. He may mean that he will report as soon as salary differences are straightened with Manager Rickey, or he may mean that he will report as soon as his oil interests have been thoroughly looked after.

SEATTLE CLUB OWNER ADVISES FOURNIER TO JOIN THE CARDINALS

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 21.—Jack Fournier, the first sacker, obtained by the Cardinals in a five-cornered deal, was advised today by President William Klepper of the Seattle club, that he had better accept St. Louis terms if he wanted to play ball at all next season as the Seattle club would not encourage him to hold out even if there was a chance to get him from the Cardinals.

Scholz Coming to Compete Against Mahl at Coliseum

Missouri Coach Advises Rodowe Abeken Crack Sprinter Will Be Here.

Rodowe Abeken, superintendent of Public Recreation, who is in charge of the athletic program for the annual Municipal Athletic Carnival, to be held at the Coliseum, next month, announced yesterday that he had received word from Robert I. Simpson, Missouri University's track coach, that Sprinter Jack Scholz of St. Louis would be given permission to compete in the Coliseum sprints.

Scholz, who is Missouri's mainstay at all distances up to 100 yards, and who recently twice defeated Loren Murchison (another St. Louisan), of the New York Athletic Club, will probably meet Irwin Mahl in the dashes.

Several special trophies have been announced for competition at the coming meet. Notable among these are: The Washington University Challenge Cup, The "Hess 880" trophy, the Wagner Relay Challenge trophy and the University Alumni trophy.

The Washington University cup is for total points scored in high school events and is open to any high school entry in the United States. Points are scored 5, 3, 2 and 1 in each event. The school winning three times becomes permanent possessor of the trophy.

The Hess 880 is a half-mile race open to any high school in the United States; only one athlete may represent each school. The institution winning three times, takes the trophy out of competition.

The Wagner relay is an event open to any team representing an industrial concern and must be won three times to be taken out of competition.

Goose Hunting in Manitoba

Sportsman Tells of Expedition From Brandow Into Marshes Where Birds Mere So Nuumerous They Almost Contested Elbow Room With Him.

By Hamilton M. Laing.

GOOSE HUNTING WITH THE ARISTOCRAT.

I WAS in a game country in Manitoba on business in October and had some spare time. Of course, I had to go hunting. But I had no gun with me. Under such circumstances one must either rent a gun or borrow one. Good guns seldom can be rented; and, anyway, such guns have a pernicious tendency toward getting themselves scratched or disfigured and raising awkward complications at settling time. Yet one hesitates to borrow.

Plainly, however, it was up to my friend S——. He had a gun and didn't shoot. A few months previously S—— had shown me his weapon, a double-barreled fowling piece of English make, also of ancient lineage plainly, yet so perfectly preserved—apparently—as to suggest that it had just come from the maker. I hesitated to borrow such a gun. Not only was it an expensive arm, made by a celebrated London firm—it had cost £50 sterling, was beautifully finished and engraved from butt plate to sight; a very aristocrat of a gun—but it was a veritable heirloom; it has been brought to Canada by S——'s father in pioneer days. Yet he had offered me the use of it, and now I decided to borrow.

Expedition From Brandon.

So it was settled, I would try some goose shooting and get an early start the following day, making a hike out from Brandon.

The next morning was almost dead calm; a slight frost glistened on the withered grass in the hollows; the air was so keen, so full of life-stirring properties that a four-mile hike almost would have been sufficient reward in itself for this 3 a. m. rising. The hay flats fell behind; a coyote sang his dawning songs off in the distance; a horned owl boomed in the poplar woods near at hand. Then soon I left the main trail, cut through a narrow ridge of sand hills where a northern hare or two, startled, went off stamping heavily at their old trick; then I came out upon the hay-flat and skirted the lonely marshes—a marsh and slough chain that stretched away to southward for miles and connected with Oak Lake in the westerly distance.

Hay-stacks at intervals stood visible in the moonlight and at one of these I sat down to await the daybreak and enjoy the strange loneliness of the marshes.

At about 10:30 the first flock of speckledbreasts on the field rose, and with great teeheeing and bittering came winging; but though they were low, they passed on the far side of the nearby knoll. So I changed over; and I was just in time, for scarcely had I settled into a new blind when the remainder of those noisy jokesters came after the others. I watched the oncoming line—it was low—and wished that by some magic I could turn this old double-hammered relic into a real gun.

What music! What a thrilling, nerve-shattering medley of blood-stirring sound is the chorus of 50 of these noisy gabblers as they wing with maws full of wheat off to the water. They passed at 30 yards, the black breast spots of the old birds showing up sharply against the soft coats, and at the psychologically correct instant I sprang up and did my dead best, after which I stretched out on the grass in the warming sun to think it over.

Flock of Birds Arrives.

There was an inner fringe of stubble on the right-hand side to conceal the shine and glint of the old Aristocrat. I hid shooting coat and extras at the side of the field, packed my shooting cap into the right shoulder of my sweater and then lay down.

"Tee-hee-hee-hee!" They were coming. About 3:30 the bittering cry drifted from westward and I could see a line in the sky off toward the lowering sun. Now if my birds are going to pass toward my head while I am ambushed in a trench, I lie on my stomach; if they are to pass toward my feet, the other side works more advantageously; shooting position comes more quickly so. Having no decoys to draw my birds I could only guess; so I turned over on my back.

The laughing goose is no fool. They came to the field high. Because I was so near the level of the ground I could turn my head and see every move they made. When they reached the edge of the field they did a thing most unusual—surveyed the field a moment on arching wings, then as though assurred of a clean coast, did the tumble act—tumbled down helter-skelter almost to the stubble, then reformed line and headed—at me! They veered neither to right nor left but skimmed slowly over the stubble as though eyeing it for especially good picking.

Finally Bags Two.

Now they arched their wings for a beat or two and my heart sank; but, no, they fanned up again and came on; they had quit their noisy gabble and were merely jabbering contentedly. Up, up! Did they intend to alight beside me? Up, up. I was looking them in the face. But with a fierce effort I held my back to the bottom of the trench—and then sat up among them! I had almost to make elbow room for myself and the Aristocrat. That moment was worth a lot of endeavor afield. But a speckled-bellied goose is a nimble bird in the air, and I lost no time. The heirloom came into position on the stern end of a wriggling goose, boomed, shifted to another and boomed; and when my vision cleared a trifle, I went out and picked up two dead geese. Both had fallen within 25 yards; the Aristocrat plainly was deadly at that range. (First blood.)

And in that fusilade I realized a subtle change. I could shoot now; the awkwardness of the thing had gone; the hang of squinting between those two hammers down the straight stock had somehow come to me. The knack of being able to hit implies something more than merely aiming; aiming, I suppose, is mechanical, but killing is psychological. I just knew that I could do it again at 20 yards.

Then the second flock came in. They flew low, but missing their leaders seemed not so disposed toward a sudden alighting. But they swung by in deadly range of my trench; a side shot, and though I knew that my old reprobate of a shot sprinkler spattered that flock from front to rear, yet but two birds came down, the first dead, the second to fall within a hundred yards.

Watching a bright October day waning to its sunset close here on the game fields where one may see much wild life and little killing, is time spent not idly or amiss. For the eye and mind on the qui vive there is always something of interest; a snow owl keeping vigil on a hay stack; a flock of chippering Lapland longspurs swirling about— a hurrying sharp-shinned hawk or a marauding northern strike at his hunting. For there is a lot more in hunting upon the stubble-fields than in merely bringing old Wawa or greenhead to a game pocket.

I bagged one more from a third flock and decided I had all I could carry to the nearest farm house, a quarter of a mile away on a road leading to Brandon. I reached there, and a passing auto soon landed me in Brandon.

ADOPTION CASE OF REMMERS IS TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT

Testimony in Suit for Child's Share in $260,000 Estate of Building Contractor Is Concluded.

WOMAN WITNESS RECANTS ON STORY

Tells Court Her Statement That Couple Declared Purpose to Legally Adopt Boy Was Untrue.

The suit of Harry J. Remmers, 47 years old, a building contractor, of 5251 Cabanne avenue, to be declared the legally adopted son of the late F. J. Remmers, wealthy building contractor, was taken under advisement yesterday by Circuit Judge Davis, after a trial lasting a week.

Testimony for the plaintiff was that when he was six and one-half years old he was taken into the Remmers' home, which was then at 1429 North Ninth street, and treated as a member of the family. This was immediately after the death of his mother, who was a sister of the first wife of F. J. Remmers, now deceased. It was alleged that Mr. and Mrs. Remmers declared that they wanted to adopt Harry, that they referred to him as their son, and so introduced him.

When F. J. Remmers' will was filed after his death last August it was found there was no mention of Harry in it. He left his estate, inventoried at $260,000, to his second wife, Mrs. Wilhelmina Remmers, 3656 Cook avenue, and his four children. The plaintiff claims a child's share.

Witness Repudiates Testimony.

One of Harry Remmers' witnesses to the alleged adoption was Miss Mary Nolte, 60 years old of 4120 Louisiana avenue. On Thursday she testified that after the funeral of Harry's mother she overheard a conversation at the Remmers' home on North Ninth street, where she was employed, in which Mr. and Mrs. Remmers declared that it was their intention to adopt Harry and raise him as their own child. Yesterday she took the stand again and repudiated her testimony on this point. She said she wanted to "ease her conscience" and say that she had overheard no such conversation.

In explanation of her testimony, Miss Nolte said that some time ago she signed a written statement as to hearing the conversation and that she was afraid to testify at variance with that statement when she went on the witness stand. Now that the load of having given incorrect testimony was off her mind she felt better, she told the Court.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Remmers, widow of F. J. Remmers, took the stand and explained that on Friday afternoon, after adjournment of court, she spoke to Miss Nolte and the latter began to cry, saying she had testified to an untruth. "I told her," Mrs. Remmers testified, "that she should clear her conscience just as she would do if she went to confession to a priest, and that she should come into court and make a confession to the Judge."

Widow Says Two Were Unfriendly.

Mrs. Remmers was asked by her lawyer as to whether her husband had ever told her he had not adopted the plaintiff, but the Court sustained an objection on the ground of privileged communication between husband and wife. She testified that she married Remmers on April 23, 1902, in New York, and that from shortly after the time of her marriage until her husband's death the latter and Harry were not on friendly terms. She gave her age as 60.

After the defense had rested, the plaintiff's side recalled his uncle, Peter Stratman, 1446 Cass avenue, who reiterated testimony that he had wanted to adopt Harry, but that Remmers and the latter's first wife objected and said they were going to do that themselves. He added that the first Mrs. Remmers, who was his sister, told him one time that when she entered Harry in St. Joseph's Catholic School she informed the sisters there that he was not her son, but that she and her husband had adopted him. He said she cautioned the sisters that she wanted the boy to be generally known as her son. Formal adoption papers never were recorded.

Circuit Judge Klene, who 16 years ago represented Harry in a damage suit against F. J. Remmers, testified that he had investigated the case thoroughly before bringing it. This was the second suit the plaintiff filed against his alleged foster father. The defendant tried to show that Harry had proved himself an undutiful son by bringing the suits.

Help Build Remmers Fortune.

Testimony at the trial developed that Harry Remmers began working for F. J. Remmers when he was 14 years old, and that when he quit the employ of the Remmers Contracting Co., in 1903, he was secretary of the concern. His counsel contended that he was largely instrumental in building F. J. Remmers' fortune and that the latter had great confidence in his business ability. Under Harry's supervision 23 homes in Portland, Westmoreland and Vandeventer places and on Lindell boulevard were erected while he was employed by the Remmers company.

Lenine Tells What Russia's Needs Are and What She Has to Offer to the Outer World

Declares Europe Cannot Get on Its Feet Without Her

Bolshevik Regime Eager to Make Fair Peace and Establish Diplomatic and Commercial Relations With Other Nations, Premier Tells Post-Dispatch Correspondent at Moscow.

Rehabilitation of Country Under Way With Wonders Being Accomplished, He Says, Although Completion of Work in Which the Red Labor Armies Are Engaged Will Require Years.

By LINCOLN EYRE,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1920, by Press Pub. Co. New York World.)
(Reprinted from yesterday's Post-Dispatch.)

RIGA (By Courier to Berlin), Feb. 20.—Despite his aversion to receiving representatives of "Bourgeoise" newspapers, I had an hour's talk with Lenine in the Kremlin at Moscow a few days ago. Our conversation, for such it was rather than a formal interview of question and answer, covered every important phase, economic, politic and military, of the Russ problem today.

Easy to Get Along With.

To what extent the affability Lenine showed was assumed I cannot say, of course. Maybe the fact that he was being photographed and filmed during the whole time we conversed had something to do with it. His intimates tell me, however, that he is genuinely genial and always easy to get along with except when for some definite purpose he prefers to show his teeth. Certainly the man has a large measure of personal magnetism. His smile is winning and infectious, his attitude sympathetic and receptive.

Where personality is concerned there is a broad gulf between him and his chief collaborator, Trotzky, whom I had met previously. The one is warm, superficially, at least; the other cold. Lenine is attractive; Trotzky antipathetic. One might admire and esteem but never love the latter, whereas the former among his disciples inspires fervent affection.

Even in their expressions of hate or disdain the two men are unlike. Trotzky projects acid bitterness; Lenine merely scornful irony. In a word one is human, the other machinal.

We—I was accompanied by Victor O. Kubes, motion picture photographer, who was my companion throughout my Russian trip—scaled these impressive barriers without great difficulty, but not until the last day of our stay in Moscow. Having found our way through the dilapidated corridors and anterooms of the one-time palace of Czars, we sat down in a bleak apartment expecting to wait fully an hour before being admitted to the presence (that being the customary minimum delay in keeping of appointment by Soviet functionaries).

Room Lined With Bookcases.

Ten minutes later, however, a little hunchbacked woman, his confidential secretary, ushered us into Lenine's office. It was a medium-sized room, lined with bookcases and wholly lacking that ministerial magnificence which had characterized Trotzky's audience chamber. Lenine arose at the desk at which he had been seated, shook hands briskly and began to ply Kubes with questions about his photographic work.

He evidenced much interest to learn how Kubes had filmed the signing of the peace treaty at Versailles. "So there, too, there's the dictatorship of the photographer," he remarked, smilingly.

Then he turned to me, observing brusquely: "And you represent the New York World. The organ of your Government, is it not?"

Neither here nor elsewhere, when he might have done so appropriately, did Lenine mention President Wilson. It seemed to me that he deliberately avoided speaking of the President, hesitating, perhaps, to injure our feelings as Americans by any invidious reference to our chief executive.

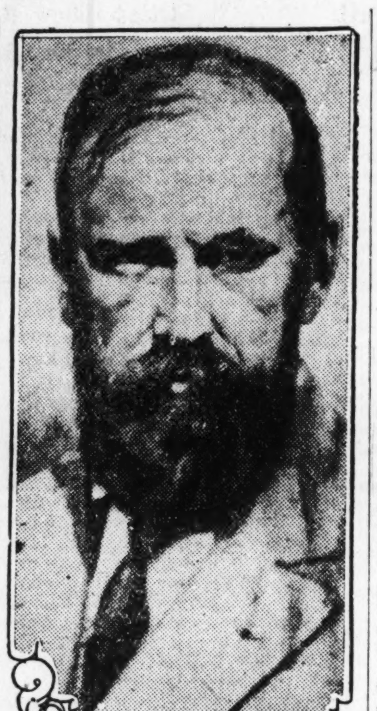
While Kubes, whose directions he obeyed with smiling docility, was posing him for the camera, I had a chance to study the physical aspects of the man who has done more to turn the world upside down and who has aroused deeper hatreds and fears than even William of Hohenzollern.

With his balt pate, squinty eyes, broad nose, thickish lips and unkempt reddish gray beard, Lenine is decidedly homely, not to say ugly. But his homeliness is that of the bulldog, having about it nothing unwholesome and repulsive. His wide and slightly bulging forehead, revealing the thinker, moreover, redeems his face from the heavy, almost brutish quality it might otherwise reflect.

On his feet the man is light as the cats of whom he is so fond. Indeed, all of Lenine's movements and gestures have a feline swiftness and elasticity which I fancy is duplicated in his mental processes. His dress was nondescript, a slightly soiled soft white collar (even soiled white collars are a rarity in Russia), a black tie and a dark brown business suit, the trousers stuffed into knee-high boots of thick felt, the warmest kind of foot covering. The clothes, in this case at least, did not show the man, for Lenine's raiment might have been worn by a sartorially carless Cabinet minister or newspaper man or a prosperous bricklayer.

Speaks in Pure English.

That he was being pictured for the numberless host of American movie fans did not seem to interfere with the Bolshevik Premier's conversational powers. Speaking in rather slow but very pure English—his understanding of both English and American is perfect—he tackled each subject brought up with the unhesitating promptitude of one who knows his own mind thoroughly.



NIKOLAI LENINE

Of the allies' reported decision to lift the blockade he said:

"It is hard to see sincerely behind so vague a proposal, coupled as it seems to be with preparations to attack us afresh through Poland. At first glance the Supreme Council's proposition looks plausible enough—the resumption of commercial relations through the medium of the Russian co-operatives. But the co-operatives do not any longer exist, having been assimilated into our Soviet distribution organs. Therefore, what is meant when the allies talk of dealing with the co-operatives certainly is not clear.

"Therefore, I say that closer examination convinces us that this Paris decision is simply a move in the allied chess game, the motives of which are still obscure." Lenine paused a moment, then added with a broad grin:

"Far obscurer, for instance, than Marshal Foch's intended visit to Warsaw."

I asked if he deemed the probability of a Polish offensive serious (it must be recalled that in Russia the talk is of a drive of the Poles against the Bolsheviki, not vice versa).

"Beyond doubt," Lenine replied, "Clemenceau and Foch are very, very serious gentlemen, and the one originated and the other is going to carry out this offensive scheme. It is a grave menace, of course, but we have faced graver ones. It does not cause us fear so much as disappointment that the allies should still pursue the impossible. For a Polish offensive can no more settle the Russian problem for them than did Kolchak's and Denikine's. Poland has many troubles of her own, remember. And it is obvious that she can get no help from any of her neighbors, including Rumania."

"American Bankers Fear Us."

"Yet peace seems nearer than before," I suggested.

"Yes, that's true. If peace is a corrolary of trade with us, the allies cannot avoid it much longer. I have heard that Millerand, Clemenceau's successor, expresses willingness to envisage commercial relations with the Russian people. Perhaps this heralds a change of front among the French capitalists. But Churchill is still strong in England, and Lloyd George, who probably wants to do business with us, dare not risk an open rupture with the political and financial interests supporting the Churchill policy."

"And America?"

"It is hard to see clearly what is going on there. Your bankers seem to fear us more than ever. At any rate, your Government is instituting more violently repressive measures not only against the Socialists but against the working class in general than any other Government, even the reactionary French. Apparently it is persecuting foreigners. And yet, what would America be without her foreign workers? They are an absolute necessity to your economic development.

"Still, some American manufacturers appear to have begun to realize that making money in Russia is wiser than making war against Russia, which is a good sign. We shall need American manufactures—locomotives, automobiles, etc.—more than those of any other country."

"And your peace terms?"

"It is idle to talk further about them," Lenine returned emphatically. "All the world knows that we are prepared to make peace on terms the fairness of which even the most imperialistic capitalists could not dispute. We have reiterated and reiterated our desire for peace, our need for peace and our readiness to give foreign capital the most generous concessions and guarantees. But we do not propose to be strangled to death for the sake of peace."

The Red standard bearer stopped short as if to lend weight to his ultimatum, then continued, with one of the ironic grins that constrict his narrow eyes into two slits like a Mongolian's:

"I know of no reason why a Socialistic commonwealth like ours cannot do business indefinitely with capitalistic countries. We don't mind taking their capitalistic locomotives and farming machinery, so why should they mind taking our Socialistic wheat, flax and platinum. Socialistic corn tastes the same as any other corn, does it not? Of course, they will have to have business relations with the dreadful Bolsheviks—that is, the Soviet Government. But it should not be harder for American steel manufacturers, for instance, to deal with the Soviets than it was for them to deal with entente governments in their war-time munition deals.

"Move in a Game of Chess."

"That is why this talk of reopening trade with Russia through co-operatives seems to us insincere, or at least, obscure—a move in a game of chess rather than a frank, straightforward proposition that would be immediately grasped and acted upon. Moreover, if the Supreme Council really means to lift the blockade, why doesn't it tell us of its intentions? We are without official word from Paris. What little we know is derived from newspaper dispatches picked up by our wireless."

At this point, in response to Kubes' request to picture the dictator in his home, Lenine led us down a short corridor, past two sentries, into the five-room apartment in which he lives. We entered a fairly large and simply furnished parlor, through a dining room square enough to have formed part of a Harlem flat. There we were joined by Comrade Oulianovna, Lenine's wife (she prefers to use her husband's real name, Vladimir Ilitch Oulianovna).

Lenine's wife is a quiet, middle-aged woman who looks even more a proletarian than her spouse, but who talks four languages and is an authority on secular education. Subsequently one of Lenine's cats strolled in and perched on his knee. Resuming his pronouncements on the affairs of nations amid these incongruous surroundings, the president of the People's Commissaries observed trenchantly:

"The statesmen of the Entente and the United States do not seem to understand that Russia's present economic distress is simply a part of the world's economic distress. Until the economic problem is faced from a world standpoint and not merely from the standpoint of certain nations or group of nations, a solution is impossible. Without Russia Europe cannot get on her feet. And with Europe prostrate, America's position becomes critical. What good is America's wealth if she cannot buy with it that which she needs? America cannot eat or wear the gold she has accumulated, can she? She can't trade profitably, that is, on a basis that would be of real value to her, with Europe until Europe is able to give her the things she wants in exchange for that which she has to give. And Europe cannot give her those things until she is on her feet economically.

"In Russia we have wheat, flax, platinum, potash and many minerals of which the whole world stands in desperate need. The world must come to us for them in the end, Bolshevism or no Bolshevism. There are signs that a realization of this truth is gradually awakening. But meanwhile not only Russia, but all Europe is going to pieces, and the Supreme Council still indulges in tergiversation. Russia can be saved from utter ruin and Europe, too, but it must be done soon and quickly. And the Supreme Council is so slow, so very slow. In fact, it has already been dissolved, I believe, in favor of a Council of Ambassadors, leaving nothing settled and with only a league of nations, which is nonexistent, still-born, to take its place. How can the league of nations possibly come to life without the United States to give it backbone?"

I inquired as to whether the Soviet Government was satisfied with the military situation.

"Very much so," Lenine replied promptly. "The only symptoms of further military aggression against us are those I spoke of in Poland. If Poland embarks on such an adventure there will be more suffering on both sides, more lives needlessly sacrificed. But even Foch could not give the Poles victory. They could not defeat the red army, even if Churchill himself fought with them." Here Lenine threw back his head and laughed grimly. Then he went on in a graver vein:

"We can be crushed, of course, by any one of the big allied Powers if they can send their own armies against us. But that they dare not do. The extraordinary paradox is that, weak as Russia is, compared with the allies' boundless resources, she has not only been able to shatter every armed force, including British, American and French troops that they have agreed to send against her but to win diplomatic and moral victories as well over the cordon sanitaire countries."

"And Russia's internal situation?"

"It is critical but hopeful. With spring the food shortage will be overcome to the extent at least of saving the cities from famine. There will be sufficient fuel then, too. The reconstruction period is underway, thanks to the red army's stupendous performances. Now parts of that army are transformed into armies of labor, and extraordinary phenomenon only possible in a country struggling toward a high ideal. Certainly it could not be done in capitalist countries. We have sacrificed everything to victory over our armed antagonists in the past; and now we shall turn all our strength to economic rehabilitation. It will take years, but we shall win out in the end."

"When do you think Communism will be complete in Russia?"

The question was a poser, I thought, but Lenine replied immediately:

"We mean to electrify our entire industrial systems through power stations in the Urals and elsewhere. Our engineers tell us it will take 10 years. When the electrification is accomplished it will be the first important stage on the road to the Communistic administration of public economic life. All our industries will receive their motive power from a common source, capable of supplying them all adequately. This will eliminate wasteful competition in the quest of fuel and place manufacturing enterprise on a sound economic footing, without which we cannot hope to achieve a full measure of interchange of essential products in accordance with Communist principles.

"Incidentally, in three years we expect to have 50,000,000 incandescent lamps burning in Russia. There are 70,000,000 in the United States, I believe, but in a land where electricity is in its infancy more than two-thirds of that number is a very high figure to achieve. Electrification is to my mind the most momentous of the great tasks that confront us."

Think of being able to Play a Phonograph
The Vocalion
People are so accustomed to having the phonograph simply play itself that it is not easy to picture someone playing it. And it is practically impossible to realize the fascination of doing so without actual experience.
Yet because of an exclusive feature, the Graduola, you can play the Vocalion. And with a little thought, the advantage of the Graduola becomes obvious.
Artists never play or sing twice with exactly the same feeling. Each performance has a distinctive shade of difference.
So it is with the Graduola. Without variation of the tempo and phrasing, the tone color can be varied to accord with the mood of the listener. Thus every record, no matter how often it may be played, has each time a freshness and spontaneity which the ordinary phonograph cannot give.
The Vocalion is a superb phonograph with the added fascination of artistic tone control. Conventional style Vocalions are priced from $60 to $350—Art styles from $280 to $2000. Convenient payment terms. An interesting Vocalion booklet sent upon request.

REALTY INTERESTS AWAIT RULING ON TALL BUILDINGS

City Plan Commission Expected to Oppose Amusement Corporation's Project for Seventh and Locust.

MAY APPROVE ONE ON GRAND AVENUE

Real Estate Operations in St. Louis Declared to Be on Unprecedented Scale—Some Vast Financing.

By BERRY MOORE.

Agents and owners of property on downtown Locust and Seventh streets and on central Grand avenue are awaiting with some concern the position to be taken by the City Plan Commission on the building schemes of the Famous-Players-Lasky Corporation, producer of motion pictures and plays.

Representatives of that corporation have submitted plans to the local commission for a building 250 feet high, to be erected at the northwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets and for one 150 feet high to be erected at the southeast corner of Grand and Lucas avenues. The approximate cost of the two is placed at $6,000,000.

The proposed downtown structure would exceed the building height limit at that point by 100 feet, only buildings 150 feet high being permissable there, according to the zone ordinance. The proposed elevation would give the structure the same height as that of the Railway Exchange Building, which is 250 feet high, exclusive of the observatory on the roof.

From civic pride real estate men generally favor the lofty structure, since it would have the effect of augmenting the metropolitan aspect of the city, according to Fred G. Zeibig of Cornet & Zeibig.

Office space in downtown St. Louis is at a premium, a majority of the large structures having waiting lists, and the building which the moving picture corporation plans to erect would materially relieve an acute situation in this part of the city, Zeibig declares.

Commission May Oppose Project.

Members of the City Plan Commission, according to Secretary Bartholomew, will probably oppose the erection of the proposed 250-foot structure, as stated, on the theory that a building of that height would tend to heighten the pedestrian traffic on the thoroughfares which it would face, and which, he contends, are already congested in this district, owing to their narrow width. Office buildings wherein thousands of people are employed are responsible for pedestrian traffic congestion in the large cities, he argues.

A feature of the building projected for the corner in question, should it materialize, will be a sumptuously appointed theater, devoted to moving pictures and vaudeville. The upper floors will be given over to offices.

On behalf of the Famous-Players-Lasky corporation, F. L. Cornwell, local counsel, recently obtained an option to buy the northwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets, owned by the First National Bank, for $1,250,000, depositing $10,000 as earnest money. The option is to be exercised provided a permit can be obtained for the erection of a building of the height mentioned.

The same corporation proposes to erect a 12-story combination hotel and apartment building at the southeast corner of Grand and Lucas avenue, 130 feet on Grand avenue and 360 feet on Lucas avenue, recently acquired through the Mercantile Trust Co. The corporation is constructing on the east part of this lot, on Lucas avenue, a motion picture theater at a cost of $500,000. The height of the proposed building is to be 150 feet, while the maximum height fixed for a building at this point by the zone ordinance, is 80 feet. The City Plan Commission does not, according to its secretary, oppose erection of this structure, in view of the fact that Grand avenue is an extra wide thoroughfare, and is not apt to become congested to any great extent.

Plans for the two buildings were considered for the first time by the City Plan Commission Friday, but action was deferred for another sitting, to be held shortly.

According to real estate agents and promoters, the new zoning law has greatly retarded building in both business and residential sections of St. Louis, discouraging many ambitious and meritorious projects. As a matter of fact they contend, it is an obstacle to the upbuilding of the city on a scale commensurate with its importance.

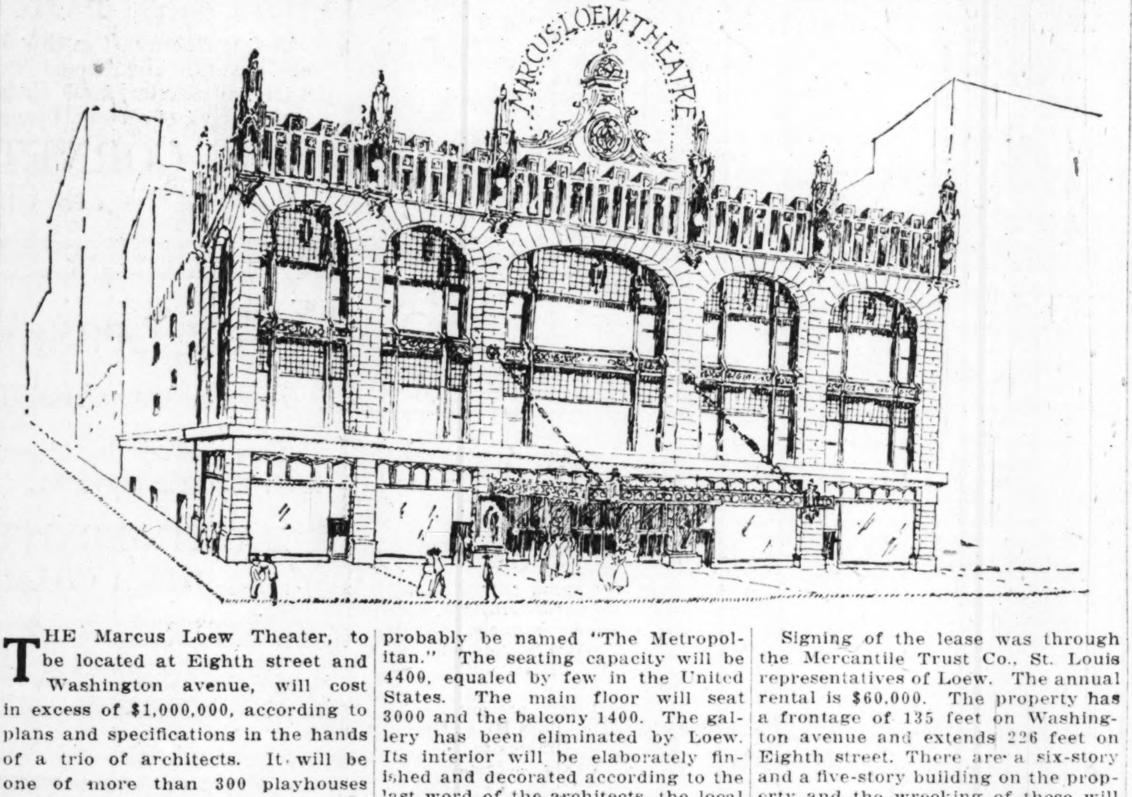
Record-Selling Operations.

Real estate operations in St. Louis are on an unprecedented scale. The feature of the week was a deal effected by the Mercantile Trust Co. whereby the Marcus Loew $30,000,000 corporation will erect a $1,000,000 theater at the northeast corner of Eighth street and Washington avenue. This involves the acquisition of nearly half a city block, embracing several ownerships represented by Cornet & Zeibig, the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co., and Samuel Bowman Co. The Mercantile Trust Co. represented the Loew interests.

It was announced during the week that the William Fox interests have plans for the erection here of a hotel-apartment building to contain two theaters and to cost $1,000,000. John Zanft, general manager for Fox, has been in St. Louis in this connection. Plans for the enterprise are being held pending selection of a site. It is not possible to say now, Zanft said, how many stories the building will be. He said that the main theater would have a seating capacity of 4,000 to 4,500, and that its attractions would not be limited to Fox productions. It is possible that vaudeville may be offered.

As showing the part the Mercantile Trust Co. is playing in the material development of the city, J. B. Moberly, its real estate officer, said yesterday that the company is financing new buildings, the cost of which for construction, exclusive of the ground, will aggregate nearly $8,000,000. These include the plants of the Bridge & Beach Manufacturing Co., on North Union boulevard, costing $700,000; the International Fur Exchange, at Fourth and Market streets, $700,000; the Stix-Baer & Fuller department store's addition at Seventh street and Washington avenue, $1,000,000; the 12-story addition for the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., Eleventh and Locust streets, $2,100,000; Ely-Walker addition, on Locust street, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, $400,000, and the United Drug Co.'s four buildings at Kings Highway and San Francisco avenue, $2,800,000. The figures do not include the cost of the ground which, in a number of instances, embraces several acres.

Loew Theater Here to Be One of Largest in United States



THE Marcus Loew Theater, to be located at Eighth street and Washington avenue, will cost in excess of $1,000,000, according to plans and specifications in the hands of a trio of architects. It will be one of more than 300 playhouses controlled by Loew.

The theater will be a duplicate of Loew's Metropolitan Theater, just completed in Brooklyn, and will probably be named "The Metropolitan." The seating capacity will be 4400, equaled by few in the United States. The main floor will seat 3000 and the balcony 1400. The gallery has been eliminated by Loew. Its interior will be elaborately finished and decorated according to the last word of the architects, the local one being Thomas P. Barnett. The mezzanine promenade, something new in St. Louis, is planned to be the finest in the country.

Signing of the lease was through the Mercantile Trust Co., St. Louis representatives of Loew. The annual rental is $60,000. The property has a frontage of 135 feet on Washington avenue and extends 226 feet on Eighth street. There are a six-story and a five-story building on the property and the wrecking of these will be commenced within a fortnight. A number of stores and offices, fronting on Washington avenue, are called for in the plans and specifications.

FAMOUS AND BARR COMPANY ADDS TWO FLOORS TO STORE

Expands Upward in Railway Exchange Building While Adding Adjacent Structures Through Tunnel Connections to Mammoth Plant.

The Famous and Barr Co. has been compelled by business expansion to add the seventh and eighth floors of the Railway Exchange Building to its department store, which now embraces the first six floors, basement and sub-basement of this building, which covers the block bounded by Sixth, Seventh, Locust and and Olive streets. The company also is to erect a seven-story building on Locust street, for additional space.

The expansion will give the Famous and Barr Co. 120,000 square feet of additional floor area in the Railway Exchange Building. The added floors are being vacated by tenants to make way for the department store, which thus will become the largest store of its type west of Chicago, its managers say.

Plans contemplate additional up and down escalators on the same floors, together with a large battery of high speed elevators to be incorporated in the present elevator service.

The Dolph Building, across the street at Seventh and Locust, is to have an additional building on the east, seven stories high and covering an area of 50x125 feet. This building, construction of which is to begin at once, will be used for stock rooms. It will be ready for occupancy by fall. The original Dolph Building is also owned and controlled by the Famous and Barr Co., the greater part of it being used for stock purposes. These buildings will all connect with the main store through the tunnel under Locust street. With the additional building, it will mean 125x125 feet on Locust street connecting with the warehouse, receiving and delivery station on St. Charles street, which is 10 stories high and 60x150 feet in ground area.

The acquisition of this additional space on the north side of Locust street means that the entire western half of the block between Locust and St. Charles streets on Seventh, except the small buildings on the corner of Seventh and St. Charles streets, becomes part of the Famous and Barr Co. plant.

With the added Locust street space it is practicable to remove from the main building work and stock rooms, thus increasing the salesroom space of the big store about 45 per cent.

BIG SPECIAL SALE OF NORTH PARKVIEW LOTS

The Mound City Trust Co. has been appointed agent for the sale of the remaining unsold lots in North Parkview addition .

The property is on the north side of Delmar boulevard, only a short distance West of Skinker road. It was laid out by the Southern Realty & Finincial Co., under the supervision of J. T. Dodds, real estate officer of the Mound City Trust Co. and former City Surveyor. It is being improved with apartment houses and homes of a high type.

A big special sale of the lots will be launched this week, Dodds announces.

ISRAELS ADD WASHINGTON TO THEIR CHAIN OF LOCAL HOTELS

Negotiations for a 25-year lease of the Washington Hotel, King's highway and Washington boulevard, to David D. and Harry L. Israel, proprietors of several other hotels, have been practically completed, and David Israel announced last night that he expected to assume control of the property March 1. An option to buy the building for $375,000 has been signed, and Israel said he plans to exercise the option shortly. J. J. Epstein effected the transaction.

The lease is at an annual rental of $30,000. The capital stock of the Boulevard Hotel Co., which operates the hotel, amounting to $75,000, will be taken over by the Israels.

Isreal said he contemplated the expenditure of $50,000 on new furnishings for the hotel.

SOUTHAMPTON CLEANUP SALE TO OPEN TODAY

The Olive Street Terrace Realty Company announces today the opening of its clean-up sale of lots in Southampton.

Cyrus Crane Willmore, general manager of the company, said: "I believe that right now is the best time that St. Louis has ever known for making money in real estate. Real estate is the only thing which has not yet been increased in price, and we know from past history that land is certain to rise in the same proportion to the other necessaries of life. With a million population, with hundreds of new industries coming to St. Louis, which will attract thousands of new people, I believe that St. Louis is just in the beginning of a tremendous real estate boom.

10-STORY BUILDING FOR SIXTEENTH AND WASHINGTON

Leases were signed during the past week whereby the Ziegler-Frankel Manufacturing Co. and the Clark Leather Co. will occupy a 10-story building at the northeast corner of Sixteenth street and Washington avenue, to be erected by Ambassador D. R. Francis. The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., represented Ziegler-Frankel Manufacturing Co., and Isaac T. Cook represented the Clark Leather Co. and Gov. Francis in the transaction.

The lease to both lessees is for a term of 10 years. The aggregate rental will amount to nearly $700,000. The Clark Leather Co. is an old established concern now located at the northwest corner of Sixteenth and Washington.

INDUSTRIAL AND GENERAL MOTOR PARKS LOTS BEING RAPIDLY SOLD

All the lots in Industrial Park, recently purchased for $65,000 by a syndicate represented by Prettyman & Knobeloch, have been sold, except four.

The tract comprises 48 lots. It is on the North side of Natural Bridge road, extending from Darby street on the East to the Jennings road on the West. It is located just West of Homesites.

Prettyman & Knobeloch report the sale of 26 lots in General Motors Park, on the South side of Natural Bridge road, extending West from Goodfellow avenue. Seventy-four lots in all in this addition have been sold by these agents.

GROVES AND ASSOCIATES BUY UNSOLD HAMPTON PARK LOTS

E. W. Groves Jr. and his associates have purchased all the unsold ground in Hampton Park on the south side of Clayton road, comprising 39 lots ranging from two to three acres.

The sale was effected by John S. Carter & Co. All the improvements are made, including gravel roads, sewers, old turf and shade trees.

It is the intention of the purchaser to improve Hampton Park further by resurfacing the roads and in beautifying the park. A large outlay has been made for this.

Taxicab Company Leases Space.

Eugene J. Altheimer announces having leased 3314 Pine street to the Taxicab Trust Estate, better known as the Yellow Taxicab Company. Expansion of business created need for more space. The building is fireproof and contains nearly 10,000 square feet. The lessee was K. N. Horwitz.

NOW IS THE TIME

TO MAKE MONEY $ IN REAL ESTATE

St. Louis real estate is selling for half its actual value, because:

1—With a million population real estate is worth double what it was ten years ago, but on account of war conditions, prices have not yet been marked up.

2—Wages have doubled—wheat, sugar, meat—everything else has doubled. History shows that real estate eventually rises on a par with other things.

3—Hundreds of new industries are bringing thousands of new people to St. Louis.

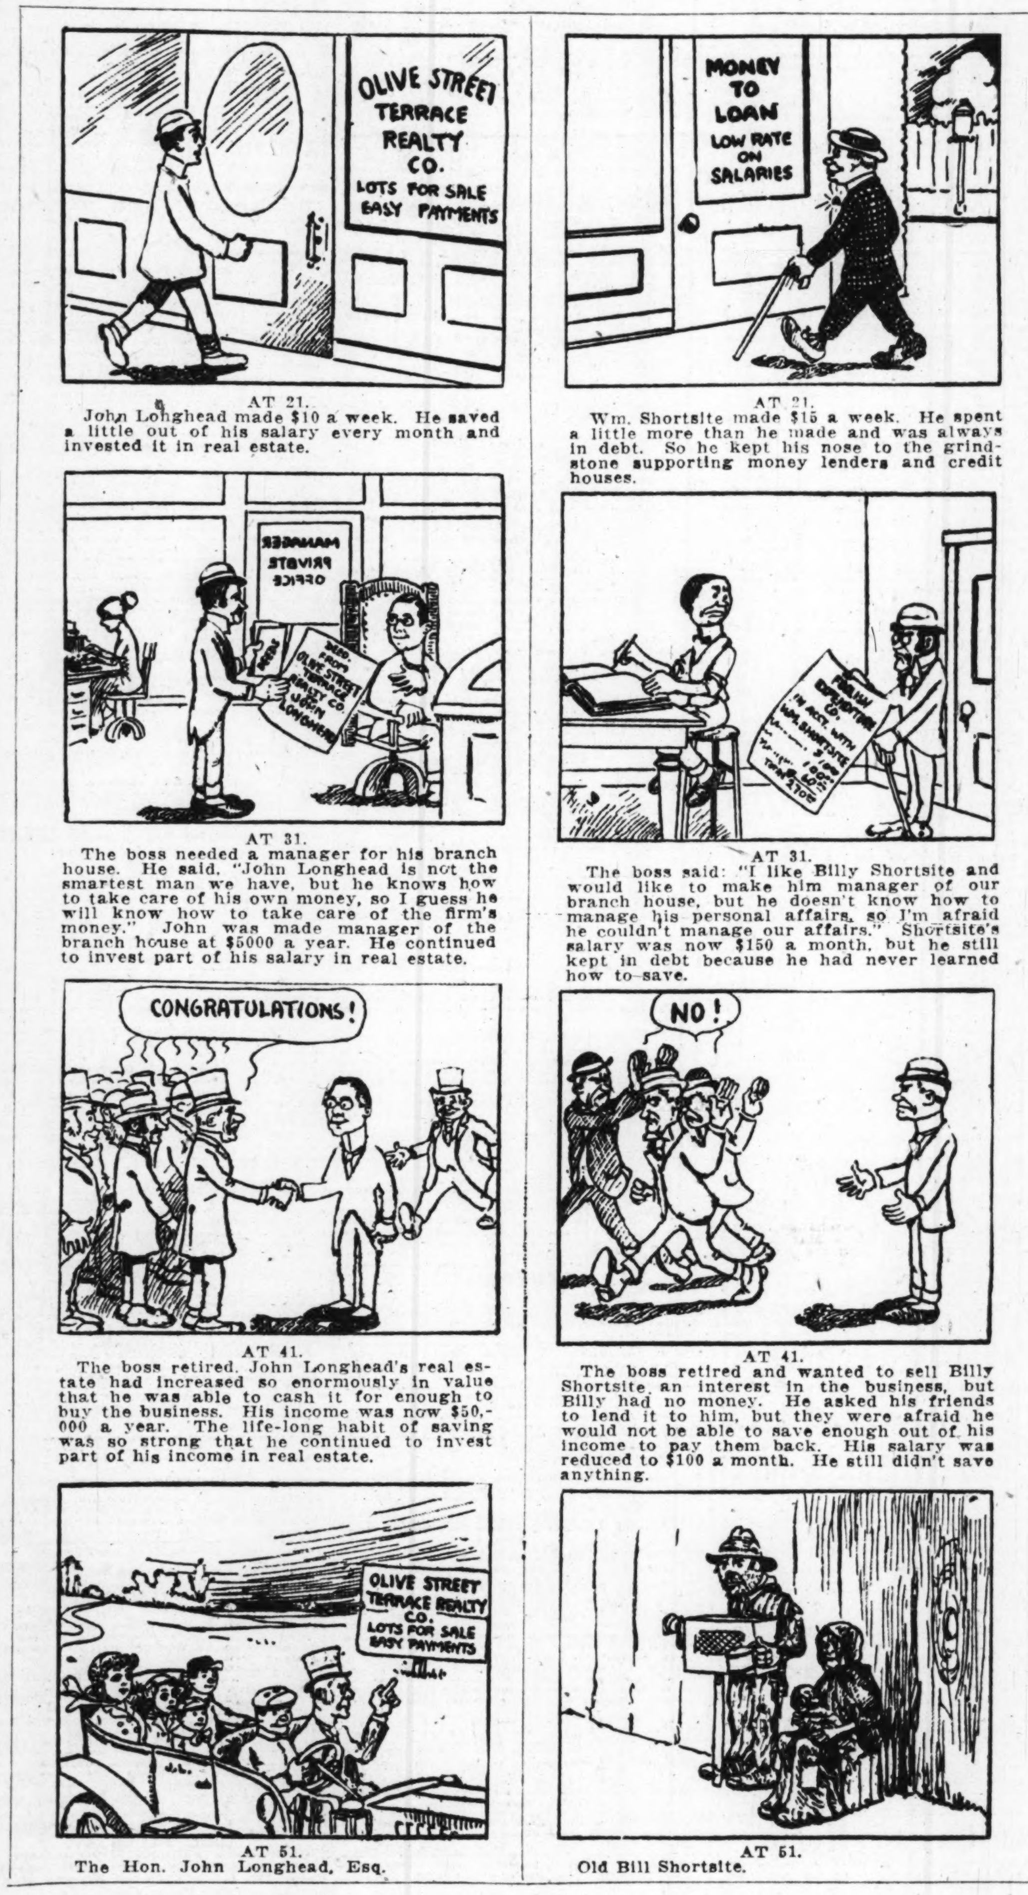
Shrewd investors are buying vacant property. The big real estate boom is starting.

Where to Buy

Buy in a section that has good street car facilities and is already developed and built up to an extent that will certainly attract home builders. We have many different subdivisions in different sections, but we believe SOUTHAMPTON is the place to buy now. 400 homes have already been built in Southampton. It has good schools, churches, stores, improvements, etc., and the Southampton car line runs direct from Broadway and Olive to the center of Southampton.

Location and Prices

Southampton is 4300 south on King's highway, between King's highway and the new Francis City Park. We bought the property at an amazingly low price because of the war, it could not be bought and improved for double the price now—and we are going to sell it quickly at low prices. Our customers will make the big profits. We will make a fair profit and hundreds of new customers. You can buy a lot in Southampton for one-fourth the price asked for other property located the same distance from Broadway and Olive. Terms to suit you.



OLIVE STREET TERRACE REALTY CO. LOTS FOR SALE EASY PAYMENTS

AT 21.
John Longhead made $10 a week. He saved a little out of his salary every month and invested it in real estate.

AT 21.
Wm. Shortsite made $15 a week. He spent a little more than he made and was always in debt. So he kept his nose to the grindstone supporting money lenders and credit houses.

AT 31.
The boss needed a manager for his branch house. He said. "John Longhead is not the smartest man we have, but he knows how to take care of his own money, so I guess he will know how to take care of the firm's money." John was made manager of the branch house at $5000 a year. He continued to invest part of his salary in real estate.

AT 31.
The boss said: "I like Billy Shortsite and would like to make him manager of our branch house, but he doesn't know how to manage his personal affairs, so I'm afraid he couldn't manage our affairs." Shortsite's salary was now $150 a month, but he still kept in debt because he had never learned how to save.

AT 41.
The boss retired. John Longhead's real estate had increased so enormously in value that he was able to cash it for enough to buy the business. His income was now $50,000 a year. The life-long habit of saving was so strong that he continued to invest part of his income in real estate.

AT 41.
The boss retired and wanted to sell Billy Shortsite an interest in the business, but Billy had no money. He asked his friends to lend it to him, but they were afraid he would not be able to save enough out of his income to pay them back. His salary was reduced to $100 a month. He still didn't save anything.

AT 51.
The Hon. John Longhead, Esq.

AT 51.
Old Bill Shortsite.

A few people who are working for salaries now, are going to be independently rich five years from today. A little foresight—a few dollars a month and the unusual opportunities in real estate at this time offer a safe and certain combination for accumulating a competence.

General Motors Property

FACTS

Last September we offered the corner of Natural Bridge and Arlington to a client for $5,000 and he asked a real estate man if he should buy it. The real estate man said it was worth only $3,000. We sold it for $8,000. The man we sold it to received $15,000 for it. It sold last week for $30,000, and is now for sale at $36,000, all of which shows that even most of the old line real estate men are still asleep.

We still have a few business lots on Natural Bridge that are priced right and purchasers will more than double their money.

There will be more money made in General Motors property than in any other part of the city.

If you are interested and really want to make money, come out today.

We will be at Natural Bridge and Goodfellow all day.

BIG MONEY IN EARLY TABLE GRAPES
SMALL INVESTMENT—HEAVY YIELDS
HIGH PRICES—QUICK RETURNS.

At Santa Rosa, Florida, they are raising some of the finest Early Table Grapes in the world—big, rich, luscious grapes of exceptional flavor. They are ripe and ready for market before similar grapes raised in California, therefore, they command top notch prices. In 1919 the same kind of grapes sold for 20c per pound wholesale. It is conservatively estimated that a fully developed vineyard such as are grown at Santa Rosa will yield more than 8000 pounds of grapes per acre, which at 20c per pound amounts to $1600. These grapes begin to bear the second year and will last practically a lifetime. Demand unlimited. Prohibition will not affect this industry. No special skill or experience required. Grape failures very rare. Safest, most secure and profitable investment we know of.

Santa Rosa is an ideal place to live. Finest all-the-year-round climate in United States. Salt water on two sides. Sunstrokes unknown. Very healthful spot. Good, pure drinking water. Best soil in Florida. Two and three crops per year. Plenty of rainfall. Irrigation unnecessary. Good schools, churches, stores, hotel and northern people—no negroes. Superb boating, bathing, fishing and hunting. Lumber at wholesale prices. Land prices still low and good 10-acre tracts available for those who act quick. Beautiful illustrated literature, maps, etc., sent free.

Also 40-acre tracts and up for General Farming, Stock Raising, etc., and Beautiful Winter Home Lots with Water Frontage. Address Santa Rosa Plantation Co., 1067, 537 S. Dearborn st., Chicago. (c99)

These are unusual times for small investors to profit by the great oil discoveries in the Mid Continent, Texas and Burkburnett fields. Each issue of the Oil Press is brimful of valuable news about the oil industry and recent successes. More than 200,000 readers a month—thousands have made money through its advice. A late issue, together with the "markets" containing quotations on listed and unlisted stocks, as well as a colored map showing the Kansas and Oklahoma oil fields, free on request. WE HAVE "Released" for the "First Run" hundreds of Suits and Overcoats; buy now, play the "Short Bank Roll" against the "long green." You might have "short-comings," but oh, boy, on that "long-goings" if you are "short on the bank roll." We are long on clothes-goings. Dress up. Look the part. Buy our uncalled-for clothes; suits that will "dress you up." There is no time in life that you get so "down and out" that you can't get into the "Land of Beginning Again." "Start anew;" we "are calling you" with our 5 large stores, 120 feet filled with "bargains galore." If we don't get your money for clothes here, you don't spend your "dough" right. ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

SPIRIT.—Prof. James Hyslop's address is 519 W. 149th st., New York City.

S. M.—If the tenants moved owing a month's rent, you can bring suit for the rent in a Justice of Peace Court.

J. G. WENTSCH.—Perhaps some coin or curio dealer would be interested in the medal in your possession.

H. J. M.—Taxes paid during 1919 on amusements, clothing, soft drinks, etc., are deductable from your income.

HISTORY.—We would advise you to see some history of New Jersey in the Public Library for information regarding the suffrage laws of that State.

JACK.—You can do nothing to him for posing as a single man if his relations with the girl were proper. You might mention the matter to the man's wife.

WANNANO.—You could learn to play double solitaire. Why do you not go to the library and get a book explaining different card games? Our space does not permit the explanation.

JOHN.—You can find out whether those counties had court houses in the early 60s by writing to the Clerks of the Circuit Courts in each county. They will also tell you where the records of land sales were kept in those days.

H. J. W.—We do not know of any state that has a law prohibiting business houses or firms from requiring references from prospective employes. We are not, however, informed as to the laws of all the states. Let us know what state you have in mind, if any.

PEGGY.—If first cousins are married in a state permitting such marriages and afterwards return to a state which does not allow such marriages, they are considered legally married and cannot be separated or their marriage annuled for that cause.

R. S.—If your son turns over his income to you for support of the family you should add it to your income and claim a $200 exemption. If he does not you do not need to include it, but you cannot claim an exemption of $200 for him. He does not have to make out a separate return since his income does not exceed $1000.

THANKS.—If you are the administrator and wish information regarding the distribution of the estate go to the Clerk of the Probate Court, at the Court House, Fourth street entrance. The division of the property depends on whether the deceased left a widow or any children, or whether his brothers or sisters have any children, etc.

GRATEFUL.—We think it is proper for you to safeguard the rights of your child. As regards the insurance, if you should die first, your husband could then name his children by his former marriage as beneficiaries. If the money in the bank has been deposited in your husband's name, and he should die without a will, you would get a certain amount of it and the three children would share equally in the remainder. Why not draw out your share of the money and put it in your name, then will it to your child?

HANDY ANDY.—You have been misinformed as to the income tax exemptions. A married man is given $2000 exemption with $200 additional for each child. The fact that a man is a minor does not relieve him from paying the income tax. In your case since your son turns over his earnings to you for the family, his income and yours should be lumped together, and you should include his income with yours in your return. If the total income was $2900 last year, you have to pay a tax on the $300 over your $2600 exemption, for five people, that is $12.

SCHOOL GIRL.—St. Valentine is a little known saint and martyr of the third century, whose day is kept on Feb. 14. He is said to have cured the blind daughter of a certain Asterius, who had been charged by the Emperor Claudius to win him back to paganism, but who was thus converted to Christianity. Valentine was accordingly imprisoned, tortured and finally beheaded. It is impossible to trace any connection between his story and the celebration afterwards connected with his day. It has been suggested that this may be a survival, with a Christian sanction, of the ancient Roman festival of the Lupercalia, celebrated in the month of February, at which it was customary to put the names of young women into a box, from which they were drawn by the men as chance directed. A custom exactly similar to this was common in England and France for centuries. At one time it was customary for both sexes to make presents to each other, but afterwards the obligation was restricted to young men, who were supposed to remain faithful for the entire year to the service of their "Valentines."

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(The answers given under this heading are prepared by a physician of standing, who for ethical reasons does not permit the use of his name, but who is willing to make this contribution to public health.)

C. R. T.—The electricity would not hurt your system. The use of the electrical apparatus would not stimulate hair growth. It would not make hair hypertrify on the face, nor would it draw the blood supply to other parts of the body.

FISH.—You may have adenoids, but your trouble is not caused by them. The curious feeling in your throat and the shortness of breath when you get up to talk are nervousness and can be eliminated by developing self control.

COLD.—For your catarrh you, no doubt, need local treatment, but you may try washing out the nose with the following: Equal parts of salt, sugar and baking soda. Mix well and of this mixture use one teaspoonful to a pint of water. It is best used in a nose douche. Afterwards spray the nose well with some bland oil.

C. E. F.—Psoriasis, like many diseases of the skin, is an expression of trouble elsewhere than in the skin. Derangements elsewhere in the body, if corrected, often corrects the skin malady. So you may be on the right track in your intestinal treatment. If you are improving, keep up your treatment, for that is what you are striving for.

A WORRIED MOTHER.—Home remedies are dangerous things in cases of this kind where future deafness may be the penalty. If you cannot get proper attention in your town arrange to bring your child to the city where such attention can be secured. The Missouri auto licenses for last year were blue and white.

AN OLD READER.—Persons suffering from indigestion should eat only the most easily digestible foods and those which provide the most nourishment in the smallest quantity, as eggs, milk, broths, ice cream. Mealy foods such as potatoes, rice, peas, should be avoided, also fats and pastry. In very delicate cases predigested foods are often used.

S. H.—Perhaps you work rather too hard during the day and the main strain comes on the limbs. Try rubbing thoroughly with a good liniment. If this does not relieve, have your druggist put up a solution of bromide of potash, 15 grains to the dose. Take a dose every 4 hours or less often as you improve. Apply to the Central Institute for the Deaf, 818 S. King's highway, about your hearing.

A LARGER SALARY.
YOU WANT MORE MONEY.
It's yours if you'll put in that extra hour or two each day—in recreation. The handy pocket sample—the big commission getter makes your salary what you want it—no limit except the limit you set for yourself. One man's side line commissions one week over $400. Everything furnished free to work with—we even show you how to sell it—you learn that in 10 minutes. Write us—you'll at least have the satisfaction of knowing that you have not passed up a big spare-time money-maker without investigation. C. E. Packard USED VEHICLE DEPARTMENT

PASSENGER CAR SECTION

REMEMBER THIS

We are not in the Secondhand Car business.

There is a vast difference between a reliable firm who sells the Used Cars taken in as part payment on the sale of a new car and a firm who deals in Used Cars only.

One, the new car firm, only sells the used cars for their customers' benefit, and makes no profit on the sale of the used car.

The other firm buys the secondhand cars as low as they can, does as little work as possible and asks as high a price as they can get.

Every car we sell has gone through our shop and in buying from us you are dealing with an old established and reliable firm, one who makes no misrepresentations.

Remember
"A High-Grade Car Is ALWAYS a High-Grade Car."
And
Paint covers a multitude of sins.

— OUR POLICY —

We paint the car for you after you purchase same.

A partial list of our cars: Packard Twin-Six Cars, 7-Passenger, from $1500 up to $4250—every one in fine appearance and in first-class mechanical condition; also a few other beautiful cars as follows:

LEGAL TANGLES OF DRUIDS MAKE COMPLICATIONS IN OPERA, "NORMA"

By RING W. LARDNER.

TO THE EDITOR:

As you probably read in the papers they's been a lot of flu around here as well as elsewheres but the only bacillicicici witch has bit me so far is the grand opera germ that costs just as much but maybe don't kill as many people though at lease 1 and sometimes 2 or 3 of the performers dies in the last act.

Well I told my friends in last wks. issue about seeing Geraldine in poor Butterfly down to the opera house in N. Y. city so the other day the Mrs. made the remark that the Chicago opera singers was at the Lexington theater so on acct. of us being from old Chi you might say why we figured it wasn't no more than fair to go there 1 night so I looked in the paper seen where Rosie Raisa was going to play Norma and she is the best soprano singer I ever heard outside of maybe Nora Bayes so I said leave us go and hear her.

So 1 day I couldn't help from being in N. Y. city so I went up to the Lexington theater and halled out a roll of bills that would choke a gnat.

"Well" says the bird in the box office "it certainly seems good to see a guy from old Chi. How are you?"

"I wonder if you could fix me up for next Tuesday night for Rosie in Norma" I said sticking my roll back in my thimble.

"You bet I can" said the bird "and if it wasn't going to be a sell out I wouldn't take your money."

I just set this down to show how I stand with birds from old Chi. He took my money but he wouldn't if he could help it.

Well Tuesday night finely come and sure enough it was a sell out and besides every seat being full they was 2 or 3 100 persons parked on their dogs and you had to houdini your way to your seat. Well 1 of the N. Y. music critics said the next A. M. that it was the 1st time Norma had been sang for 140 yrs. except in Chicago witch of coarse don't count and the last time it was really sang was by Lilli Lemon in N. Y. city the yr. Lord Cornwallis run for president so any way its a old old story and I guess I may as well tell you what its about.

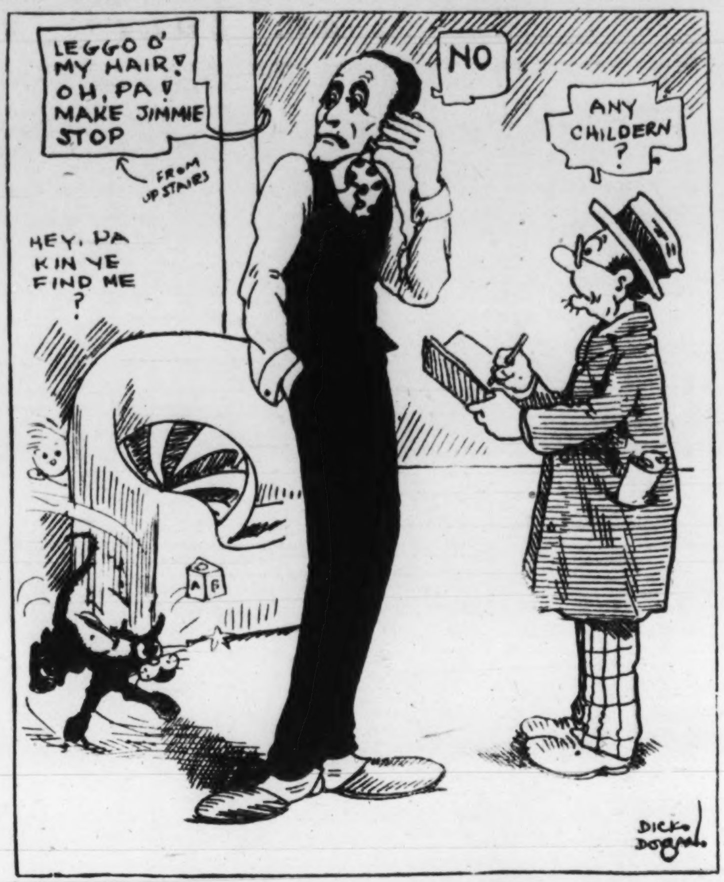
Well it seems that in the old days when Gallia was omnes divisa in partes tres they was a Elks lodge over there witch they called the druids and the minute you joined them you was exempt from military service and you didn't half to pay no taxes and I guess they didn't have no trouble increaseing their memberships. The only draw backs was that you had to worship a oak tree and live on acorns and you couldn't have no children witch is why pretty near everybody in the show was old geezers with beards.

Well in this show it start out that the wops have knocked the Galls for a touchdown and gool and they's a bird named Pollio from Roma who has been placed in charge of the druids and it seems like him and Norma who is arch queen of the druids has been married or something and any way they have got 2 children 1 of them 7 yrs. old and the other 9 and on acct. of it being vs. the druids laws to have children, Rosie has kept hers a secret and I will half to slip it to her for so doing, as personly I know something about children and I will give anybody $900.00 that can keep them a secret 9 minutes to say nothing about 9 yrs.

But I seem to of strayed off the plot. It seems that this wop Pollio finely got stuck on another gal Myrna Sharlow and she modestly owns the same up to Rosie so Rosie cusses her but Myrna says she won't have nothing to do with the bird so the show goes on.

Well I will half to give you some more of the by laws of the druids before I can finish this story. (Laughter and cheers.) Well it seems like the druids is like all other grand opera stars and when they want to express deep emotion they hit themself with the flat of their hand and they usually pick out a place where it won't hurt namely the top of the head. But that has nothing to do with this story.

Well in atto duo when Rosie found out that Pollio was now stuck on Myrna for some reason or another she decided to kill her children and I have often felt the same way but just couldn't do it when it come to the pinch and neither could she so they was no kids murdered in the opera but it seems that they was another law of the druids that if you done something wrong like haveing children you had to kill yourself and they always had a fire going so you could step into it and burn up so in the last act Rosie owns up to her old man that she has got a couple kids and her and the father of her children steps into the fire and down comes the asbestos curtain so the guys that have paid $6.60 won't be burnt also and the next idear is to run out and get a taxi for the G. C. depot and try and make the 11:30 train.



LEGGO O' MY HAIR! OH, PA! MAKE JIMMIE STOP
FROM UP STAIRS
NO
HEY, PA KIN YE FIND ME ?
DICK DORGAN

"I'll give anyone $900 that can keep them a secret for 9 minutes to say nothing of 9 yrs."

I am afraid I haven't described this opera very good but will say its a tough one to tell about and no wonder it takes 140 yrs. to get ready for it and in regards to the music by Bellini why all as I can say is that he stole 3 of his best tunes from Nearer To Thee and So Long Letty and the Mocking Bird.

Next wk. dear editor I will try and not write no more opera stuff unless some bird gives me a pair of tickets without holding out his hand like they was a aftermath or something.

ON A MILK DIET

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE

FOR me milk has a very uninteresting taste. Moreover, it seems to explode inside me, like a hand grenade. I never see a baby busily transferring the contents of a bottle to his stomach that I do not hang around a few minutes to see if something terrible isn't going to happen. And when it doesn't happen, and the baby turns over in his crib or carriage and goes tranquilly to sleep, my admiration for him is unbounded. I am as one who has seen a magician perform a mystifying feat.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding, the head of the family decided that milk was good for me. She had read somewhere that milk is fattening. She thought, at my age, it was time I was storing up a little fat for an emergency.

"You could live on it for a week or two," she said, "in case of pneumonia, typhoid or anything. The way you leave off your rubbers and eat at those quick lunch places you might get anything."

I demurred, with the usual results. All my objections were overborne. She had been studying the question, and she had all the arguments.

I was to drink a quart of milk a day for five days and see if it didn't help me.

Two days was enough. The milk didn't help me. It merely set, like cement, within me. I made a plaintive outcry for permission to quit.

The Head of the Family said, of course, if I had so little will power as to give a thing up before I had tried it, I couldn't expect any results. But she consulted her authorities and came back to her experiments.

"I don't blame you," she said, sympathetically. "You have one of those systems that can't take milk without lime water. You just go right ahead and drink all you want now. I've put a tablespoonful of lime water into every pint."

I went ahead. The lime water gave the milk a surprising flavor. It didn't taste like milk and it didn't taste like lime water. It tasted like no other beverage on earth—a fact for which the users of other beverages should be grateful to their dying days.

Furthermore, it didn't seem to have any better results than it did when I took it straight. It only tasted worse. The same adamant lump waxed within me as I drank it. New varieties of pains, whose existence I had never before suspected, appeared in my chest and seared my solar plexus. I kept it up for a day or two, and quit.

My first aid again consulted her magazines.

"I know now," she cried joyously. "Lime water isn't good for some people at all. In fact, it is practically poison to them. What you want to take with your milk is vichy. Just fill a glass half full, then siphon vichy in it, and it makes a drink that is delightful as well as nourishing. It says so right here in this magazine.

I didn't look at the magazine. I wasted the time I might have done so in a vain effort to abandon milk in all forms forever. But she seemed so pathetically disappointed that I relented and tried the vichy.

Different blends act differently on the human system. Salt, as the schoolboy pointed out, is composed of a combination of two deadly poisons. Milk and vichy taken separately I could partake of for at least two days without fatal results. Together they nearly got me after one draught.

The doctor arrived in the nick of time, and I was saved. Appealed to for some way out, he said:

"The trouble with these milk cures is that they are taken with the regular dietary. To get the best results you must drink milk alone—nothing but milk, and great quantities of it. There is a saniatrium over in Jersey where alcoholics and nervous wrecks are"——

"I protested indignantly that I was neither an alcoholic nor a nervous wreck.

"Well, anyway," he said, "try milk as an exclusive diet for a while."

I did. Inside of a week I would have walked up to the most placid cow that ever chewed her cud and cudgelled her to death. I had hard work to keep from throwing stones at milk wagons or breaking the plateglass windows of the dairy lunch places.

But, marvelously enough, I was getting fat. My weight increased day by day. My cheeks grew puffy. My friends began to shivering, splitting columns of green, silver, gold, when complete bewilderment seizes him. He flies above the water with tremendous force and immediately sinks again. From a great depth this a very serious accident.

"There are many mishaps that may happen to a man, due to the nature of his work. A diver working on Hell Gate Bridge, blasting with a stick of dynamite, gave the signal to fire, when, instead of being properly placed, the charge was hanging to his heel."

"He's crazy yet!" put in Crilley.

But to the men, apparently, who love diving, all these risks mean little. They know the bottom of the ocean as others know their favorite haunts. They know sunken ships as a motorist knows his signboard. The bottoms of the oceans of the world are their playgrounds. The fish make amusing companions. Sharks and fierce baracoodas watch eagerly, frightened by the bubbling exhaust from the diving suit, but always ready to strike if the unseeing moment comes. Pikes kiss the face plate, huge lobsters rear up like a prizefighter and offer fight, taking a bit of a finger away as trophy. For the diver the sea is a country to be explored, filled with vanished treasure that is only waiting to be reclaimed.

Crilley has left the navy now and is working with Inventor Lake on his submarine salvaging plans. He knows by heart, it seems, every wreck that has gone down for years. His brain seems to be a regular Lloyd's shipping bureau. He speaks the names of vanished ships lovingly. He knows where they lie, and the probable condition of the sea floor. He knows how many feet of water presses down from above on them and what was the wealth of their cargoes.

"Why, around Oct. 8, 1916, the German U-53 sank, near Nantucket, the Strathdean, the West Point, the Stephano, the Blomersdijk and the Christian Knauden, a total of 20,687 tons. And they're all down still, and they're all salvageable. And you know about the old treasure ship filled with gold that's sunk in Hell Gate"——

"Is the Lusitania salvageable, Frank?" asked O'Hagin.

"Sure," said that intrepid diver. "She's only in 240 feet of water!"

"Well," said O'Hagin, "some day maybe we'll get her. And next summer when the weather's fine, let's take a boat, you and I, Frank, and sail down to the Virginias. Not far from there the pretty Marida sank in 1906. She was filled with silver bullion—a treasure ship she was, indeed—and all we need is an airplane to go up high and look down on a nice, smooth day, and spot her, then you and I'll bring up the stuff, Frank! That'll be an adventure worth having!"

And no one who has kept pace with the new inventions for safeguarding the workmen while engaged in their salvaging operations doubts that much of the treasure sent to "Davy Jones' locker" by the insensate Huns, will be recovered and restored to its owners, with record rewards for the explorers who make such restitution possible.

Doctors Condemn Big Round Specs

BIG, round spectacle lenses were condemned at the recent meeting of the American Medical Association, on the grounds that they are too large and too widely separated and that they turn in their frames.

The New York Medical Journal says the latter is the really serious defect. The reason is that the majority of spectacles are made to correct a certain degree of astigmatism. The doctor carefully and accurately measures the amount and axis of this and prescribes glasses accordingly. His prescription may call for a lens for the right eye that is more powerful in the upper half than it is in the lower. The optician makes the glasses accordingly and springs them into their frames. They are held only by friction. Sometimes cement is put in, but this soon loses its power.

Both oculist and optician warn the wearer to be careful not to turn the lens in its frame when wiping grease and dust from it. But the person is careless and sooner or later the lens is sure to be turned a little.

"Suppose they are rotated 15 degrees, when placed in front of the eyes the wearer has his own astigmatism uncorrected and has in addition an equal amount of artificially produced astigmatism at another axis. If the rotation is exactly 90 degrees his astigmatism is practically doubled."

The remedy is either oval lenses or a key inside the frame that will fit into a slot in the lens. Several oculists have ordered such glasses, but they say that no optician will make them.

Europe's Spiritualism Craze at Amazing Peak

the question. In the same way Prof. Henslow has shown that he obtained a reproduction of a page of the Codex Alexandrinus, a document which never left the British Museum.

"There are other spirit photographs which would appear to be real photographs in the ordinary sense, the camera recording that which the human eye cannot see. The more a man looks into this subject the more he will find that it deserves worthy study and not unworthy sneers."

With such distinguished advocates as Sir Oliver Lodge, Sir Conan Doyle and Prof. Henslow so conspicuously in the forefront of the psychic movement, small wonder is expressed that London and other parts of England continue to search for messages from departed persons and that the range is growing wider. That fakers who are ever on the alert to annex easy wealth should take advantage of such a state of mind to devise ways to get money from people under such a stress is one of the corollaries of an unprecedented situation. But the outstanding fact is that the spirit wave goes on, despite all the ridicule from the skeptical and the emphatic remonstrance of the dignitaries of the church.

London newspapers of high character and standing have kept pace with the psychic trend and have given much space to discussion of the happenings reported from the seances of the mediums and the ouija board revelations. Levity has been injected into these controversies from the ranks of the skeptically inclined, but the newspapers which have opened their columns to the subject have shown a disposition to handle it in a more serious vein. It is assumed that the prominence of some of the more active spiritualists, who actually believe what they have seen and heard in these mediumistic circles, warrants this tone.

Boy Writes a Thriller and Gets It Published

stalwart juvenile band on the scene in time to rescue him. Other chapters begin:

"Returning to the boys who started for town."

"Returning to the cabin in the woods."

"Going back to Bob and Fred."

In the same manner, let us go back to the young author, as he appeared to a Chicago interviewer a few days ago:

"Below the knickerbockers, in the order given, were one elastic garter, made serviceable by a safety pin and a system of knots; two ribbed black stockings (slipping), and a pair of marvelously battered shoes, one set Penrodishly on the other in the presence of visitors. The 18 inches above the knickers were occupied by a coat bursting with boy, a sketchily arranged tie and the wide smile, the charming eyes and the admirable forehead which (by the grace of George Ade, Irvin Cobb and the publishers) are to become famous as the features of 'the great boy novelist.'

"Mr. Horace Atkisson Wade awaited interviewing.

"His interest, however, was divided in the ratio of 1 to 99 between the interview and the movie man's camera. His eyes bulged at the prospect of appearing in the movies, until he was recalled to authorship by 'How did you come to write novels?'

"The boy vanished. A languid hand went to the Wade forehead in an astonishing 'literary' gesture, a sigh escaped the Wade breast and a self-conscious voice recited:

"'I have always been interested in writing. My first book was written at the age of 6, but was lost. I have read a great deal, but my ideas just come to me—inspiration, I suppose.'

"Then, under cover of a demonstration by brother Edward, two years older, the boy Horace succeeded the novelist Wade. While Edward displayed a home-made electric flashlight as evidence of his own genius, Horace assailed the movie man:

"'Say, is turning that crank all you have to do? What kind of a picture are you going to take? Will it be in theaters? Theaters around here? Do you take many pictures? Say, is it hard to run that?'

"Ruthless interviewing was necessary in the presence of that camera, but at last most of the important facts about the Wade talent were revealed. Once started, indeed, Horace emitted whole galleys of 'literary short' like a self-operating press bureau. Thus:

I began "In the Shadow of Great Peril" at the age of 9 and finished it a little after my eleventh birthday.

My favorite author is Dickens. I think his "Christmas Carol" is the best thing I ever read. Next to Dickens I like Kipling best.

I do most of my writing on Saturdays and Sundays, and when I am alone in the house.

I am going to dedicate "The Heavy Hand of Justice" to Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Cobb. My third book will be dedicated to my mother, so I am trying to make it my best.

I sometimes use a typewriter, but I prefer a pen or pencil.

I have a Teddy Bear for a mascot. His name is Theodore Roosevelt Wade. He always looks at what I write, and shakes his head if he doesn't like it.

I——

"But the movie man was ready. While the eager Horace rehearsed the simulation of composition he was to offer for the screen, Mrs. Wade proudly produced the original manuscript of 'In the Shadow of Great Peril.' It was unmistakably Horace to the last period—all in Seventh-A Palmer system.

"'One day,' said Mrs. Wade, searching for the passage, 'he wrote 5000 words.'

"Horace followed the movie man outdoors, to be photographed at play.

"These aren't very good skates,' he confided on the way.

"The skates did very well, though, after they had been fastened on with a screw tightener dug from a pocket which contained such significant articles as bits of string, nails, a jack knife, chalk and treasures unexposed. Horace skated back and forth before the camera, under envious eyes of several hundred schoolmates.

"The climax was reached when the movie man invaded the boy author's classroom in the William W. Carter School and photographed him at his desk, under the proud gaze of a proud teacher. And when that movie appears at a theater in the vicinity of Fifty-eighth and Michigan!

"Well, the authorship in long trousers commands no royalties comparable to the glories of that day.

"'What are your plans for Horace?' Mrs. Wade was asked.

"'We are,' she said, 'going to give him the best possible education in English, at any sacrifice. We feel that he is an unusual boy.'

"Horace's immediate future, however, is a day on public display in the retail store of a Chicago publishing house. Established in an alcove set aside for him, he will meet the world, explaining 'In the Shadow of Great Peril.'"

Speaking of Almost Hopeless Handicaps - And Yet Making a Success of Life -

John LaCari, hopelessly injured in fall from scaffold in World's Fair grounds, starts in business with $12 capital—Now owns and conducts successful hardware store—Customers write on blackboard names of things they wish to purchase and at shopkeeper's direction help themselves — His view of life now cheerful and philosophic -o- -o- -o-

LET those who despair in adversity and hopelessly surrender to ill-health read the story of John LaCari, invalid and hardware dealer at 3225 Olive street, and take heart. Although bound to a wheel chair and quite deaf, John LaCari in poverty surmounted a multiplicity of disheartening circumstances and founded what is today a prosperous business, which is conducted with the help of his good customers, who make known their wants by writing on a blackboard, and at LaCari's direction help themselves to his wares.

John LaCari was born in Rome, Italy, in 1870, and when still a child was brought to this country by his parents, who settled in New York. He grew up, receiving his education from the school of life, learning to speak the English language. LaCari became an interior decorator, and when the United States went to war with Spain he, then 28 years old, fought with the 169th New York Regiment at Santiago. Upon his return to New York he resumed his old occupation and helped decorate the homes of Helen Gould, Stuyvesant Fish, William K. Vanderbilt Jr. and several persons of wealth, whom he calls "The Kings of New York."

When the World's Fair was being built in this city, he came to work here, and it was in a fall from the Administration Building that he was crippled. A scaffolding supporting him and several other men collapsed and he suffered an injury to the spine from which he has not recovered.

When LaCari realized his predicament he began to wonder what he could do, what line he could follow in order to earn a living. It would have to be something wherein climbing had no place. Painting or frescoing could no longer be done by him. He had no insurance and his capital to start with was $12.

He thought of selling periodicals, then of having a grocery store, but finally decided that it would be better to try paint, with which he was familiar. So his $12 was invested in paints, and a little woodshed at 3139 Olive street served as his first store. The business grew slowly but surely and when the little woodshed became too small to hold his increasing stock, he removed to 3203 Olive street. The business also outgrew this place and then he removed to his present location at 3225 Olive street.

His place is not now merely a paint shop, but a fully equipped hardware store, with a stock which he values in excess of $30,000, and is patronized not only by a large neighborhood trade, but by many large building contractors as well.

Five years ago LaCari was afflicted in another manner, which made it increasingly difficult to conduct the business, and which makes his continued success as a merchant seem phenomenal. He lost his hearing, suddenly and completely. To overcome this added affliction he had placed in the rear of his store a blackboard, upon which he requires a customer to write with chalk what is wanted. Then LaCari wheels his chair down the aisle, points to the place on the shelves or in the showcases where the article is kept and the customer helps himself. This is the manner in which he conducts his business. "I ask my good customers to help themselves," he explained. "This is a help yourself hardware store."

Simultaneously with the loss of his hearing he married, and when this coincidence was remarked upon he said: "Well, some marry for love, others for a cook and still others for a general maid servant, but I married my wife for her ears." He laughed and continued: "That is a little joke on my wife." Mrs. LaCari is a cheerful woman, helping him in the store in the evenings and doing all she can for his comfort. When asked if he had any children he replied: "No, but I have some fine bulldogs." And then he told how prosperous he was and about the money he had earned and saved, in spite of his physical handicaps.

"I started out with $12 worth of paint and now my store is worth over $30,000. I have money in four banks, kid," was the way he expressed it. "The other day I bought a house across the street at 3308 Olive and paid $7500 cash for it. Some day I will build and move over there." He is now living in the flat above his store.

LaCari knows nothing about the eight-hour law and wouldn't let it bother him if he did. He works in his store from 6 in the morning until 10 at night. In spite of his afflictions he is cheerful and happy and, if started, is a great talker. He seems also to be afflicted with an artistic temperament. Although having made an appointment for an interview he at first demurred when asked to relate his story, on the ground that he was not in the humor for publicity.

After some coaxing, however, he began talking, and enlivened his story with humorous anecdotes of his experiences in the Spanish - American War and of the struggles with some customers in determining what they desired by means of the blackboard.

"Negroes," he said, "always write with the left hand. That is, the most of 'em do. There must be something wrong with them, because they're all left-handers. And when a negro writes he spells 'board,' 'boad.' Oh, I can read all kinds of writing. I never had much need for reading and writing," he continued, "until I couldn't hear. I went to school just about one year of my life and I'll tell you where I got most of my education. I got it from reading the Post-Dispatch. I read everything in it every day.

"New people, that is, people who have never been here before, don't know what to make of this blackboard and are surprised, but people like you, who have been here before, always write to me, and the children around here come in and draw pictures on the board for me. A funny thing happened the other day: A little boy came in and wrote, 'My mamma wants a plumber right away. Please send one over to our house.' At the bottom he put, 'Please excuse writing, John Duffey.' Now, you know, that was funny to me."

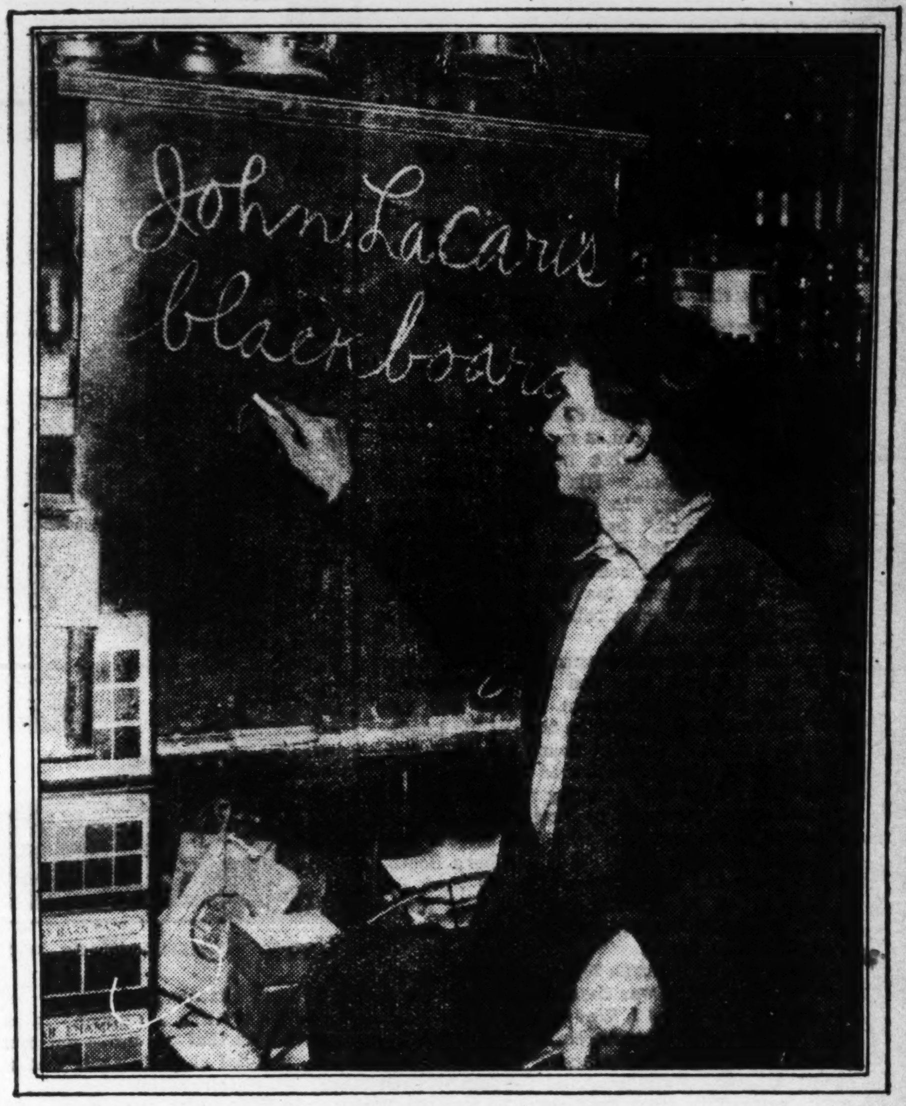
LaCari is very independent and will accept favors from no one. He says he has been able and still is able to make an honorable living and doesn't need anyone to help him. It was hard work getting started, but continued effort and careful saving placed him where he is. At first none of the wholesale houses of St. Louis gave him credit, but his good business methods soon established abundant credit.

When asked his full name LaCari answered: "Just plain John LaCari. People who amount to anything as a rule don't have many names. For example: Julius Caesar, William Shakspeare, George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln, William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson."

LaCari is proud of the small part he took in the Spanish-American War, and expressed regret at his inability to give some account of his prowess in the late war. "Although I could not fight against Germany, I purchased Liberty Bonds. I thought I could at least do that much for my country, even if bound to a wheeled chair."

Although 50 years old, the hardware merchant has not a single gray hair in his head, and his general health is good. His eyes are splendid and he has never lost a tooth since childhood. Of these evidences of physical integrity he is immensely proud.

LaCari's pastimes, he said, consist of reading the Post-Dispatch and taking automobile rides with friends who kindly call for him on fine days. His advice to those in adversity is to be honest, careful and cheerful. "After all," he explained, "it isn't one's body that counts for so much in life, but the state of one's mind that either makes or breaks a man."



John LaCari seated in his wheeled chair waiting for customers in his hardware shop. Beside him is blackboard on which customers make known their wants..

Many Things Tarnish Gold

IF a solid ring discolors the skin, one need not cast it aside, thinking one has been swindled, for gold will tarnish and will leave marks, given the proper conditions. The first condition is due to impurities in the gold, the alloys used to make it of the desired karats. These are silver, copper, zinc and sometime nickel. All gold under 18 karat has some of these alloys, and the acid in the perspiration that exudes from the skin will cause tarnishing and discoloration.

The second condition is due to the gold coming in contact with certain substances that are capable of tarnishing it. Julius Wodiska, the well-known authority on precious metals, cites rubber, sulphur, ointments containing mercury or arsenic, iodine, complexion lotions, some hair dyes and numerous solutions for cleaning leather and other fabrics.

twit me and call me "Cupid." Then one day, as I was standing with reluctant feet on the threshold of a milk vender's, queer translucent spots began to dance before my eyes. My head whirled, and when I woke up they were taking me out of the ambulance.

A doctor in a white uniform bent over me after they had stretched me on a cot in the hospital.

"Put out your tongue," he said.

I obeyed.

He examined my tongue carefully. Then he pried back the rims of my eyes and scanned my eyeballs.

"H-m-m!" he said. "Acute lactealitis. Somebody has been feeding you too much milk."

Thine Is Not Mine - -

"Of course you could, you poor little thing, you."

"But it's only the beginning, with my going away and all. After that's over we—we'll both be glad, Mr. Gratz. Glad! It's big money for us, with—with pa down, too, and I want to act, Mr. Gratz. I do." She turned to him, quivering and eager, the rain of tears still on her cheeks, but the sun of her smile coming through. "I do."

He leaned across the desk top, his face darkly red and nearing her, so that she drew back an arm's stretch from him.

"Don't," she said, her face tingling.

"Little one," said Felix Gratz, his hand curving around the desk edge, "that's what I did all last night, too."

"What?"

"Think of you. Just lay and think of you."

"Thought of a great big bulk like me trying to grab anybody, much less a beautiful little thing like you from making their own destines."

"Why, I—why, if—if there's anything I could make for you Mr. Gratz, I—I'd be glad. Glad!"

"What right have I got to give you or anybody else, I kept thinking, a deal I wouldn't give my own sister? No, sir, not my own sister."

"But, Mr. Gratz, you—you're so big and good and—I—just never met anybody I liked—was—was as good as you."

"It's as if you and her, and now your own mother crying next to you all night, were working together to show me that, little Rosie. All of a sudden you all showed me that business is business only so long as it ain't rotten business. That's what I seem lately to have forgot."

"But you said $60 a week. You,—no, no, Mr. Gratz, you wouldn't go back on it. It ain't a mean deal you're giving me. Mr. Gratz, it's just the making of me. I'll work, Mr. Gratz. It's only hard in the beginning because we've never been separated, her and—and pa and me. I've given up my job at Tracy's Mr. Gratz, I—no, no, please. You wouldn't!"

"Rosie," he said, "don't laugh little one, but guess."

"Guess what?"

"Guess why none of those things matter."

"Ca-can't."

"Sure?"

"I—I dunno."

"I've fallen for a skirt, Rosie, after all these years, and—and guess for which skirt. Eh?"

"I—oh, Mr. Gratz, it—it ain't right to tease a girl when you—you got her going like—like you got me going."

"Rosie, you little black-eyed Susan, can't you guess? Rosie!" And he caught one of her withdrawn hands in the quick vise of his own. "Rosie, you—you little, dark, beautiful flower, you?"

She sprang back, suddenly darker, jerking her hand free of him and holding it back of her while the stinging color mounted.

"Q—quit!"

"Why, little Rosie."

"Let—let me go, you! Why, you don't mean what you ought to mean, a—a big man like you—couldn't to—to a girl like me! You—just want to get me going."

He stood, but not advancing from his desk, with a great, slow smile fluttering across his face like wind over wheat.

"Rosie, dear, you don't understand. Bless your heart, I love you for not understanding, you with your big eyes so black and your lips so red. But look at me. Hard, Rosie. Do I look like a fellow who's not talking his lines in heart tones?"

"I—why, I don't know, Mr. Gratz, I—just don't know."

"Try to understand, little one, that it's the biggest things in living that happen quickest."

"If—if I only thought you wasn't stringing me along!"

"I'm not, Rosie, but if you don't trust me I won't move one step. But look hard, little girl; do I look like a fellow that ain't going to be proud to take the sweetest little girl in the world, that he just stumbled across all of a sudden, home to his own mother and his own sister, and say to 'em, 'Here she is at last. Here's Rosie!' Do I, Rosie?"

"I—I just don't know. Things like that can't—can't happen to a girl like me all at once."

"If you don't trust me, little one, you can ring the bell right in back of you and the door'll open; but little Rosie, can't you see I"——

"I—I"——

"If you don't trust me, I won't move, but"——

"I—I never said I—I didn't," she said, struggling against a great rush of blood to her face.

At that he crossed, but stood off at arm's length.

"I'm the sort of a fellow that's a great believer in what will be, will be, Rosie. I always said the day I was born 'Zira' was all worked out for me. Just like it was all fixed up way back in the beginning that you and me would meet like this, and maybe we didn't know anything about it, but just the same we been marching right up to this minute all our lives."

"Me, too, that—that's just the way I feel about things. Only I—you so high up! I—I never knew."

"None of us do, Rosie. It—It's things just working out."

"Yesterday when I looked at you the first time it—it"——

"Yes, Rosie?"

"It's just like something inside of me—all—all of a sudden like began to—to—sing—I—oh, nothing!"

"Little Rosie," said Felix Gratz, softly and advancing.

Upon that instant and without pause, Leo Lang, in spats and an overcoat with an astrakhan collar, let himself by an obscure door into Felix Gratz's inner office.

"Here, Gratz, just a second." He stood there beckoning from beneath the door eave, tugging at each finger of his gray gloves as if under stress of excitement.

"Not now, Lang. I"——

"Just a second. Important. Very!"

With his face still darkly red and his strong, slightly dipping nose quivering, Felix Gratz crossed toward him.

Leo Lang jerked his thumb leftward.

"Not signed her yet, have you, Felix?"

"Who—what?"

"Kolinsky over there."

"Signed? Why, no—who"——

"Don't! I've got one, Felix, that's got it over the Kolinsky girl like a tent. Pay 'er for time and let her go."

"What"——

"Walked in on 'er this afternoon, playing 'Juanita' in a rotten try-out act up at the Harlem Theater. The kid was as nervous as a chicken and almost got the hook for messing the act, but she's a riot, Felix. Like she was molded for the part, and nobody'll grab her under all that nervousness in a million years. Got Dolly off the boards, Felix. Gad, a figure! Dimple in her chin deep enough for a cherry, and"——

"Nothin' doin'. Put Trixie La Rue in."

"But Felix this kid's a riot, I tell you. She'll drop out of sight and back to home and mother if I don't grab her quick. She's messed the act, I tell you. Can get her cheap if I grab her now, and"——

"Nothin 'doin, I said. Put La Rue in."

'My god, Felix, a two-hundred-dollar woman when for seventy-five you can pick up this kid from an amateur try-out and"——

"Put La Rue in, I tell you," said Felix Gratz.

"Hell!" said Leo Lang, looking at him long, then slamming the door after him.

When Felix Gratz turned to the room again, from an opposite corner Rose Kolinsky was regarding him with eyes like new stars.

Eleven-Year-Old Boy, Native of St. Louis, Writes a Thriller and Gets It Published

Horace Atkisson Wade's first book, "In the Shadow of Great Peril," wins praise of George Ade and Irvin S. Cobb—Two other volumes to follow — How Dick and Bob, boy heroes, "capture" juvenile and adult villains, besides being captured themselves and held for ransom :: ::

HORACE ATKISSON WADE, 11 years old, a native of St. Louis, now living in Chicago, is an author. His first completed book, "In the Shadow of Great Peril," has just been published by the Reilly & Lee Co. of Chicago, and his second book, "The Heavy Hand of Justice," is ready for the printer, while Horace is at work on a third volume, "Tracking Whisky Wolves."

Readers who chuckled over the quaint lines of Daisy Ashford, in "The Young Visiters," will find no less enjoyment in this boy author's adventurous tale of the boys of his imagination. But while some persons have suspected Sir James M. Barrie, writer of the preface of "The Young Visiters," of being the real author of the volume, no one will have a similar suspicion as to George Ade, who has written the preface of Horace's book. If it had been Booth Tarkington—but no, this book is the work of a boy, a boy of healthy instincts and alert fancy, not uninfluenced, perhaps, by the serial type of screen drama.

Horace was born March 26, 1908, at 3006 Chouteau avenue, which was then the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward I. Wade. The father was a court stenographer, and later an employe of a local packing company. Before Horace was a year old the parents removed to San Francisco, and the family lived there until May, 1918, when they removed to Oak Park, a Chicago suburb. Horace's first book was written in the Oak Park home. The Wades now live at 5805 South Michigan avenue, Chicago, and the father is in the advertising business. The book is dedicated to Glen Buck, vice president of a St. Louis advertising agency, who now lives in Chicago.

"In the Shadow of Great Peril" is a story of boys, doing the things which every imaginative boy likes to picture himself as doing. They go to boarding school, and by a football victory, gain first a respite from a study period, and then a holiday.

Dick, joint hero with Bob, licks the school bully, Sam, and this starts a train of events in which classroom requirements drop completely out of sight, and Dick, Bob, Sandy and Fred make for the woods, in pursuit of Sam, who proves to have an almost unlimited number of adult confederates.

Anyone who has a boy of his own knows how important the word "capture" is in the romance of boyhood—how much more it means to "capture" an opponent than merely to catch him, and how thrilling and dreaded an experience it is to be "captured." The boys of this story are "captured" time and again, and they "capture" their enemies, men and boys alike, about as often.

Once, after being captured, the boys are sold to a mountain gang of outlaws, to be held for ransom. In such desperate circumstances, no one can blame the boys for using firearms, and they shoot with such deadly aim that one of the outlaws is soon, as Falstaff says, past praying for. The boys bury him, Fred remarking that "It was either him or us."

The succession of the boys' adventures is indicated by the titles of the 32 chapters, which are: At Blackwell Hall, The Bully Disappears, Startling News, Life or Death, The Mysterious Knock, Unwelcome Visitors, Lost in the Blizzard, The Table Turned, Held for Ransom, The Outlaws Balked, A Narrow Escape, Outwitting a Robber, A Daring Escape, The Mysterious Letter, The Riddle of the Boathouse, Off for New York, A Daring Rescue, An Interesting Adventure, The Capture of Mr. Harding, A Happy Reunion, The Document Recovered, Conclusion.

The scene of the book is in New York State, but at the end the boys are on their way to Montana, to recover a stolen mine, this adventure forming the theme of "The Heavy Hand of Justice." The scene shifts to Alaska in the third book, which Horace has not yet finished.

Horace Atkisson Wade, writing a tale of adventure.

A characteristic bit of description, in the chapter, "Outwitting a Robber," is as follows:

"As that cry broke out over the still night, the boys stopped short in their tracks and gazed at each other in consternation.

"'Someone wants help, and we're going to give it to them,' said Bob. 'The cry came from over that way.'

"The five boys all darted the way indicated by Bob, and were soon hurrying along. After a walk of nearly two minutes they came upon a cabin. They crept up and looked into the window. What they saw made them fairly gasp for breath. For there, on his knees was an old man, and over him a younger man was bending, grasping him by the hair.

"'Tell me where the money is, or I'll kill you,' threatened the young man.

"'I haven't any money, I told you,' cried the old man, in trembling tones.

"'We can't see that old man tortured,' said Dick, angrily. 'I'm going to stop it right now.'

"They all advanced to the door, which by good luck was open. They stepped into the room, but the young man did not notice them until he was hurled half way across the room.

"'Get out of here, boy,' cautioned the man, 'or I might have to hurt you.'

"'You'll get out of here before I do,' said Dick, without flinching.

"'Yes,' snarled the man, 'we'll see about that,' and he advanced three steps, but had he intended to frighten Dick he was mistaken, and on seeing the fiery flash in Dick's eyes the man shrank back.

"'Don't let them do anything to me,' implored the old man, in trembling tones.

"'He won't do anything while we are here,' said Dick, with a grim smile.

"'I won't, eh?' sneered the man. 'I'll see,' and he raised his fist threateningly. But Dick advanced and grabbing the man's wrist soon had him howling for mercy. Bob now advanced and together the two boys managed to tie the young man.

"'What was he doing to you?' Bob asked the old man.

"'He wanted my money,' replied the old man, 'although I put it in the bank yesterday. I told him so, but he wouldn't believe me.'

"Bob went back to the young man and asked him, 'What have you got to say for yourself?'

"'Nothing,' came back the surly reply, 'but what are you going to do with me?'

"'Put you in jail, of course, where you belong,' said Bob, and then the man, as he said later, for the first time in his life burst out weeping.

"'Why, what's the matter?' asked Bob kind of surprised.

"'I've never been in jail before,' said the man. 'I wish I had never turned bad,' and burst out crying again.

"After a little while he inquired, 'Won't you leave me go this time? I'll promise to turn over a good leaf.'

"Bob turned to the old man and he nodded.

"'If you'll promise to turn over a good leaf we'll leave you go,' said Bob.

"'I surely will,' was the hearty exclamation. 'God bless you, boy.'

"They untied the man's bonds and he rose. He went towards the door, and then the old man pushed an envelope into his hand.

"'Here,' he said, 'this may help you.'

"The young man went to the door and then waved his hand as a good-by to the little group, and he then dashed into the woods.

"'I hope that he turns over a good leaf,' said Bob, thoughtfully.

"He was cut short by the old man, who said, 'Well, my boys, you came just in time and I want to reward you.'

"'We never saved you for a reward,' was the answer.

"'I'm sure of that,' said the old man, 'but take it.'

"After the man was convinced that they would take no money, Bob called his chums and they all left the cabin."

The reader is pleased, and perhaps a little surprised, to learn that the young man does turn over a good leaf, and becomes a helper of Bob and Dick in their later exploits, particularly in New York City.

Some of the young author's chapter transitions show an original method of dealing with a problem of literary technique which has not always been skillfully handled, even by famous writers of fiction. For instance, at the end of Chapter III, Sandy is bound hand and foot and lying on the floor of a shanty, when the shanty takes fire.

Chapter IV begins:

"We will leave the boy in the burning shanty for a while and return to the hall."

The reader need have no fear for the boy lying in the burning shack, whence all but he has fled. Horace will not leave him too long, but will have the rest of the

WHAT NOTED WRITERS SAY OF HORACE WADE'S WORK

By George Ade.

ONE of the glaring virtues of the narrative is the entire absence of what Mr. Howells would term "Rollo stuff." There could be nothing more un-Rollo. Master Wade's lads wear freckles and aim straight for the jaw with every punch. They speak the vernacular. They are fibrous, so to speak—heroic without being mushy.

They are young persons devoted to action rather than moody self-analysis. They do not sit around a tea urn and discuss topics which are remote from their mentalities. Their adventures are not held up by descriptions of weather and scenery.

They seek the strenuous days and ha-ha at danger—calm in the presence of their persecutors; modest in victory. They are fond of food and fighting—quite Anglo-Saxon, one might say. Regular fellows!

By Irvin S. Cobb.

IN MY humble opinion this youngster excels any 11-year-old I ever met in natural literary instinct and ability. He has imagination, he has a sense of balance and proportion most marvelously unusual, considering his age, and he has a wider choice of words than I should have believed it possible for a boy of his age to have.

Finally, he had the innate judgment—genius would be the better word—to try at his first venture to write about things a boy would know about rather than about something which somebody else had written about before him. Not many of us have the sense to follow this admirable line in our beginnings. We think romance is something which happens to other folks in other lands; whereas, as Horace has divined, it is something which happens to us in our own lives.

She picked up her stitch where she had left off and he lay back.

Silence.

"Felix!"

"Yes, ma."

"What are you smiling to yourself for?"

"I ain't."

Silence.

"Ma!"

"Ja."

"Remember any Kolinskys when we lived down on Henry street?"

"Who?"

"Kolinsky. Piece worker."

"Kolinsky. M-m-m-m. Ten years ago it's hard to remember back. Kolinsky. There was a Morris Sopinsky was once schammas in Dr. Rabinovitch's syn"——

"No, no, ma! Kolinsky. K-o-l-i-n-s-k-y."

"N-no, Felix; that name I've heard, but never knew anyone by it. Why?"

"She's the sweetest, prettiest little—little"——

"What?"

"Oh, nothing, ma—nothing."

Suddenly Mrs. Gratz sat forward in the cocked attitude of listening.

"There's Ray now. Kat-ie, here comes Miss Ray; dish up!" She folded her needlework into a wad, stabbed her needle into it, wound her spool and advanced down the hallway.

"Ray, you should hurry, baby. Half-hour we been waiting."

Into the rosy light of the room and still exuding the cold breath of January, pirouetted Miss Ray Gratz upon trim, well-shod feet, pecking a kiss upon mother's brow, unwinding the great fluffy skin of white fox from high about her neck and tossing it atop the grand piano, slid out of an ingratiating coat that clung to her slim figure, tossed her hat to a chair and thawed her slender fingers around an incandescent bulb beneath the pink lamp shade.

"Hello, Felix," she said, and broke into a light soprano humming, one hand on a slender hip, then reaching up to feel among the rear tendrils of her coiffure.

"Hello, kiddy," he said, crushing out the red end of his cigar, rising, smiling. "Some duds, eh?"

She swung to him full front, holding out her voluminous fur-edged skirt between thumbs and forefingers.

"Like 'em?"

"Slick."

"Copied Dolly Dalores in the second act."

"You shouldn't, Ray, throw your white fur around so. Look, on the piano top she throws it, like it cost nothing. I tell you, it's a good thing you got a brother let you be so extravagant."

"Now, momsy, don't fuss. Tra-la-la-la-lalala-la! How's that for high C, Felix? Not bad!" And she smiled at him with a dimple in her chin flashing into prominence.

"Tra-la-la-la-lalala-la!"

"Where you been, kiddy?"

"Singing lesson, Felix. First one today and he's plumb crazy about my voice. High soprano and corking lower register. Tra-la-la-la-lalala-la!" There was a conscious vacuity in her tones and a conscious vacuity in the half-challenging expression she turned full upon him. "Singing lesson, Felix," and she fell to buffing her long pink nails against the palm of her hand.

Mrs. Gratz moved uneasily forward, hands folded across her waistline.

"Come, children, let's go in to supper."

Felix Gratz moved forward a step, dragging his five fingers along the table top. There were modulation and careful tone placement in his voice.

"I want you to cut out the singing lessons, Ray."

"What! You never said"——

His hand came down with a hard rap of emphasis.

"Quick, d'you hear!"

"Come—come to supper, children."

A great flare of color rushed up and across Miss Gratz's slim, dark face as she stood there in dark velvet beside the grand piano, one arm flung out across its top.

"I was waiting for you to say that! Just waiting for you to forbid this little thing I'm doing. Well, what do you say if I won't quit!"

"But you will!"

"Will I! Don't be too sure! I've saved up enough money of my own to do with it what I want."

"Children!"

"I just can't keep it in any longer, mamma. Since that day last week when he sent me home, like I was a 2-year-old, from watching a rehearsal of 'The Laughing Girl,' I've been busting. Busting!"

"I've told you a million times that I won't have you hanging around the theater, and you know I mean what I say when I say it."

"You! What right have you to"——

"It's no place for you, and there's an end to it."

"It's as much a place for me as it is for any of those others, if you want to know it. I could sing Dolly Dalores off those boards, and I'm enough the type to be her twin. I—I—why you—you act like you was my father or something. But you ain't, you're just ——

"Ray! Children!"

"But you ain't! You're 10 years older than me, maybe, but you're far from being my boss, let me tell you. Why, the Bing girls, with their brother only a theatrical lawyer, get more tickets and fun out of the show business than me, with my brother a big mucky muck. I've never even met a person in your offices. I've never seen a first night! Why, every time I even want a box, there's a row about it like"——

"Now, cut it out, kiddy, while the going's good. I've got my reasons for every move I make in this little old world and your big brother ain't always all wrong. I'll take you down to the Relay company tomorrow and let you pick out"——

"What's the Relay got to do with my ambitions and my"——

"You heard what I said, didn't you?"

She advanced three short steps toward him, her features held tight and her hands clenched.

"Yes, I heard it, and now, Felix Gratz, you take this from me: I heard it and I don't give a darn! I don't want your automobile and I don't want your Sunday school line of talk. You may be the biggest music-show manager in this town, with your namby-pamby, straight-laced ideas about your own women, but just the samey, Felix Gratz, and don't you forget it, you'd rob the cradle of somebody else's women and children if you needed them for your old types—for your blooming, dinged old types! It's your own women is all you're worried about."

"Now, now, kiddy, business is business. Why, if I didn't want to see my little sister just the finest, sweetest little girl in all the world, would I care if you wanted the Dolly Dalores part twice over? I don't say you're not the type, Ray, but"——

"Oh, that don't get across with me. Haven't I heard you say a thousand times over, bragging of your own show girls, that there's just as fine girls on as off? Hasn't he, ma?"

"Ray! Please, children!"

He laughed shortly, even indulgently.

"Now, Ray, don't talk nonsense, there's a good girl."

"Why, I just came from Pizzicato's studio. He's crazy about my presence and my voice. He says I'm immense. It's a crime I ain't on, he says. It's criminal suppression, he says. With a brother like you, he says, I could get"——

"My God, I'll go down to that dago studio of his and wipe up the floor with him, if he rams such a pack of rot down your throat. Now, you look here, Ray Gratz," and he flung out an arm as straight as a rod, "one more word of such talk from you and, by God, if I don't"——

"Children!"

"One more! No, two and three more you'll hear. If you're the saint you pretend to be and are trying to make one out of me, too, why have you got the name all over this town for being the man who can spy out a show girl if she's ironing shirts in a laundry? What right you got to go around grabbing up girls for a profession that would never land them, unless you stuck 'em in for your own ends—giving them a deal you wouldn't give to the women in your own family? Aint flesh flesh? Is it only blood counts with you? What right you got?"

"Business is business. The women in my family are a darned sight removed from the women in my business, and that's not saying a word against the women in my business. What I do in my business is a darn sight removed from what I do in my family, I tell you, and now you cut it!"

"Bah! That ain't a defense; it's a sieve of an argument."

"Now, I've heard about as much from you as I'm going to listen to. I'm willing to give you everything that money can buy, that's about all I get out of the game, making things soft for you and your mother; there's nothing I've ever denied you and nothing I ever will, except"——

"Yes, except! Except what I want most. Ha! Nothing he's ever denied me. Didn't I almost beg on my knees, until I was in bed two weeks from fever, for a part you fished a girl out of a Grand street millinery shop for.

"Ray! Felix!"

"Ain't I willing to give up everything else in the world you've given me for just one little eeny part in one of your road companies. I want a part. I'm 10 times more the Laughing Girl than Dolly Dalores, and you know it. I want to sing. All I ask, Felix, is a chance. If I fail the first time, I'm willing to quit. I'll want to quit, Felix, that's how my nerve will be sure to leave me, if I can be as sure as I am and not get across the first time. Felix—I want to try!"

"Now, cut it, I"——

"Well, then—well, then, if you won't give me the chance, maybe somebody else will. See! Maybe somebody else will!"

"Children."

"By God, if you think that, then you go out and try it, but mind you keep my name out."

"Your name! I can get a part under a pseudo so quick it'll make your head swim. Your name! Who wants it!"

"Children! For God's sake, Ray, ain't you got a brother what makes for us heaven on earth? Is it a crime he should want his sister what he loves not to do what he don't want her to do?"

"Your name! Who wants it, I'd like to know! I don't need it."

"Children, children, come in to supper."

"You go in and eat your supper, ma, you and your daughter. I've had the appetite knocked out of me. I'll go out and take a walk until my crazy sister comes to her senses. If I can't sit down to supper without having the soul aggravated out of me first, then I'll stay away from it. I'm sick enough with aggravation to go to bed, much less eat. Now, you get those ideas out of your head once for all, Ray Gratz, and don't let me come home and find you still a maniac. By God, don't let me!"

"Felix, how I got potroast fixed for you and"——

"It's all right, ma. Later. I've begged, I've bribed, I've tried soft words and hard with her and now I'm done. You get them ideas out of your head, y' hear me? Once and for all and quick, too. Y' hear? Quick!"

"Felix, how—how white and quiet you look. Felix, I"——

"Don't worry, ma. It's all right." He pushed her gently aside and was out and into the hall, his face so taut that the cheek bones seemed to be pushing up and through.

"Felix!"

The slam of a door.

"Oh, my God, Felix! Ray, you—you bad girl, you. Like a sheet he looked. Felix, my boy, I—I'll keep your supper hot! Ray!"

Beside the grand piano, standing in the curve of its flank, passionate tears began to wind their course down Miss Gratz's blazing face.

"He—he ain't my boss. One try is all I asked for. If I fail the first time, I'll quit. He's afraid I won't fail. He's afraid."

"Oh, my God! My children! Oh, my God!"

"He ain't my boss. Why, I can get a job under any old name in a tryout act called 'Juniata' up at the Harlem Theater tomorrow afternoon. That's how much I need his pull."

"Ray!"

"Maybe I'll take it, too, for all he knows."

"Ray! Gott in himmel! My children!"

"Well, he ain't my boss, just the same. He ain't! He ain't!"

* * * * * * * * *

In a new black velvet Tam O'Shanter with a crimson quill darting across its front and into it, her large, dark eyes fuddled with the conflict of quick emotions, Miss Rose Kolinsky sat on the edge of a leather-upholstered chair facing Felix Gratz in his swivel behind the desk.

"You're a prompt little girl," he said, leaning forward and twiddling in his fingers a brass letter opener. "Three o'clock on the dot."

She drew her lips and eyebrows up into the expression of a smile, but her throat arched and flexed.

"Why—why, what's the matter, little one?"

"Nothing—Mr. Gratz."

"Sure?"

"Sure."

He perched the paper cutter across his spatulate finger and balanced it.

"Sure now, little one?"

"Y-yes, Mr. Gratz." And she looked away toward an opposite wall emblazoned since yesterday with a vivid lithograph of a very vivid favorite.

"How's the mother, eh? Used to the idea of her little girl breaking into big business?"

She nodded, still in profile.

"Well, then, come now, let's talk it out, Miss Rosie. I don't believe you know just what you want, you poor, pretty, little thing, you; whether you want to break into this business or just break out crying. Come, that it?"

It was as if he had turned on full the spigot of her piped-up emotions. Sobs rumbled up and through her and she fell to crying, with her face from him and fumbling in her small black bag for a handkerchief.

"I—it's all right, Mr. Gratz. I want to break in—only—only"——

"Only what, little one? Don't be scared."

"Only—only it's hard at first, that's all."

"Sure it is."

"All last night, Mr. Gratz, I—I could feel her crying in bed next to me. Not hear her, but feel her. We—we ain't going to tell pa till I get a good start and he sees how fine it is, and she—she"——

"Yes?"

"She don't let on and says it's all right, but just the same, from keeping it in to herself, I—I could feel her just—just shaking and crying all—all night."

EUROPE'S SPIRITUALISM CRAZE NOW AT AN AMAZING PEAK

More than 35,000 mediums reported in Paris while in England conservative churchmen are alarmed at spread of cult which is fostered by men like A. Conan Doyle and others of like intellectuality — Spirit photographs, paintings and tales of excursions into the unknown readily accepted :: :: ::

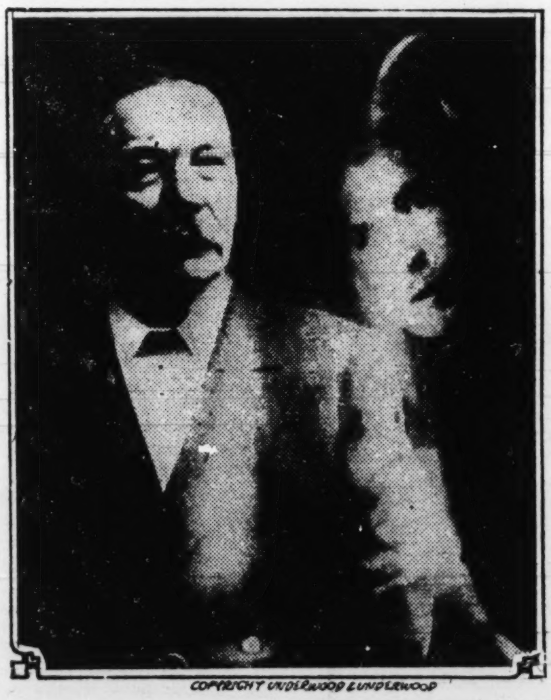
"IN THE East End of London 'six-penny messages from the dead' are advertised for those who cannot pay their guinea or half-guinea to a fashionable medium. Fraud grows apace, for nothing but fraud could keep pace with the demand for results."

This comment by the Rev. A. V. Magee, vicar of St. Mark's, Hamilton terrace, London, and a son of the late Archbishop of York, himself a student of psychic subjects, is a fair index of the widespread extent of the spiritualistic craze which got its foothold in London during the war, and has now spread all over England. No psychic revelation, however improbable, goes without its champions and defenders, who are always ready to answer the scoffs and headshakes of the dissenters and produce spirit photographs if necessary to establish a vindication for the message from somewhere beyond the grave. The ouija board is working overtime everywhere, and instead of a plaything it has come to be regarded as an instrument of reverence among those who yearn for a word from dear ones slain in the most terrible of conflicts.

There is no limit to the field of psychic excursions by those who claim the ability to make them, and as there are new mediums bobbing up constantly, with no lack of support, the nonbelievers have reason to regard the situation with real concern. Spirits of departed soldiers who laid down their lives for "King and country" in the awful days of Ypres, along the Aisne and in the other big battles with the Prussians, continue, of course, to be the most anxiously sought by the men and women who gather at the medium's table or cluster about the ouija board, but now the range of communication has gotten well beyond such recent history.

One of the recent messages that created a furor in a section of London convinced many of the faithful that the continent of Atlantis described by Plato was a reality, and, therefore, had no place in the chronicles of fable and nebulous tradition. For did they not have a ouija message from a spirit naming himself "Pharos," who disclosed that the continent existed long before Egypt, and that the Egyptian race descended from the people who settled the Continent of Atlantis before it was destroyed by the sea?

Another creepy story that was heralded and put up to the scoffers told how six men, sitting at a table in an inn drinking from thick glass mugs, suddenly, by some inexplicable, unseen force, had the drinks torn from their hands and the contents scattered about the floor with a loud explosion. The authors of this narrative were pressed for more particulars and they answered that it took place in Amsterdam, Holland, and that dependable witnesses would attest its genuineness. Forces arrayed against "Pussyfoot" Johnson and the American Anti-Saloon League campaign to make England dry, ascribed the story to propaganda and proceeded to forget it in another "arf-pint," but many thousands took it all very seriously, and talked in low tones of the eery incident and hinted that there would be even more startling happenings, with such activity in the spirit world.



COPYRIGHT UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

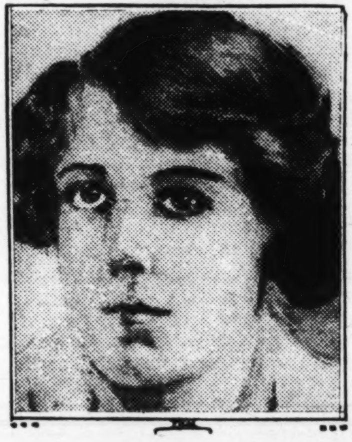
The psychic photograph which Sir Arthur Conan Doyle claims is a picture of his son taken at a seance at Crewe.

Another manifestation which has been given much attention in the London newspapers seeking to keep up with the psychic trend, deals with the strange experiences of an 18-year-old girl named Ethel, whose father is a professional gardener at Grayshott, near Hindhead. This girl, it appears, was in a trance for nearly three months and was only brought out of her cataleptic state by a spiritual healer, known as "Sister Miriam." This healer, who lived in Rhodesia, Africa, for years and raised a family of 10 children, has paintings of St. Francis of Assisi, the Angel Gabriel and other saintly spirits as they appeared to her in various visions Though she never took any instruction in painting, her pictures have been commended in many quarters.

"Sister" Miriam and her spirit painting of St. Francis Assisi with whom she claims to have held spirit communication.

The story told by the girl, Ethel, after her long trance, was in part as follows:

"I was often led through great schools and temples of wisdom on the other side, where there are thousands of souls receiving instruction from beings great and powerful, who do not utter any words, but give their teaching by vibration of thoughts through their most wonderful eyes. Among the student souls there are many who, like myself, have left the body for the time being only, for the purpose of receiving instruction and preparation in order that they may become messengers to the world of the coming of Christ.



The Grayshott girl Ethel whose long trance and astonishing tale attracted much attention.

The revelations of the Grayshott girl, supplemented by those of Sister Miriam, which under ordinary conditions, would attract little attention, were taken up on a large scale and many visitors sought the gardener's cottage to see and hear the young woman who claimed to have seen such wonderful sights. Among the number to take up the investigation was the Rev. W. K. Burford, a prominent minister of Hindhead. The girl never wavered in her story and the many who accepted it as a fact manifested little patience with those who insisted that the revealer might have been suffering from an attack of hysteria.

In his article dealing with the sinister side of the unbridled psychic craze, the vicar of St. Mark's refers to the 35,000 mediums operating in Paris and shows how the new cult has taken hold of things in London. Among other things, he says that in Kensington alone there are 118, and that seances are on everywhere at prices to suit even the poorest purses.

"Young women," he says, "who do not think they are psychic, but would rather like to try, young men who have nothing else to do and broken-hearted mothers who long for news of their sons, are all caught by the modern craze, while Sir Arthur Conan Doyle goes from city to city proclaiming a new religion which is to be built upon the ashes of a 'decadent Christianity.'

"But, apart from fraud, there is a real peril which justifies all the warnings that religion has ever uttered against the attempt to dabble with the unseen by psychic research. It is not only the peril of insanity, which has been proved, whether Dr. Forbes Winslow's "ten thousand" have ever existed or not. It is the peril of the discarnate intelligence which is earthbound in taste and character and is only too ready to seek an entry into the world where its evil passions once found a congenial home.

"Demoniacal possession is not confined to one age or generation; it is a common phenomenon in Eastern countries, and I make bold to say that it is not unknown in our own country. That blasphemous obscenities have been uttered in connection with planchette I happen to know and that lives have been ruined by spiritualistic practices I can prove.

"But ordinary common sense would suggest the probability of loss of balance and hysteria when the subconscious mind assumes sway over the conscious intelligence and lies open to any suggestion that can be made from without. And of the disturbing effect upon daily life of constant preoccupation with psychic phenomena no proof is needed. That way madness lies, as in every instance where one idea takes possession of the mind to the exclusion of all others."

Since the manifestation at Crewe, where Sir Arthur Conan Doyle obtained what he characterized as a spirit photograph of his deceased son, lost in the war, he has shown little forbearance with the skeptic who offer sneers and jibes as an offset to the psychic propaganda that has made and is still making great progress. In a recent communication to one of the London newspapers, which had shown what an easy matter it was to "fake" a psychic photograph, he expressed himself with some evidence of feeling on the subject. He said:

"The argument that because a psychic photograph can be faked, therefore all are faked, is surely not a serious one. It omits the two vital points, that there are test conditions, and that the result is a recognizable portrait of a discarnate person. If in a newspaper office one can obtain a faked photograph of Henry VIII it has no possible connection with the fact that at Crewe I obtained a photograph of my son unlike any which I had ever seen before.

"I had some remarkable examples recently from a professional photographer who discourages publicity, thinking, that it might prejudice his legitimate business.

"I have used the word 'photographs' throughout, but I am of the opinion that a phychograph is in many cases essentially different from a photograph, and is rather a transference by abnormal means of something which exists elsewhere. This would amply account for faces being of disproportionate size, for light seeming to come from the wrong side, and for all those other puzzles which have worried the student and given texts to the skeptic. In the case of my son, and in some other cases with which I am familiar, one could see upon the psychic faces a dotted appearance like process markings, and yet those faces were impressed upon the plate under conditions which made all fraud out of understand, dearie. It's the road company a girl has to start out with first. Not in New York, dearie."

"'Road company?' Was ist das?"

"It means I'll get to travel a little, mamma. Just think, get out of New York for the first time. Go from town to town with the show, see all the big cities out West, like Syracuse, where Aunt Becky lives."

"Gott Almechticha! Gott Almechticha! I see. I see. Take her away from me is in it. Don't, Mr. Gratz! Don't! All what I got left in the world, with my sick husband, is that child, Mr. Gratz. Don't take her away from me. Just let us alone like before. Mr. Gratz, don't take her away from me!"

"Mamma, dear. Please, darling! I won't go, I—won't, dearie. Mamma!"

"Why, Mr. Gratz, did you come to us with such big ideas, when better off we were without them? Don't take her from me, Mr. Gratz. Don't! With her little wages by Tracy's and when always I can sell my pickles and smoked meats to the delicatessen, we can get for her poor papa what comfort he needs. Don't, Mr. Gratz, don't!"

He moved toward her with a sudden furriness of voice, and his own gaze softened by a film of moisture.

"Why, Mrs. Kolinsky, I wouldn't take your beautiful little girlie away from you, not for a million dollars, if that's the way you feel. You just forget all about it and take her home with you and"——

"No, no, Mr. Gratz, it's all right. You must excuse mamma. She don't mean you ain't good to offer it, but—she trusts you just as much as I do, Mr. Gratz, but—but"——

"Why, Mrs. Kolinsky, I'd no more take your little girl for this business if you don't want"——

"I don't say, Mr. Gratz, it—it ain't a grand offer, but—but"——

"Mr. Gratz, she means she can't spare me now. With my father on his back and nobody around evenings, you—you see, she needs me now. He—he needs me, too. You—you see, it ain't we don't appreciate. Maybe some other time, Mr. Gratz. Maybe I—maybe—you—you're so good, Mr. Gratz, and—you can—understand. You—you're so good."

Tears broke through her voice and in the act of unwinding from the cape's embrace, her hat fell back and a great, long coil of hair slid loose and well below her knees. She caught it, winding it up again without heed or embarrassment.

"Maybe some other time, Mr. Gratz. Don't—be mad!"

At the sight of that loosened coil, Mr. Gratz's voice came through firm again and he moved a quick step forward.

"Why, of course, I won't, little one. I—well, I just couldn't be mad with you, but you're making a mistake, Mrs. Kolinsky. I ain't forcing, but you'll have your little girl reproaching you here until the day you die. Mrs. Kolinsky, you aren't losing her. You're gaining her. She's got a chance, a big one. Let her have it. To prove to you that it's a big chance, I'll pay $60 a week. You parents ain't got the right to swing your children's destinies. They belong to them. Let her come here tomorrow at 3 and sign a short contract, sixty per, and see how she likes it. Look at her face there now and see how she wants it. Look at her, Mrs. Kolinsky; look for yourself."

Mrs. Kolinsky turned her face, the tears driven against it, toward her daughter.

"Rosie—Rosie, you want it?"

With her hands cupped one in the other and held out straight from her, Miss Kolinsky opened her lips for retort.

"I—sixty—I—mamma"——

"You want it, Rosie? Don't be afraid to say to mamma what you want. You—you want it, Rosie?"

"For a little while, Rosie, you want mamma should let you try it and"——

"Not—not when you look at me like that, mamma."

Answer mamma, Rosie. I feel better if you tell me the truth. What you want, baby, won't be hard for mamma to learn how to want, too. You want"——

"Of course she wants it, Mrs. Kolinsky. Look at her face; ain't that enough?"

"You want it, Rosie?"

"Y—yes, mamma!"

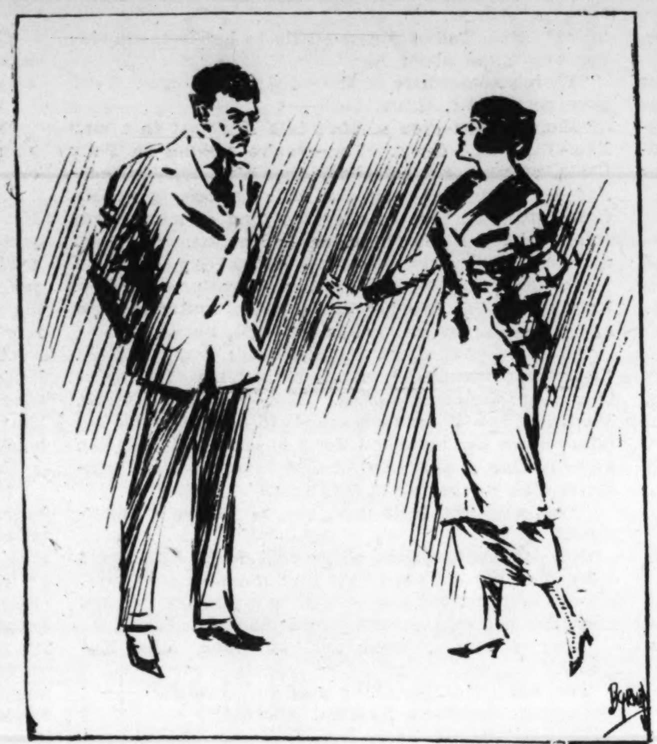
When Felix Gratz's pale yellow automobile, racy looking as a hound and with red-leather upholstery and three extra tires in red leather casings, drew up alongside of 12 stories of stone and stucco, facing the lowest end of Riverside Drive, where rents and apartment houses run highest, a windless and bitingly clear evening, littered with the close eager stars which shine so bright through still cold, had descended.

In the 12-story apartment house, lights began to gleam on the vertical. Twelve stories of dining room maids tweaked on 12 stained-glass domes of electric light, removed 12 silver fruit baskets from 12 solid mahogany dining tables, spread silence cloth and white damask for 12 layers of vertical dinners.



"But you ain't. You're 10 years older than me, maybe, but you're far from being my boss, let me tell you."

From a very Byzantine elevator Felix Gratz emerged to the ninth layer of these, admitting himself by one of a chain of keys laboriously extracted from his greatcoat and somewhere in the region of his right hip.

"Felix?"

"Yes, ma,"—and he stooped with a hand on the shoulder of her black silk basque to kiss her cheek and the heavy grain hair drawn back from the brow with unpleasant tension and brushed up straight from over each ear into a tight wad.

"Ach, you'm cold, Felix. Like ice your lips feel."

"And you're warm, ma. Like toast your cheeks feel, eh?" He pinched her cheek easily and in a state of pleasant relaxation hung up his coat on a gilded elk horn and rubbing his hands in habitual dry wash, followed the low, black figure into the pink-lighted room, thawing and smiling.

"Fee-fie-foe-fum! I smell potroast, sweet-sour!"

"The roast you sent up yesterday, Felix, I fixed you with potatoes klose the way you like."

"Aha!"

"I wish, Felix, you could see what a long face that nix-nux of a Katy makes when I come in my own kitchen to fix my own son his own potroast with potato klose like he likes."

"I can tell you, little mamma-sha, I ain't afraid any of them get the best of you."

"Not, Gott sei Dank, while I got my eyes and feet and health. Felix, don't scratch your cigar match under that table." She took to rocking in a low chair beside the pink lamp, and burrowing in among the spools and cottons of a work bag.

Many periods invaded that room, with its high Renaissance ceiling and high Renaissance fireplace. But with the architect that mood left off abruptly and Verni Martin invaded with a three-tier curiosity of a curiosity cabinet and a divan shaped like a design drawn without removing pencil from paper. A modernized pier glass with pink-shaded candelabra reflected the Italian floor lamp with the pink silk shade. An imported rug with a wreathy preference for Marchese roses dragged in the fagged-out Louis Quinze note. An onyx table, with a brass ruffle, occupied a corner and a talking machine, with its great horn in the attitude of tooting upward to the Renaissance ceiling, another. A cuckoo clock cockooed.

"Seven o'clock, Felix. A little late Ray said she might be. Shall I tell Katy she should dish up before she comes?"

"No, ma; let's wait. Where is Ray?"

"For a singing lesson with a Eyetalian teacher she went."

"Something new, eh? Singing lessons she has to have yet. So that's what all those hints have meant. Singing lessons!"

"Five dollars apiece, too, Felix, for 20 minutes. I tell you, I wish I could live to be a hundred years old when I could get $5 for every 20 minutes like those stylish singing teachers."

"It's not the money, ma, but she don't need such nonsense with her voice, and if she asks me I'll tell her. Let her spend the money on soda water."

"Over and above a flashing crochet needle, Mrs. Gratz shot her son a quick glance, a quick furrow coming between her eyes and her soft, wide face creasing.

"You know, Felix, it's sometimes hard for a brother to understand his sister, if she's a girl and he's a boy. Girls and boys ain't the same, except you and Ray got the same temper, and get over it quick, like your papa had. With a girl like Ray, though, Felix, soda water good times ain't all what she wants. Always when you have such fusses together, Felix, about her ambitions, it's because, Felix, you're too much alike to have much use for what the other wants. Go easy, Felix, when you talk with your sister. Easy."

Mr. Gratz raised his voice and lowered his knees, gripping the side of his chair and leaning forward.

"I said she don't need such nonsense with her voice. I tell you, she don't need it, and I won't have it."

"Felix!"

"By God, I won't have it!"

"Felix, you—never in your life have you hollered so at your old mother. You'm right, we don't want our Ray should have such ideas, only sometimes I say to myself, she should try it and fail once, and right away she loses her nerve to try again, that's how sensitive she is. But"——

"By God, I won't"——

"Now, now, mamma! So help me, mamma, I didn't holler! So help me, ma! If I hollered, I didn't mean it. It slipped. Now, now, mamma!" He was at her side with a stride, pressing the side of her wet face to his waistcoat, patting the hard knob of her hair, clucking soothingly in his throat.

"Sometimes I think how you fly off the handle always at Ray, you need a rest and a change, Felix. For a handsome young man in the theatrical business, who everybody thinks could lead such a gay life, you stick at home too much evenings with me when you ain't working yourself to death with rehearsals. Take a little trip with Ray, say to Atlantic City, for a rest, Felix. Not?"

"Not now, ma! I ain't got breathing time. 'The Laughing Girl' had another $14,000 week, ma; that makes the twelfth in succession. I tell you, that show is good for three years on Broadway. It's a riot."

"Felix, such business! Fourteen thousand dollars a week!"

"Getting out the road companies already. It's got it all over 'Zira' on receipts. Some riot, that show!"

Mrs. Gratz wrapped her two hands about the lax arm of her son, looking up to him as he stood there beside her.

"Felix," she said, her voice crowding to her throat, "I wonder if—if papa in heaven knows what his little son, who was only in knee panties when he died, has made himself into. I wonder."

"Maybe, mamma."

"I wonder, Felix, if he knows how, instead of down on Henry street, his Paulsha lives now on Riverside Drive in a $3000, ride-up apartment house and his Ray has her own automobile? I wonder if he knows he has got a son now so big in the theatrical business he can't get no bigger. I wonder if papa up there has got a way to know about it."

"Maybe, ma. Maybe. How's Mrs. Lefkovitch's lumbago? Better?"

"Ja. Today I took her out in automobile till Ray wanted it at 5 o'clock. How they all talk about my boy and what a big man he is. I wish, Felix, for some matinee next week you send Mrs. Lefkovitch a box for 'Laughing Girl.' How she remembers always that time you helped her Sollie out of truble. I wish, Felix, you send her a box."

"Sure, ma."

"Some matinee next week we can go and"——

"If I was you, mamma, you've seen it once, I wouldn't go along. Let her bring her friends that ain't seen it. I don't like you and Ray around the theater so much, ma. I—I just don't like it."

"All right, Felix, I don't go, then."

"Ray, neither; I don't like it."

"In a $2 house, where the finest people in town go, my son says it ain't fine enough yet. I tell you, how they all look there some nights in their furs and diamonds and low-neck dresses, even off the stage better as on, you don't need to worry it ain't good enough for your old mother and sister. Oser from Henry street we're used to it."

"Don't want it, that's all." He resumed his Morris chair and lay back, closing his eyes. A silence grew in the room, with Mrs. Gratz crocheting busily into it.

"Felix!"

He was startled into uprightness.

"Felix, don't you feel well? How you lay back with your eyes shut!"

"Of course I do, ma. Can't a fellow rest? It's a wonder Ray wouldn't hurry."

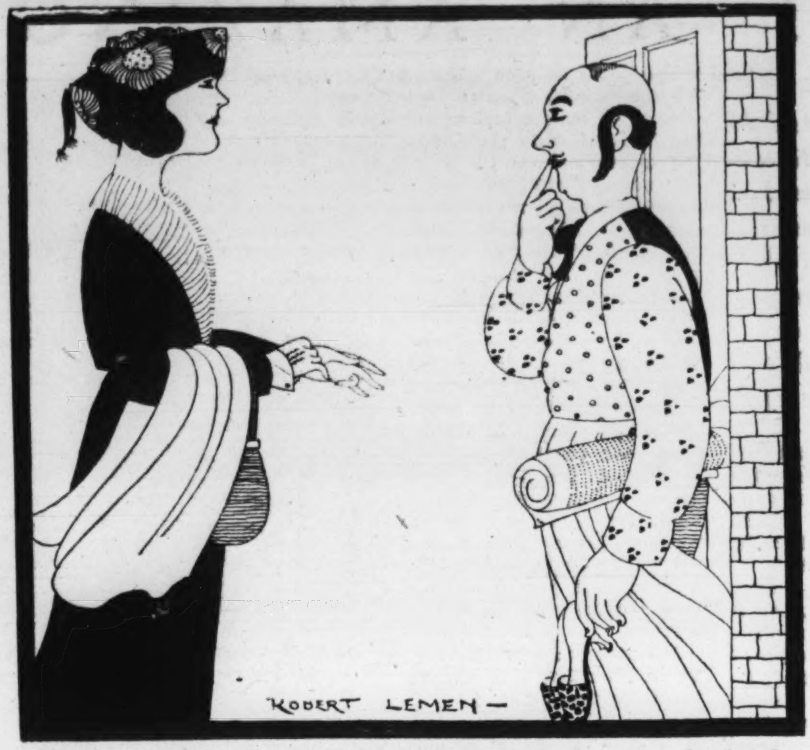
The Successful Girl and Marriage

By HELEN ROWLAND



ROBERT LEMEN —

"What, a successful business woman needs is not a husband, but a wife!"

"THERE goes another girl who has cluttered up her life!" exclaimed the Widow, shaking her head ruefully.

The Bachelor regarded the trim young person in the bewitching, flowered turban with distinct favor. But the trim young person was absorbed in feeding almonds with her own pink fingers to a radiant youth across the table from her.

"What do you mean, she's 'cluttered up her life'?" inquired the Bachelor with mild curiosity.

"Gotten married," was the laconic answer.

"But," protested the Bachelor, "I thought marriage simplified life—for a girl; eliminated the problem of whom to go to dinner with and how to pay the rent and all that!"

"It does," agreed the Widow with a sigh, "for the usual girl—but not for the successful actress or authoress or lawyer or doctor, or any successful woman, for that matter. That is Bonnie Bright, the popular little comedienne, who already has a great big future, and a great big career—and why she wanted to take a great big man on her hands, too, I can't see!"

"Then you don't believe in marriage for anything except the fluffs and doodlewits?" inquired the Bachelor ironically. "And yet you are forever railing at us for picking out that sort of girl for a wife!"

"I certainly DO believe in marriage—for every girl!" declared the Widow, emphatically. "Home is as incomplete, life is as incomplete, without a husband, as it is without"——

"Without a rubber plant or a Pomeranian," put in the Bachelor. "Well, then," he suggested cheerfully, "if marriage interferes with artistic success—cut out art!"

"How wonderfully easy!" The Widow's voice dripped honey and irony, as she helped herself to a fresh cup of tea. "It must be lovely to be able to settle might problems, 'just like that'—as a man does! But no girl wants to be a useless, unhappy mollusk, in these days. Every girl wants to succeed in some sort of business or profession. And, somehow, success and marriage simply won't MIX! They are the oil and water, which the modern girl has been trying vainly to blend for the last 15 years!"

"Oh, well, don't bother about it," soothed the Bachelor. "No doubt your little friend there will be delighted to give up her job and settle down to be a nice, sweet, contented little wife, in a nice, sweet, little, suburban bungalow, and to expend all her genius and 'oversoul' in hemming dimity curtains and training the sweet peas, and counting the laundry and gossiping with the grocer."

"If she only COULD!" murmured the Widow tragically. "That would settle the question and make everyting perfectly lovely. If only she had been a failure instead of a success, she might have! But I've seen successful women TRY that before, and it always drove them to insomnia or divorce—or back to the limelight again. It's next to impossible for a girl who has been out in the midst of the hustle and bustle of life and known the glamour of success, to go 'way back and sit down and be content to shine in a reflected glory and to get all her excitement vicariously from hearing hubby read the funny page or talk about the office. And it's harder still NOT to! Because that means trying to run two jobs—and failing in one or both. No—I'll tell you the real truth. What a successful business or professional woman needs is not a husband, but a WIFE!"

"A—WHAT!"

"Somebody to greet her with a smile and a hot dinner and her slippers and a little cheerful chatter, at the end of a hard, exhausting, nerve-racking day," began the Widow.

"Oh, I see! That's why she prefers a Pomeranian and a French maid to a husband!" was the caustic rejoinder.

"Yes," laughed the Widow. "At least, she doesn't have to rush home from work, and jump into a fluffy gown, and powder her nose and turn on all the rose-colored lights and be sweet and cute and soothing—for a POM! And besides she needs somebody to look after her clothes and think up nice little surprises for dinner"——

"And tell her when to get her hair bobbed, and coax her to go to church, and find her hat, and lay out her evening clothes, and clean out her pockets"——

"Exactly!" bubbled the Widow enthusiastically. "She needs a combination guardian-inspiration-soothing-syrup-stimulant-valet-and-conscience—and what husband ever was all that? She needs to be soothed and coddled, and waited on and flattered and encouraged and braced up each evening for the next day's work, just as a man does. And when both husband and wife come home, yearning for this sort of thing, and all fagged out—well, it just naturally starts them thinking about Reno. If ever I have my living to earn, I shall start a new profession, and call it 'The Business Girls' Housewife,' and have agents everywhere. There'd be a fortune in it."

"And then, I suppose," ventured the Bachelor bitterly, "no successful business girl would EVER marry!"

"Oh, of course she would!" sighed the Widow. "They'd all marry. Because every woman thinks she has found the one perfect man—the one exception to the human race—who will understand her moods and forgive her bad housekeeping, and overlook her grouches, and always be sweet and tender and inspiring. Just as long as men are foolish enough to go on marrying successful women—which I wouldn't for worlds, if I were a man!—these women will go on being foolish enough to try to mix professional life and marriage, and to clutter up their lives"——

"There you go again!" exclaimed the Bachelor impatiently. "What do you mean by calling a husband a 'clutter'?"

"Well," explained the Widow apologetically, "when you add a husband to your life you add a home and domestic duties and servants and social responsibilities and tea-fights and a garden and motor cars and children and pets and—don't you see, it's an endless chain?"

"And when you DON'T add a husband to your life," began the Bachelor.

"It's a blank, a desert, a waste—a total loss!" finished the Widow sadly. "Sometimes I think that fate never intended that a woman should have real success and real happiness, too. And yet, whenever I hear of a successful woman getting married, I always feel"——

"Like rushing out and stopping her?" interpolated the Bachelor.

"No! Like clapping her!" was the astonishing rejoinder. "It gives me a thrill! I'm so glad she has had the courage to face fate and fail! But I feel just a wee bit sorry"——

"Sorry!"

"For the man!" sighed the Widow.

WIDOW-CISMS.

A "perfect lover" is one with such a keen dramatic instinct that he can convince himself of his "eternal love for one woman"—at a time.

When a woman dresses in a way to make a rainbow look like a mourning veil, you may know that her husband has chosen her clothes.

Real love is that of the man who goes right on adoring his wife, even when she gets hold of the Sunday newspaper first, and refolds it the wrong way.

When a girl starts out with the avowed intention never to marry, she is almost certain to come to a sad but respectable end, as a devoted wife. Nothing inspires a man with such a desire for possession as a "Not to be taken from the premises" sign."

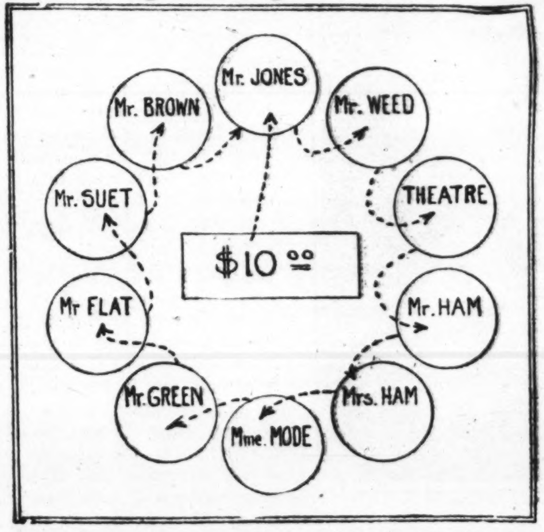
Can You Solve the Mystery of This Ten-Dollar Bill?

PUZZLE fans who like problems of the sort that made the deductions of Sherlock Holmes famous, will be interested in the following:

Jones is a reputable business man with a friend, Brown, in the wholesale meat trade. One day Jones found a brand-new $10 bill in the street and made a note of the number, intending to return it to the owner, if possible. The owner, by the way, never was heard from. Jones added the $10 to the roll of bills in his pocket and inadvertently spent it that same afternoon for a box of fine cigars. Mr. Weed, the tobacconist, bought four theater tickets with it. The theater manager paid the bill to one of his actors, Mr. Ham, who gave it to his wife to pay her dressmaker, Mme. Mode. The dressmaker paid the $10 to Mr. Green, her grocer, and he, in turn, handed it to Mr. Flat, his landlord, in part payment of his rent. Mr. Flat paid it to Mr. Suet, his butcher, who paid it to the wholesale meat man, Brown, the friend of Mr. Jones.

That night Brown handed the $10 bill to Jones in settlement of a wager. So, for the second time, Jones added that particular bill to the roll of bills in his pocket and the next morning it was included among other bills and checks which he handed in at his bank in making a deposit.



The bank teller refused to accept the $10 bill. He said it was a counterfeit. Jones looked at it and was astonished to find that it was the very bill he had found on the street. He knew he had spent the bill since finding it, but just where he did not know. Now, it had come back to him, but he had no idea who, during the day's business transactions, had handed him this particular bill.

"I guess you're out $10," said his bookkeeper. It's your loss."

"Not at all," replied Jones. "I don't lose a cent. I found that bill in the first place and evidently handed it to somebody who mistook it for a good $10 bill."

"Then who is out $10?" inquired the bookkeeper.

"Search me," replied Jones. "I don't know."

Can anybody answer the bookkeeper's question? You must take into consideration the presumption that the man who originally lost the counterfeit bill in the street may have been the counterfeiter himself. He simply lost a worthless piece of paper. Jones, who found it, got $10 worth of cigars for it and smoked them. And before the bill got back into his hands it paid probably $100 worth of honest debts contracted by honest people, who never suspected, while the bill was in their possession, that it was spurious.

So, getting back to the puzzled bookkeeper's question: Who is out $10? Think it out and send in your solution to the puzzle editor. The best solution, or solutions, will appear as early as possible after being received.

little lady I been hearing about. Your daughter, eh, madam?"

"She's my only one left, Mr. Gratz. He—he got us to come during my lunch hour from the store because he said you—you'd want to see us on business." Beneath her shabby velvet sailor, Miss Kolinsky regarded him roundly, her bare hands locked tight in her lap.

"Sure enough I do. Sure enough I do."

"My daughter, Mr. Gratz, is only"——

"What I've got to say is this, Miss Rosie: Instead of singing songs in the sheet-music department down in Tracy's basement, how would you like to act, eh? Act on the stage?"

"I"——

"We ain't, Mr. Gratz, got no such thoughts for our girl. Like I kept sayin' all the time to Mr. Lang, till right inside the taxicab he pushed us, it ain't even no good for us to come. My Rosie's a good girl, Mr. Gratz, like she was born yesterday; that's how much that girl knows about"——

"Mamma!"

"What's going to keep her from going right on being a good girl, Mrs. Kolinsky? There's as good girls on the stage as off; maybe better."

"Maybe there is, Mr. Gratz, but I rather she should be a good girl off. It ain't the kind of life for my Rosie, Mr. Gratz. Maybe it is for some girls what like always to make a fine show, but my Rosie never in her life, Mr. Gratz, did her or us give to the stage for her such a thing as a thought."

"But mamma, it's because I never had a chance before."

"When children got it in them to want something, they want it, whether they got the chance to want it or not, ain't it, Mr. Gratz? Ain't it?"

"But, mamma, please, Mr. Gratz wants to talk business. He—he hasn't time to fool. He's a busy young man."

"Like a baby that girl has been raised, Mr. Gratz. We're poor people what all our lives have lived down on Henry street among poor people, but"——

"Henry street! Why I"——

"But never a stroke of work for wages, Mr. Gratz, until last year the erysipelas went to my husband's eyes, has that child had to do. From the fastest pieceworker in the American Uniform Co. for 20 years, a man that's made for his family a good living, he has been on his back 12 months, going on 13 now. Up till then not one stroke did that child"——

"Yes, yes, Mrs. Kolinsky, but what I've got to say is going to make all that better. Mr. Lang tells me that with a little training your daughter's voice is"——

"Oh, no, Mr. Gratz, I hope he didn't make you think I'm much of a singer. I really ain't! My—my voice is all right for down in the basement of Tracy's, right sweet the girls say it carries, but if—if it's a big voice I need for the stage, Mr. Gratz, why—why, it's just like I told Mr. Lang that time he came and talked to me at the counter, I"——

"She's got a grand voice, that goil has, Mr. Gratz. You shouldn't listen to her when she says she ain't!"

"Mamma!"

"I wish when she sings sometimes to her papa, when his eyes just hurt so he nearly can't stand it, you could see how out on the fire escapes the neighbors hang their heads. Right away, Mr. Gratz, when her cousin Sadie Levit, who works at Tracy's, took her there, too, they hired her. You shouldn't listen to her, Mr. Gratz, when she says she ain't got a grand voice. Always so bashful she is. How she has to run herself down yet! Dummkopf!"

"You get good wages down at Tracy's, Miss Kolinsky?"

"Eight dollars, Mr. Gratz."

"What would you say, Mrs. Kolinsky, if your daughter was to get as much as $50 a week? Fifty dollars a week for playing a big part in a road company of the big musical success entitled 'The Laughing Girl.' You've read about it, eh? Fifty dollars a week, Mrs. Kolinsky?"

"I should say, Mr. Gratz, it was time the alarm clock under my pillow should wake me up." And her chest rose and fell in deep, quiet laughter beneath the black cape.

But Miss Kolinsky slid forward to the edge of the chair, quick dimples indenting her cheeks and the rims of her eyes widening.

"Fifty dollars a week, Mr. Gratz! You mean it?"

"That's what I said, Miss Kolinsky, if you can be drilled to act the part as well as you look it."

"Fifty dollars a week, ma! You hear?" Mrs. Kolinsky rose stiffly to her feet, drawing her cape close about her.

"There's somewhere in the woodpile a nigger. We're poor people, Mr. Gratz, but"——

"Mamma, you—you mustn't talk like that to a man like—like Mr. Gratz. You—you're talking to Felix Gratz, mamma, not somebody that ain't known and—and big. Anyway, you can tell by looking at Mr. Gratz, mamma, that he ain't the kind of man to say things he—he don't mean. Mamma, you—you mustn't."

Mr. Gratz reached forward smiling, pressed Mrs. Kolinsky down into her chair again, and flung out an elaborate gesture, palms outward, shrugging.

"Mamma, you mustn't! She don't mean it, Mr. Gratz. It's because it sounds almost too good to be true that she's so excited. You—you don't know, Mr. Gratz, how $50 a week sounds to us with—with my father down like he is and times so—so tight. It's like we're getting a wonderful chance from the most wonderful man in the world, Mr. Gratz."

"Why, you poor little lady, you, of course, I understand."

"Now, mamma, please, please cool down. Mr. Gratz don't even say for sure he'll hire me. He only says, if I can act, that $50 a week will be my salary. That's how they get paid on the stage, mamma. Big!"

"Fifty dollars a week and wardrobe, Miss Kolinsky."

"For what, Mr. Gratz, she need furniture for"——

"Clothes, he means, mamma. Clothes!"

"Gott in himmel!" said Mrs. Kolinsky, sitting back to blink in sudden tears, hands open in her lap in the palm-upward attitude of helplessness. Gott in himmel!"

"Mamma, don't you see Mr. Gratz is going to teach me to go on the stage to sing in a musical piece. To be an actress, ma!"

"Your daughter's got the face and is almost the type, Mrs. Kolinsky, for a part in a road company I'm filling in. With the training she'll get in work like that, why, some day you're likely to find yourself with a star on your hands; that's the way they rise in the profession, Mrs. Kolinsky, right from the road to Broadway!"

"A star, ma!"

"She'll be the Laughing Girl in the first road company, Mrs. Kolinsky, precisely the role that Dolly Dalores is making herself famous in."

"The Laughing Girl! That's just what she is, Mr. Gratz, when she ain't so bashful like she is now in front of you. That's just what she is around the house, the Laughing Girl. Just to hear her, sometimes, I think, is all keeps her papa's hope up he'll get well.

"For $50 a week, Mr. Gratz, even a hundred dollars a week, Mr. Gratz, it ain't worth you should take away from us all what we got. It ain't. Fifty dollars a week, Gott! Except like Rosie says when I look at you and see how your eyes look right back at me, I—I can't help feel there's somewhere in the woodpile, maybe a nigger."

His gaze receded behind a squint of amusement.

"All right, then we'll prove it to you, eh, Mrs. Kolinsky? Tomorrow at 3 o'clock, Mrs. Kolinsky, you send Miss Rosie here to get it in black and white, a real, honest-to-goodness contract, $50 a week and wardrobe, in first road company of 'The Laughing Girl.' Black and white, eh? How's that?"

"Mamma! Mr. Gratz! I—yes, mamma. Yes! Yes!"

Two tears overflowed and zigzagged down and into Mrs. Kolinsky's cascade of chins, her mouth distorted with an effort to swallow them back.

"Mamma, dear, I won't come if"——

"Now, now, Mrs. Kolinsky, you'd think I was doing your little daughter a bad turn, instead of giving her one chance in a million."

"Her—her papa would say, just like me, if he know, Mr. Gratz. So—so innocent she is, like she was born yesterday. I know, Mr. Gratz, what can happen with a girl that goes out like that in the world. Twenty years ago, Sadie Rabitsky, my husband's brother-in-law's sister-in-law's girl, went, too, on the stage and now"——

"A girl in one of my companies, Mrs. Kolinsky, can be just as safe as under her own roof. Just let me take you down in the girls' dressing rooms once and let you see for yourself our rules posted up there in black and white against smoking and swearing."

"Gott!"

"Why, there's girls in my companies, Mrs. Kolinsky, not a couple of 'em, but dozens of 'em, I'm proud to shake by the hands; most of 'em hard-working, plucky little, common-sense propositions, some of 'em with families to support or saving up for a chicken farm in their old age. Most of this stage temptation stuff you get handed out to you is bunk. It's true that a young girl"——

"That's just it, Mr. Gratz, she's so young. The temptations would come and such a baby she is she wouldn't even know they was temptations. Just so innocent as my Rosie is, Sadie Rabitsky was when she left home, and now"——

"You make me laugh, mamma, when you talk that temptation talk. You think I'm just a kid and I jolly you and pa along, but let me tell you I can take care of myself wherever you put me. You've never seen me act up in the store if one of the salesmen or anybody tries to get fresh with me, ma, but just ask the girls down at the store if I can hold my own or not."

"But, Rosie"——

"Ma, dear, think—think of fifty a week. That's more money coming in our house a week than we ever had in our lives, even when pa was fastest. It'll be the making of him, ma, if we can get him out of that dark flat. Blind people feel the gloom just like us. I can learn to act and hold the part down, alrighty, ma. Ain't it better than singing in Tracy's basement at $8 a week for the rest of my life? I want some fun, too, ma. I—I want to take this job, ma, dear; I—want it—so!"

"Gott in himmel! And she didn't want even to come, Mr. Gratz, so help me. That's how the stage gets hold of 'em right away. She didn't even want to come, so bashful she felt. Gott, if only that Mr. Lang didn't come bothering around and—and you, Mr. Gratz. How she makes up to you right away. Never in my life did I see her make up so quick right away."

"Why, little Miss Rosie," said Felix Gratz, moving toward her, "you trust me, don't you?"

"I do, Mr. Gratz. I—I do trust you. I—I just do." And at that a flush rose, pouring all over her face.

"Never, Mr. Gratz, did she make up right away with a young man before, that's how bashful she is. Gott, if only she hadn't right away liked you like that, and Mr. Lang hadn't come bothering us, we"——

"Why, you pretty little thing, you," said Felix Gratz.

"Oh—oh, Mr. Gratz!" The pink tide of her confusion rose higher.

"Ach, all of a sudden you two, such a admiration society, it ain't even nice a young girl and a young man should right away begin such—such admiration society."

"Mamma!"

"Why, Mrs. Kolinsky, I was only"——

"Don't you see, mamma, it's like Mr. Gratz says; it's one chance in a million for a girl like me. Maybe I—I can get famous, ma. You heard what Mr. Gratz said, ma. Didn't you, Mr. Gratz?"

"Why, you pretty little thing, you," repated Felix Gratz, moving toward her. "Why, if I was your mamma I couldn't say 'no' to anything a pretty little thing like you wanted."

"Not if it's her ruination to be pretty, Mr. Gratz? Is prettiness any good? Gott in himmel, I—I just don't know, Rosie. Maybe if every night I get Aunt Hannah to come sit by papa, and Mr. Gratz says I can come always down in the theater and sit right next to you, I"——

"But, Mrs. Kolinsky"——

"But, mamma, you—you don't

"Ten dollars after the first six months, they promised her, Mr. Gratz. Fourteen I say she could get if she wasn't so bashful."

Deep Sea Perils of the Master Diver

Crilley, who salvaged the U. S. Navy's submarine F-4, sunk off Honolulu, and whose memory is a location chart of lost treasure ships, speaks lightly of his adventures and projects now that the new diving suits have made possible a descent of 361 feet undersea :: ::

With all the dangers attending the life of the diver, there is a fascination about it that appeals strongly to the stout-hearted Crilley, who has made some record descents to the ocean floor.

WITH millions of dollars' worth of treasure sunk under the sea, in long past years, and untold millions added by the disasters of the war and its submarine campaign, it is small wonder that Governments and individuals are turning their eyes toward the problem of picking up great fortunes here and there from beneath the waves

New armor-plate suits have been invented and perfected. They are capable of standing enormous pressure. B. F. Leavitt of Brooklyn, in one of these, claims to have descended 361 feet, a world record, and to have remained at that depth for 45 minutes.

Simon Lake's submarine salvaging boat is being constantly perfected and fitted with new and extraordinary devices for bringing up various types of treasure from the deep sea.

Whatever the device may be, the diver is always a necessity, and good divers are rare indeed. Courage, quickness and resourcefulness, as well as special physical requirements are needed to make a really great diver.

Considered by many the greatest of the divers, for years well known in the navy, the first man to dare extreme depths, the man whose heroism at the time of the sinking of the F-4 was recognized by Congress, whose work during the war was of signal merit, and who, after 15 years of diving, is still anxious to dive, is Frank J. Crilley.

Crilley began his career as a deep-sea diver 15 years ago. He had then been in the navy for a number of years, having enlisted at the age of 15 years. He took to the sea because he liked it and he made it his business to see every branch of the service. Surcharged with ambition to try everything new in his line, young Crilley eagerly accepted the first opportunity offered to go below the surface of the wave and establish a more intimate relationship with Father Neptune. The appliances a decade and a half ago were not up to the present approved system and the chances of accidents to the divers were then more numerous, as frequent mishaps attested. But these dangers held no terror for the Brooklyn boy, who, with his "pal," John O'Hagin, at the windlass and the pumps, went overboard at every invitation. It was such a fascinating game that the helper at the deck end of the performance soon begged and obtained permission to explore the floor of the sea. Since then these men who laugh at the dangers of the deep, have been very much together in many ventures that called for supreme courage and contempt for dangers that would hold others in check. That it is an extra hazardous profession, one would scarcely think after talking to Diver Crilley and gathering his impressions, based on his long experience. He just laughed when a Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine writer adverted to his work after the sinking of the F-4, which won him such distinguished recognition.

"Oh, it wasn't much," said Crilley, getting red and curling his lips up in an embarrassed tangle. "You see, that was in 1915. I'd been in the navy for a good many years—enlisted when I was a little over 15, and been in all sorts of sea mixups. It was about 15 years ago that I began diving, but in those days we didn't go down to the very depths. The hand pumps weren't as reliable in getting down air pressure as the motor-driven ones these days.

"That year Nielson, Drilleshack and I, with several others, had been experimenting with new apparatus at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, when the news came that the F-4 had sunk with all hands off Honolulu. They sent us right out there. We had made our other experiment in tanks, specially prepared, and we didn't know whether or not we really could go down to the greater depths. That is, practically. No one had even done so. So we did it!"

As Crilley seemed indisposed to talk further about his work at Honolulu, his partner, O'Hagin, who was present at the interview, felt that he was justified in coming to the rescue of the interviewer, and he did so with this inquiry:

"Well, you were the first one, weren't you, Frank? You went down 288 feet, the first man ever to have dared such a thing?"

"Oh, but the rest came down soon after," he deprecated. "I went down and walked around on the top of the submarine, and later, all four of us went to a depth of 306 feet, fastened the cables and made other salvage preparations. That was all there was to it! Easy as falling off a log—almost!"

"Almost is right," put in O'Hagin. "And you've left out about saving Loughman. I think I'll tell that. These modest men are a terrible nuisance!

"You know, sometimes a diver's air hose will become fouled, and in such a case, unless he has great presence of mind, he is usually killed. William Loughman, one of the men diving for the F-4 with Crilley, was down over 200 feet. It was the day after they had made their record—a record that stands, I think, for a flexible suit. Loughman became fouled. He was practically helpless.

"Crilley, with his usual presence of mind and daring, went to the rescue. In order to save Loughman, it was necessary for him to come twice to the surface quickly, which is an extremely dangerous thing for a diver to do. Ordinarily, after having been subjected to the pressure of great depths, it takes hours of slow decompression to come to the surface with safety. Fortunately, Frank suffered no very serious after effects; but Loughman was the victim of the 'bends,' or caisson disease, a nitrogen bubble lodging in one of his joints, so that for years he has been a cripple"——

"I saw him last week!" interrupted Crilley. "They cured him at the hospital, and now he's ready to dive again. You can't stop 'em. What do you know about that?"

"I hadn't finished!" said O'Hagin firmly. "Congress commended you for that, didn't they, Frank?"

"Sort of," said Crilley, with another tangling of legs.

"Sort of? They awarded him the Congressional Life Saving Medal and sent him a letter of commendation. Sort of!

"And during the war Frank had charge of the diving operations at the Navy Diving School. It was he who, with 29 divers to help him, salvaged the 'America' when she sank mysteriously at her pier in Hoboken. It was something of a feat to raise her in six weeks! It was he who blew up the rock that was sticking through the famous old Don Juan d'Austria, and made it possible to float her. Oh, he's quite a boy, Frank is!"

Then the two, sitting there, went back to the days when they had explored the sea together. You could almost see the sharks and shiners, you could almost see the waving seaweed and the white sandy bottoms.

"There are many things for the deep sea diver to fight," said O'Hagin. "It's rather a solemn sound when the face plate is closed, and that huge weight of 200 pounds, with you inside it, is helped over the side and goes slowly down, with you clinging to the life line.

"The first thing that works against you under the water is the tide. Sometimes it comes with such force that it is impossible to keep your equilibrium. All your strength is needed to fight it. Then there are the undersea storms and the undertows. Sometimes they will strike you with a suddenness and force that carries you away helpless. At such times your apparatus may break, leaving you helpless and at the mercy of the ever-present and overwhelming pressure.

"Then there is weed. Before you realize it, you can be buried deep in the clinging stuff; and only quick action, the proper manipulation of the valves and a sharp struggle, can bring you out safely.

"There are slippery reefs and jutting rocks on which you may stumble and fall, hurting yourself or your air hose, perhaps losing life instantly.

"As you work around a wreck or dig for a lost, unexploded shell, something may go wrong above—you may fail to adjust the pressure properly or the air from above may fail you suddenly. The helmet is noncompressible. The pressure on the exposed body covering becomes suddenly much greater, and the effect is that the body—flesh, blood, bones and all—is driven with tremendous force up into the helmet, like a cork forced suddenly through the neck of a bottle. This is such a common occurence, or used to be, that the divers in the South Seas included in their contracts a stipulation that they should be buried in their helmets in case of what is known as a 'squeeze.'

"'Blowing up' is another common occurrence. The diver's suit becomes too much inflated, and he suddenly shoots to and above the surface through long,

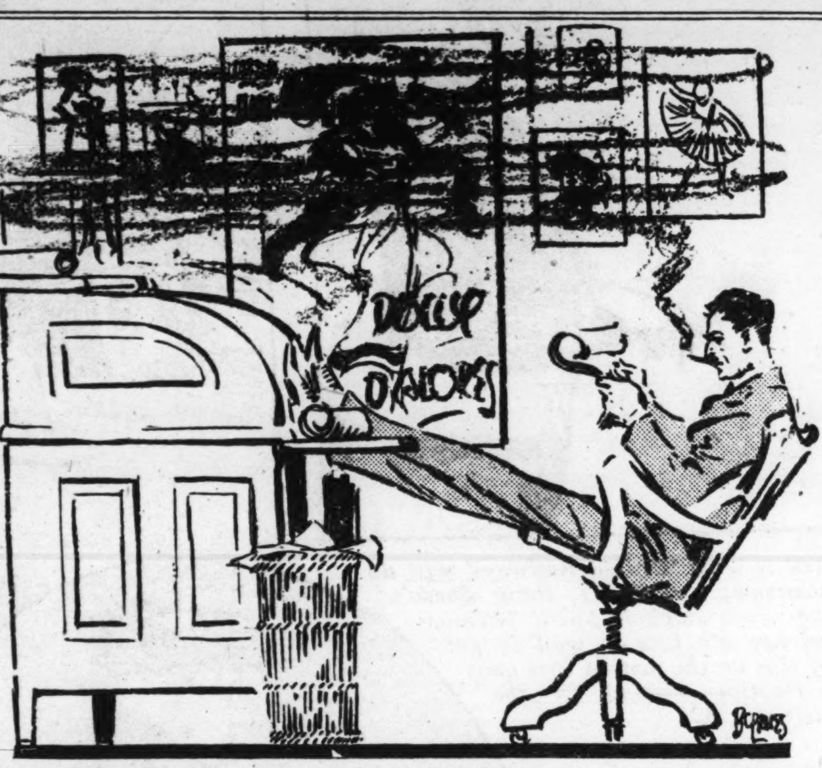
THINE IS NOT MINE

By FANNIE HURST



Felix Gratz lay back in a swivel chair, his feet on the desk edge and level with his eavelike eyebrows.

IT IS a high hurdle from Fourteenth to Forty-second street, but those who clear the bar land on soft turf. Those who do not—but this has to do with Felix Gratz, who did.

With no particular lung power and no particular biceps, in fact, with a somewhat inferior chest expansion, and an indoor softness about the muscles, Felix Gratz, by his own peculiar leverage, vaulted from the spittooned rear office of the Fourteenth street People's Theater to the cuspidored, fumed-oak, index-systemed suite on the fourteenth floor of the Gratz Theater Building, with an office force well trained to the suave task of guarding him from letters of introduction, star pupils from Middle West dramatic schools and last year's style of show girl, also with an outlook upon that precious segment of theatrical Broadway where acreage sells by the carat and where lambs of the golden fleece from Sheboygan, Fort Wayne and Altoona love to come to be shorn.

Connoisseurs of the plastic arts are paid by their capitalists and brewers to appraise their priceless porcelains and marbles, each crack adding a few years and a few thousands to their value. More connoisseurs are paid by the capitalists and brewers to draw the fine line of difference between a Veronese, a Boucher and a made-in-Fourth-avenue. Teatasters have Oolong, Ceylon and English breakfast at the tip of their tongues. Experts must teach the new rich how to smack old wine.

In his, the art of appraising the face and footlight value of flesh and blood, Felix Gratz had that same connoisseur's sixth sense which can so readily detect the Ming flavor to the porcelain, or the Bacon flavor to the Shakspearean sonnet. One glance at a girl in the subway, and he could appraise her middle register and whether she had last dined on a cold bottle and a hot bird or a milk-chocolate-hot-please. It required but a peep out into his overcrowded waiting room, through a hole drilled for that purpose in the fumed-oak door, and the brunette soubrette in the lefthand corner or the plump blonde pony beneath the chandelier was promptly admitted.

In the big current success running its fourth month in the Gratz Theater downstairs, Dolly Dalores, the Laughing Girl in the musical comedy of that name, had been culled from a millinery shop in Grand street. Rialto tradition recited that Molla Fischer, the $2000-a-week comedy diva, playing her third Broadway season in "Zira," had once served her manager ham-and-straight-ups in a Fourteenth street lunch room. It was a fact that at Rector's one night she had fried an egg in a chafing dish and caught it yolk-whole on the flop. Ponies for the famous Gratz ballets were garnered from everywhere for their short, brilliant years of service. In his selection of show girls, Felix Gratz had no peer, except, perhaps, the English peerage.

Scouts, trained disciples of his, and fairly expert in discerning the soubrette beneath the salesgirls' alpaca, fine-combed the pretty-shop-girl possibilities of the great city. One of these, Leo Lang, had discovered Dolly Dalores in millinery.

At 11 o'clock of a cold, thin-aired morning in January—that hour when the Rialto gathers on Broadway's curb to swap last season's triumphs and in manager's offices to beg this season's "bits"—Leo Lang, in spats and an overcoat with an astrakhan collar, let himself by an obscure door into Felix Gratz's inner office.

Best Havana smoke hung in heavy lariats in the middle air of that room. Behind a fumed-oak desk, littered with half a dozen manuscripts, a miniature cardboard stage and a wire basket of unsigned letters, Felix Gratz lay back in a swivel chair, his feet on the desk edge and level with his eavelike eyebrows; a blue-covered manuscript open in his lap and his cigar-end red and burning rapidly.

"Well, what now?" Flinging the typewritten pages face downward, he lowered his heels and his dark, sharp features emerged through a tulle of smoke.

"Here's them lists." Mr. Leo Lang shoved his brown derby hat to the back of his head, shot his cigar at an oblique and drew two long, [illegible] slips from an inner pocket.

"Post them! What you bringing 'em to me for?"

"How in the devil's name, Felix, you going to bill these notices for rehearsal of first road company of 'The Laughing Girl' if you're shy the lead?"

Felix Gratz ran five extended fingers through his caplike thatch of black hair and swung around full on Mr. Lang.

"How! If one of you fellows had any guts, you'd have brought one in here before now. How, you ask me! You're a bunch of deadheads and you ought to wear crepe on your noses. You don't know a skirt when you see one, except to ogle. If I wasn't kept busy rehearsing that Dalores woman day and night to learn her the difference between memorizing and trimming hats, I'd have grabbed one first day out."

"There's Trixie La Rue in the outer office now, Felix. She's a little gypsy if ever there was one, except she"——

"Trixie La Rue like hell! A $200-a-week woman! Say, whatta you think I'm booking—an all-star revival? No road show will ever swamp me on such salaries. There's a $75-a-week Laughing Girl on every corner, if you fellows had anything inside but vacuum."

"Think so? Well, you start out and try to find her. The woods is full of the type, all right, nothing easier than a gypsy face and neat ankles; it's that blamed dimple. If you don't believe me, just start out and try to find it for yourself."

"Bah! I could find one with my eyes shut."

"By gad, if you can, then go to it and I'll call myself fired. Dimples come in pairs by rights, man! Go out and look for a gypsy with only one, and that in her chin and see what you're up against."

"You fellows would holler if I sent you out to find a blonde ingenue. What's there to the role, anyway, that a $75 woman couldn't get away with on the road? Gad, if I was Dolly Dalores, downstairs, I'd blush every time I drew my easy-money salary. What's there to the part you're hollering so about, I'd like to know, except that solo dimple in her chin, a pair of quick ankles and some Carmen stuff thrown in? If it wasn't for that 'Naughty, Naughty Dimple' song, I could do the role myself."

"Well, there's Carlotta Carl; she's to be had, but she"——

"Carlotta Carl! Why not Fritzi Frisbee or Hazel Jordan while you're at it? I tell you, the road will be satisfied with a $75 woman and it's up to you to find 'er. Up to you!"

"But"——

"By gad, no buts! Get'er. That's what you're hired for. Get'er! The choruses and the shops and the streets are full of 'em."

"It's that darned solo dimple, Felix. It's easy to find 'em in pairs, I tell you. But a deep one in the chin, that'll get the hit song of the show across, go look for it! Dolly Dalores has the only one in town.

"Well, there's that little Rose Kolinsky girl I was telling you about down in the sheet music department at Tracy's."

"Well?"

"Just like I told you, slim, but carved like a partridge; neat figure, good eyes, but"——

"Rose Kolinsky, Rosa Collins. Not bad!"

"Yeh, but not enough pep. Came back at me with a lot of mother's apron-string talk, and just my rotten luck, a pair of dimples in her cheeks like they was bored there."

"Get'er!"

In Felix Gratz's outer office, the chairs lined up against three side of the bare room were occupied by various persons in the variously vapid attitudes of waiting. A soubrette in soiled white-top boots and a gold-colored bird of paradise, jangled at her chatelain of many pieces. A large character woman in a large fur coat regarded the palms of her doubtful white kid gloves, opening and closing her fingers meditatively. A Malvolio in an impresario's overcoat stood by the wall examining a framed program of the first Gratz success, "The Crooked Crook." An ingenue tapped her French heel on the floor and kept her wide blue gaze fastened to the fumed-oak door. A low comedian spat and a high comedienne elevated her eyebrows and three dust ruffles of lace. A youth with flowing ties and overflowing portfolio sat on the edge of his chair, thin fingers clasping and unclasping the leather strap. A pony with a large white muff and brass-colored curls, her white-spatted shoes wound in the rungs of her chair, discoursed in a loud tone of grievance to a pony with a white muff and brass-colored curls, her white-spatted shoes wound in the rungs of her chair.

In a remote corner of the room, Miss Rose Kolinsky, her dark eyes pools of troubled waters, closed her small, icy fingers suddenly about her parent's large, warm arm.

"There—there comes that girl in the red silk out, ma. We—we come next."

"I tell you, I was right, Rosie; we shouldn't ever have come here."

"Look, mamma, at that girl coming in with the spotted fur coat. She looks like a leopard, don't she?"

"Like a nix she looks, with such paint on her face. I guess you think once, Rosie, I let you get mixed up with such like I see here."

"Yes, ma, but there's some nice-looking ones, too. Look at"——

"How high they got their knees; it's a shame for the office boy'!"

"Sh-h-h, ma, there he is!"

The fumed-oak door swung back, revealing him in buttons.

"K'linsky!"

"Ma, that's us he means!"

"K'linsky!"

Miss Rose Kolinsky shot to her feet, face thrust out and her small leather bag swinging from the arm she flung forward.

"Kolinsky; that's us!"

A chain of titter passed around the room.

"This way, K'linsky!"

"Come, mamma."

Mrs. Kolinsky folded her decent black cape about her and limped after.

"This way, you!"

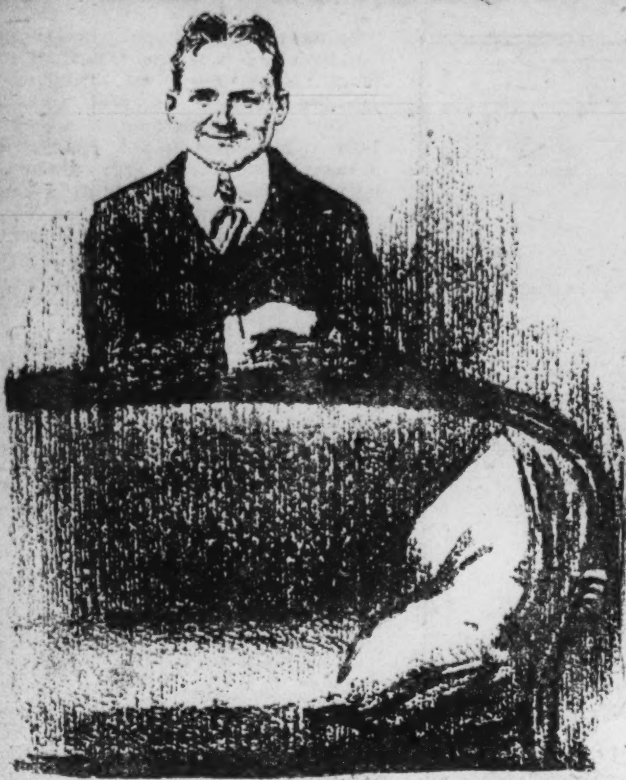
The fumed-oak door swung shut.

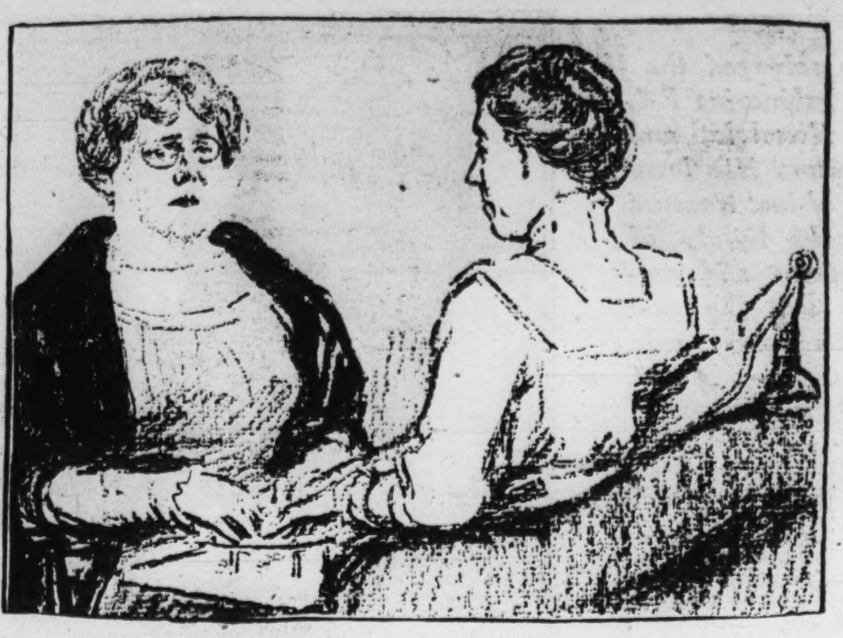
"My God!" said the character woman in the fur coat, "what's Gratz bookin' for today, 'Leah, the Forsaken, and Mother?' "

When Felix Gratz emerged from the aura of best Havana smoke which hung in a perpetual pall over his desk, he was smiling in quick appraisal, so that most of his large, well-enameled teeth showed and his strong nose, which seemed to incline toward that smile, quivered.

"Well, ladies," he said, rubbing his hands gratefully together in a dry wash and indicating two leather-upholstered chairs, "be seated." He smiled again and drew his own swivel away from the formality of the littered desk and alongside them. "So this is the

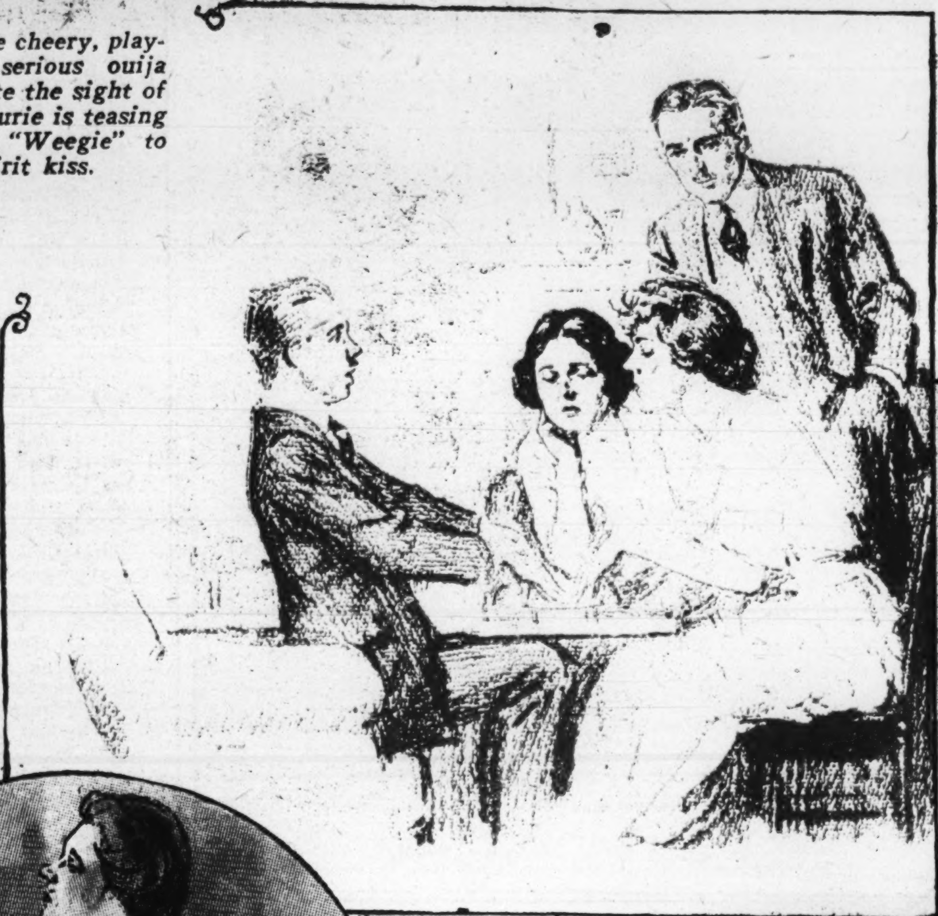
THE OUIJA BOARD



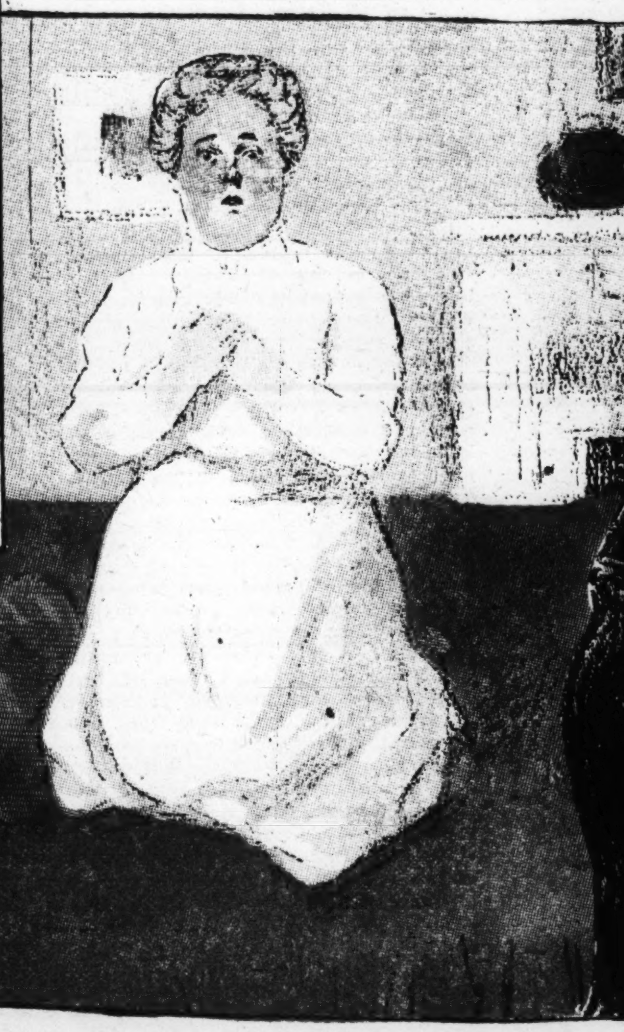


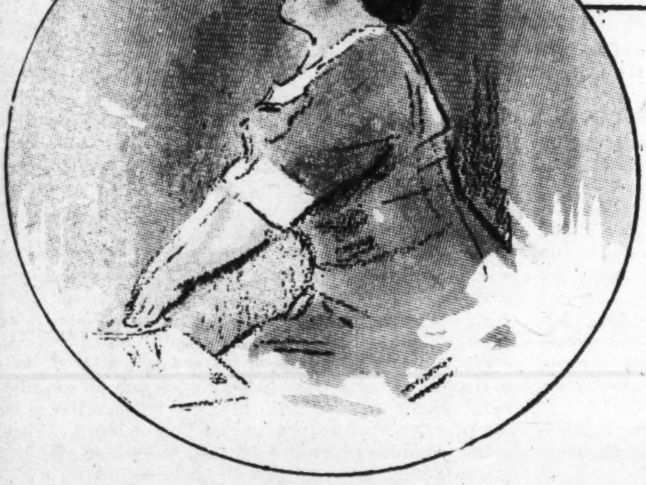
"Why, Mabel Roe! I didn't move it—and you know very well I would never, if I had moved it, make it write out 'Go to Hell!' "

Laurie is one of those cheery, playful people whom serious ouija board enthusiasts hate the sight of during a seance. Laurie is teasing Aunt Lena to ask "Weegie" to give him a spirit kiss.



The girls have just suggested to Frederick, who is new at it, that he let his mind be as near as possible to an absolute blank in order to get good results.





The handbook that Mrs. Werle read said all you needed to do with a ouija board was to sit quiet and believe in it. Maybe Mrs. Werle isn't believing hard enough, but she can't seem to make good with her eyes shut.

Miss Dabble has been entertaining callers all evening with the ouija board. The spirits prove and Miss Dabble's spirit control was none other than a certain Elisha T. Squirm, one-time m claimed to have murdered three wives—one with a cudgel, one with an axe, and the last one particularly good job of, even cutting the lady up into little bits. And all this information t ouija! The anti-climax is reached, however, when the callers leave and Miss Dabble finds she ous a state to go to bed. What with Lizzie, the maid, out for the evening, even with all the phonograph screaming "Oui, Oui, Marie!" for company, and Miss Dabble up on the lounge, wh out and grab her feet, Miss Dabble finds it hard to compose herse

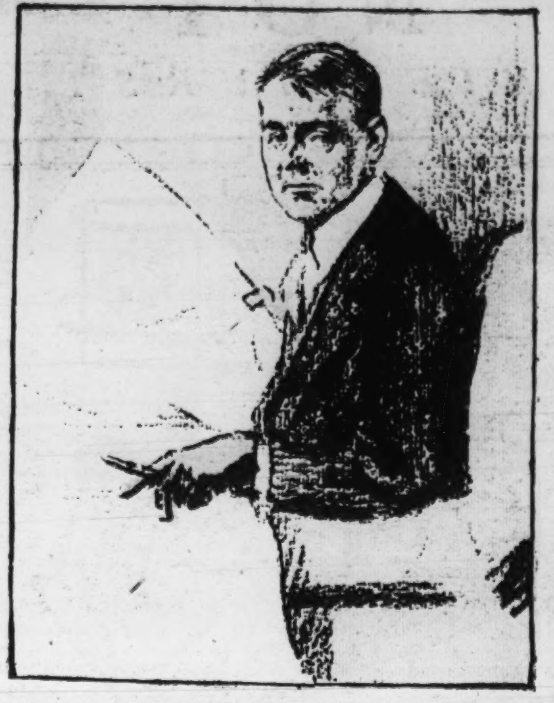
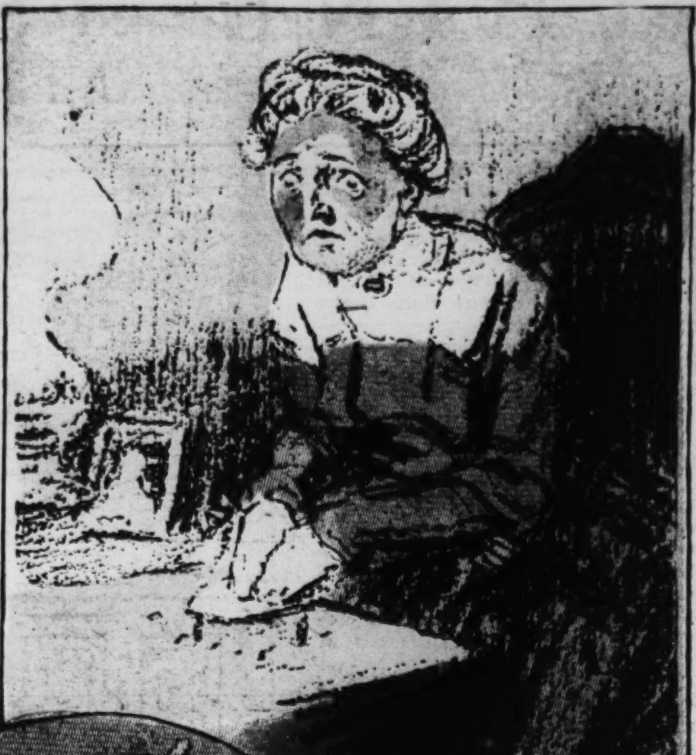
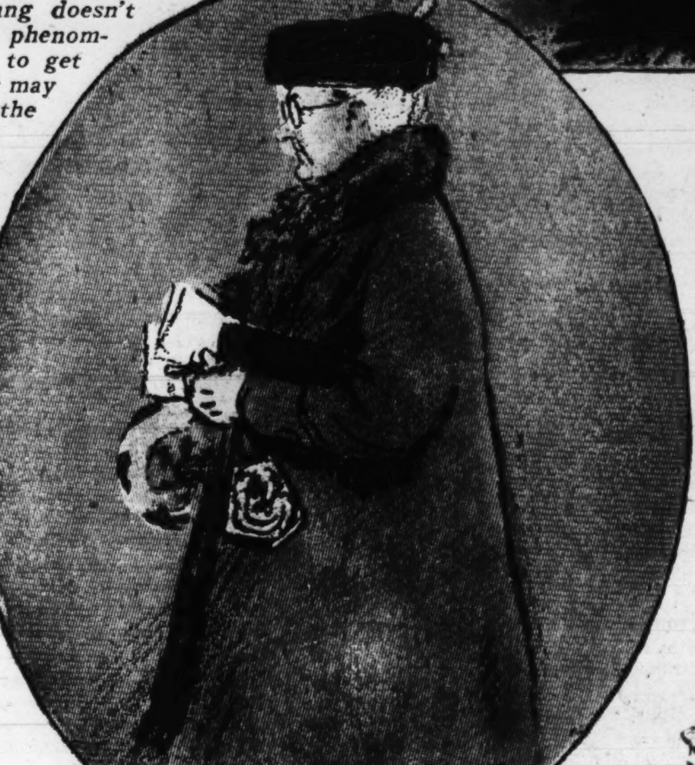
Something is all wrong with Frank's ouija board. It keeps repeating "94" when Frank asks for the only girl's age.



"Ask it what 'United Railways' will do tomorrow, Evie." Mr. Bang doesn't take much stock in spirit phenomena, but it's just as well to get any tips on the market that may be floating around in the spirit world.





Miss Bedell has a splitting headache, but she's got to keep going—seeing that she is the medium of the communication for a departed spirit who is living on Mars for the time being. Said spirit is writing a play, and he keeps Miss Bedell pretty busy.

Just because a writer enters the spirit world is no reason he shouldn't go on writing. Take Robert Louis Stevenson, for instance. In collaboration with Miss Mattie Jenks and her faithful ouija board he has done movie scenarios of all his best works, and Miss Mattie has just been to see his publishers about the movie rights.

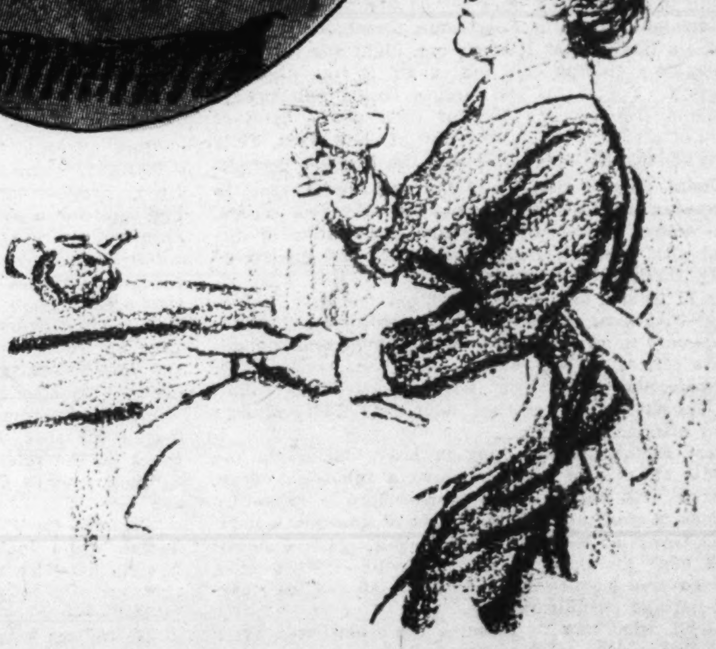
"Oh, Robert, I do wish you would close up the office and come home for the rest of the day. Sarah and I have been trying out the ouija board, and it says 'Fire, burglary and influenza are going to happen near here in the next twenty-four hours."



It was an unlucky day for the household when Rosie, Mrs. Baumler's maid, was discovered to be quite psychic and no end of a success at the family ouija board. To quote the Baumler's cook, who claims ouija boards are "be-deviled," Rosie "isn't no good at all, around the kitchen," since Queen Marie Antoinette has been using Rosie for spirit messages.

"His eyes were full of tears, and he could not trust himself to speak. In silence he bade each and all farewell, and then, accompanied by his officers, walked to Whitehall Ferry. Entering his barge, the word was given, and as the oars struck the water he stood up and lifted his hat."

"His speech to the assembled Congress was solemn and impressive, and with simple reverence he acknowledged the guiding hand of Providence in the fortunes of these States. He made no recommendations to Congress, but expressed his confidence in their wisdom and patriotism and adjured them to remember that the success of Republican Government would probably be finally settled by the success of their experiment."

Faces Made Young

The secret of a youthful face will be sent to any woman whose appearance shows that time or illness or any other cause is stealing from her the charm of girlhood beauty. It will show how without cosmetics, creams, massage, masks, plasters, straps, vibrators, "beauty" treatments or other artificial means, she can remove the traces of age from her countenance. Every woman, young or middle aged, who has a single facial defect should know about the remarkable which remove lines and "crow's feet" and wrinkles; fill up hollows; give roundness to scrawny necks; lift up sagging corners of the mouth; and clear up muddy or sallow skins. It will show how five minutes daily with Kathryn Murray's simple facial exercises will work wonders. This information is free to all who ask for it.

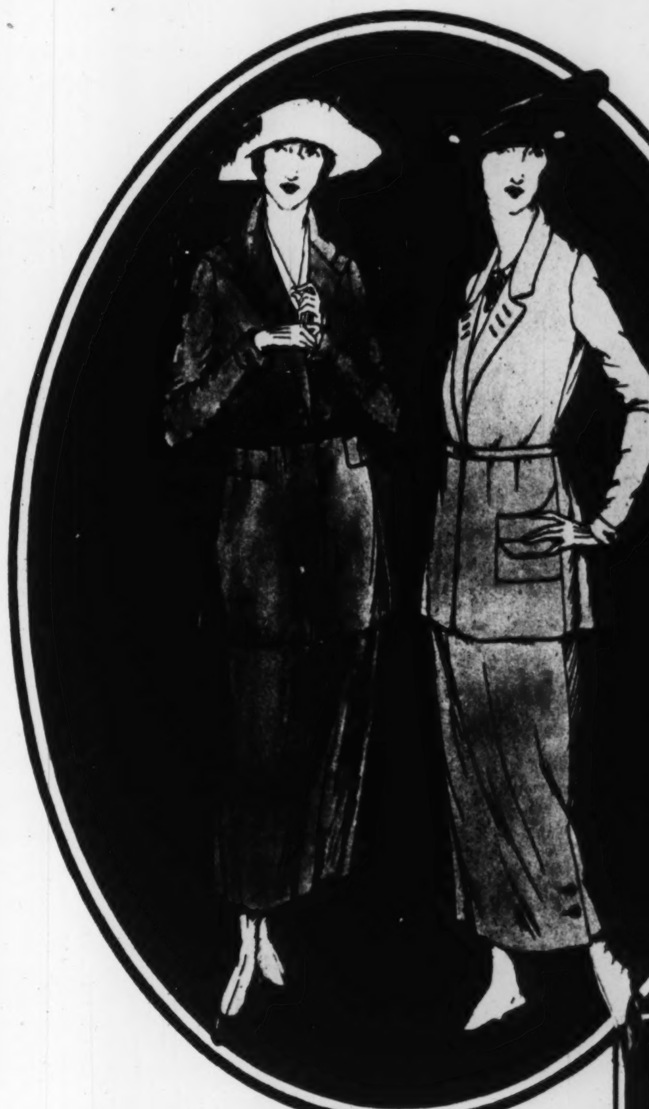
"THAT WELL-DRESSED LOOK"

Walking might easily become an obsession if you possessed either of these little Wooltex Tailormades! The little lady on your left chose the "Briarcliff" knockabout in a tan mixture Scotch Tweed—though she could have had gray or green. When you "look sharp" you see a touch of wistaria running through the belt and facing the pocket flaps. It comes without the color, too. You wear the collar high or low and the skirt is comfortable walking width.

On the right you see the "Lee" knockabout in Irish Homespun. The coat is quite "boxey" and fastens with one button. Both coat and skirt have double pockets, and the sleeve links keep the wrist snug fitting. The skirt is designed for walking and you'll like the colors—Reddish, Tan, Hemp, Blue and Brown mixtures.



It's just a bit of white satin embroidered in gold and black. But, neatly fastened inside the collar of your tailormade, it means that you'll wear the coat or suit with all the pride we take in signing it!

Remember, no matter how much it "looks like" a Wooltex Tailormade, it just can't be without that Wooltex signature shown above.

Wooltex Tailormades are priced at $45, $55, $65, $75 up to $125.

Wooltex Tailor-mades

With a dollar note acting for all the world like fifty cents, buying a suit these days is somewhat like choosing a husband—it requires a bit of thought!

It's such a simple matter to get a good looking suit—you can try one on any day and see yourself reflected trim and smart. But, it's just as it is with a shoe, you don't begin to know it until you've worn it three weeks or a month. That's about the time you learn whether the lines were "tailored in" or "pressed in." Whether that snug shoulder is going to hold its boyish line and the collar lie flat to your neck.

And, that's about the time a Wooltex Tailormade begins to prove itself a thoroughbred. Sun and rain have done their worst (of course there were times, too, when you couldn't find an empty hanger and used the chair back instead) but your "well dressed look" never leaves you!

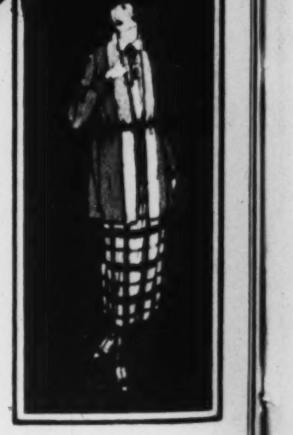
You are so delightfully sure, too, that the particular Wooltex style you've selected is not a fad or whim of the moment—it won't make you wish that you had waited until fashions were a little more assured.

If it's a knockabout you want, you'll find a Wooltex Tailormade with just enough "English" to it to make you fancy yourself strolling through Hyde Park. If it's a suit or coat for bestest-best, there's a Wooltex Tailormade with an indefinable air of Paris about it—a pert little flare or a temperamental bit of color.

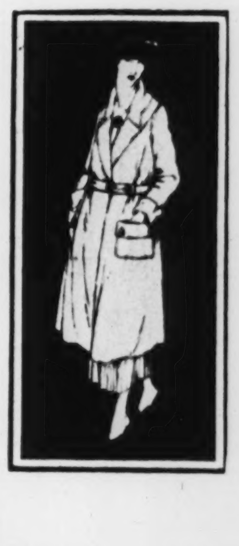
There's no need to tell you about the materials in Wooltex Tailormades—they're all wool, of course, Tricotines, Home Spun, Scotch and Irish Tweeds, Suede Velour, Polo Cloth, Angora Polo and others. The linings are the kind that tempt you to walk swiftly and let your coat blow open!

When you go to look for your Wooltex Tailormade be sure to ask the salesperson for "The Tailored Woman"—it's a little magazine that gossips of styles now and styles to come. Or, if you like, write us and we'll mail it to you.

"The Tailored Woman," Fifth Avenue at Fiftieth Street, is the exclusive shop in New York showing Wooltex Tailormades. For the shop nearest your home write us.



"Pinehurst." It's of French Blue Angora Polo, this little sports coat. The Gray Angora Tuxedo facing conceals two little pockets, and those sharp little points over the hips are extremely smart. The cuff is "linked," the shoulders snug, and the back full. It comes in Squirrel, French Blue and Tan—the Tuxedo collar is of self or contrasting Angora.



"Meadowbrook." This is another smart Polo Coat. Large, square pockets, convertible collar with self stitching and a nice broad belt make it unusual. The shoulders are snug, the back straight with stitched seam down the centre. It is open in back from about six inches below the waist to the hem. In the same colors as the "Pinehurst."
